

Art walk set for Saturday

By Ali Holcomb

More than 60 local, regional and national artists and musicians will be featured here during the Jackson County Art Walk on Saturday, Aug. 8.

Sponsored by Jackson County Arts, the art walk will be held from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at more than 30 designated businesses and locations around the Holton Square.

Holton resident Marty Mavrovich has been selected as the featured artist for the art walk, and she will exhibit acrylic, pastel and watercolor paintings at Homestead Affordable Housing.

"For me, art is a meditation. I just open up to my subject and the artwork just emerges," Mavrovich said.

Mavrovich will display paintings of Alaskan landscapes and animals that were inspired by an Alaskan cruise last summer.

She received a bachelor of fine arts from The University of Kansas and studied under Barbara Waterman Peters at Washburn University. She is a founding member of The Collective Gallery in Topeka and exhibited there for several years.

Currently, Mavrovich teaches at Sarah's Enchanted Cottage in Holton. In the past, she taught for the Shawnee North Community Center and for Highland Community College at Meriden.

Twenty-one chairs painted with colorful designs will be placed around the Square during the art walk as part of "Art in the County Seat: A Chair to Remember." The painted chairs were created by area artists, families, businesses and organizations. Those attending the art walk are encouraged to take a seat and listen to the music.

At the Jackson County Courthouse, the Rod Durst Family Band Future Generations will perform bluegrass and western music from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Jackson County Arts members will exhibit their art and quilt art paintings in the building alongside artwork by Sandy Studebaker-Gilbert's students (ages 8 to 88). Refreshments will be available.

On the Courthouse lawn, Ethan Fund and Aidan Allen will sing and play the piano.

Other artists and musicians featured on the art walk and their locations include:

City approves bid for extending Banner Road

By Brian Sanders

A Topeka firm's bid for the extension of Banner Road at the southern edge of Holton into property where a new Walmart is being built was approved on Monday by the Holton City Commission, but not before commissioners questioned why the firm's bid was the only one received — and whether the Kansas Department of Transportation would accept the bid.

Bettis Asphalt and Construction submitted a bid not to exceed $1,987,385 for construction of the Banner Road extension west across U.S. Highway 75 into property where a parking lot for the new Walmart is expected to be built in the near future, commissioners noted. Holton City Manager Bret Bauer said that documents related to Bettis' bid would need to be submitted to KDOT officials for their review and possible approval.

However, commissioners were wary over whether KDOT — which is providing funds for the Banner Road extension — would accept Bettis' bid, since it was the only one received.

"Ultimately, the state has the final say, because that's where the money is coming from for this project," Commissioner Tim Morris said. "But will they be receptive and allow just one bid application?"

Bauer said Carlson Consulting, the Memphis, Tenn. firm responsible for platting the land on which the new Walmart is being built, created a Web site inviting construction companies to bid on the project. Holton Street Superintendent Rex Cameron added that it was likely more than 20 companies had been invited to bid on the project, and the city also advertised the bidding process in The Holton Recorder.

"It was out there," Cameron said of the invitation to bid.

LPGA set to return to Firekeeper

By Kelly Breckunitch

Next month, the Symetra Tour (the Ladies Professional Golf Association feeder tour) will return to Firekeeper Golf Course just outside of Mayetta for the 2015 Prairie Band Casino and Resort Charity Classic.

Like any event, growth is expected in the second year and that is something tournament director and Firekeeper general manager Randy Towner has already seen.

Towner said the tournament will see a lot more participation in the Pro-Am event that will kick off the tournament, which means more money will be raised for charity (The Boys and Girls Clubs of the Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation and Topeka).

In addition, the tournament will see some growth by association, as the Potawatomi Cup (that the Prairie Band Casino and Resort Charity Classic

Beck-Bookman Library expansion announced

By Brian Sanders

The need for expansion at Beck-Bookman Library in Holton, both for additional meeting space and more room for its children's area, has prompted the library's board of trustees to purchase the house and lot located immediately north of the library, it was reported.

Librarian Candee Jacobs said the board of trustees met Monday morning to discuss purchasing the house and lot north of the library, located at 420 W. Fourth St. in Holton, so that those two aspects of the library's service to the community can be expanded.

"We're in the very, very beginning stages of planning," Jacobs said. "The expansion will not happen right away, and we have no idea when it will... We just know we need more space."

That need for space was confirmed by Rita Ent, president of the library's board of trustees. Both Ent and Jacobs said that when it came to expansion, the only option that library officials would not consider was moving the building.

"It's within walking distance for so many," Ent said. "It's in a perfect location for our community, and we felt like moving it was not even an option."

According to an advertisement appearing in today's Holton Recorder, the board noted that the library is "a vital meeting location for our community," and that because of "space constraints and challenges in our current building," the purchase of the house and lot north of the library was approved during the meeting on Monday.

The library's meeting room is often requested for group and organization meetings, Ent said.

"Over the years, the demand for meeting rooms in the community has really increased," she said. "People call the library to reserve the meeting room, and we have to turn people down because we don't have the capacity, or the meeting room is already booked. Very few places in the community offer that service for free, and that's a service that we want to provide and continue to make it free."

County, EMS continue to discuss future contract

By Ali Holcomb

Contract talks between the county and Jackson County EMS for ambulance services continue.

Brent Teter, co-owner of Jackson County EMS, recently met with the commissioners to discuss the company's request for additional funds in order to fully staff a second ambulance to serve the county.

In May, Teter and co-owner Jay Watkins outlined the need to fully staff a second ambulance locally. A fully staffed ambulance includes at least one EMT and a paramedic.

Currently, the second ambulance unit is staffed with on-call employees or volunteers who are certified in a variety of training.

Teter estimated that $350,000 would be needed in additional funding to fully staff a second ambulance.

The county's contract with Jackson County EMS is up for renewal at the end of 2015. For the past three years, the county has budgeted $187,000 per year to Jackson County EMS.

Commissioner Janet Zwonitzer said that the county cannot afford to fully staff another Jackson County

EMS truck at the estimated cost of $350,000.

Teter suggested that the new contract between the company and the county span five years and include room to gradually increase funding through the years until the second ambulance is fully staffed.

The commissioners stated their concern with budgeting what would be a total of $535,000 in county funds annually to fund two fully staffed ambulances for Jackson County EMS.

Commissioner Bill Elmer stated that the county could possibly help fund staffing for a second ambulance part time, for a portion of the day.

Zwonitzer said that the commissioners are considering providing $65,000 in additional county funds to Jackson County EMS. However, they would like more figures to help determine the appropriate amount to budget for ambulance services.

Teter said he would like to look into either paying an on-call crew more money or paying for a part-time staffed vehicle.

Ag Week Recap

Market sees end-of-month selloff

By Matt Hines
 An end-of-month selloff and evening up of positions seemed to control the livestock market on Friday, except for the nearby live cattle contract, which was able to climb higher. Most barns reported lower prices this past week with Kansas averaging $4 to $8 lower on feeder steers.

Late in the day Friday, cash feedlot finally got going and packers had to pay up to get needs met. Most in Kansas and Nebraska traded at $147 to $148 on a live basis, up $2 to $3 compared to a week ago, and much better than just holding steady, which is better than most expected for the week.

For the week, Friday to Friday, August live cattle were up $2.67, August feeder cattle were up $1.05 and August lean hogs were up $.82. The CME Feeder Cattle Index was up $1.33 at $217.03 and the lean hog index was up $.15 at $78.68. Boxed Beef, Choice was up $2.55 at $233.25 and Select was up $1.06 at $229.29.

Cattle slaughter from Friday was estimated at 103,000 head, up 7,000 from a week ago but down 12,000 from a year ago. For the week, the total was 532,000 head, down 7,000 from a week ago and down 43,000 from a year ago. Year-to-date difference stayed the same at 6.9 percent less than a year ago.

Hog slaughter from Friday was estimated at 396,000 head, down 7,000 from a week ago but up 135,000 from a year ago. For the week, the total was 2,137,000 head, up 36,000 from a week ago and up 267,000 compared to a year ago. The year-to-date difference is still increasing, now out to 7.5 percent more than a year ago.

There was a good start for this week with live cattle testing limit higher. The support of boxed beef market could be just enough to carve out a seasonal low here in cattle prices. Monday's move higher for feeder cattle futures should be just enough to break the downtrend as well; breaking the $217 area would be the

USDA's current projections.

USDA's current projections.
Grain Futures Settlements Monday, Aug. 3
 ■ August live cattle up $2.30 at $148, October up $2.17 at $148.10.
 ■ August feeders up $3.12 at $213.85, September up $3.07 at $210.82.
 ■ August lean hogs up $1.70 at $80.20, October up $1.60 at $65.32.

Over in the grains, the charts are still pointing down but the momentum has at least slowed this past week. USDA is expected to give us an update on old crop demand as well as new crop supply and demand today. The weather may push the market a bit more to start this week, but I wouldn't expect massive moves one way or the other until after the report.

For the week, Friday to Friday, September corn was down $.21½, December was down $.21½, August soybeans were down $.10½, November was down $.24¾, September KC wheat was down $.15, September Chicago wheat was down $.12½.

There are quite a few private yield forecasts coming out this week, with Doane's reported last Friday at 163.3 bpa, compared to USDA's 166.8 for corn and 44.2 bpa for soybeans, compared to 46.0 by USDA last month. These are not surprising to the market with most within that range as well but we will have to wait and see what if any changes USDA will make.

Supply totals will be less than a year ago, but many fear demand is already heading lower to compensate with world prices still discounted to U.S. values before the new crop is here. Grains inspected for export for the week ending July 30 were not too far from expectations but lower than needed to meet USDA estimates. Soybeans shipped only totaled 5.5 MBU, wheat at 11 MBU and corn at 36.2 MBU. Five weeks are left now in this crop reporting year for corn and soybeans. Exporters will need to ship 46.2 MBU of corn and 6.2 MBU of soybeans every week to hit

Crop Progress and Conditions Monday, Aug. 3

U.S. corn silking is at 90 percent, 88 percent last week, 78 percent last year and 89 percent on the five-year average. Corn in the dough stage is at 29 percent, compared to 14 percent last week, 33 percent a year ago and 31 percent on the five-year average. Conditions were unchanged as a whole at 70 percent good to excellent and 9 percent poor to very poor, but there was a 1 percent decrease in good and a 1 percent increase in the excellent category.

Kansas corn silking is at 90 percent and 35 percent in the dough stage. Conditions were up 1 percent to 59 percent good to excellent and unchanged at 11 percent poor to very poor.

U.S. soybeans blooming are at 81 percent, 71 percent last week, 84 percent last year and 83 percent on the five-year average. Soybeans setting pods were at 54 percent, 34 percent last week, 54 percent last year and 49 percent on the five-year average. Conditions were up 1 percent to 63 percent good to excellent and unchanged at 11 percent poor to very poor.

Kansas soybeans blooming were only at 61 percent with 28 percent setting pods. Kansas soybean conditions were left unchanged at 50 percent good to excellent and 9 percent poor to very poor.

I really thought we'd done it in. Guess not!

The 2015 Meadowlark Extension District Wheat Variety Plot survived minimal fall establishment, excess rainfall, stripe rust unlike ever seen before and head scab – all in the same season! The plot's average yield – 38.8 bushels/acre – isn't outstanding, but it also doesn't begin to tell the story of a year filled with challenges.

Eleven variety entries in this year's plot were planted last Oct. 30. The first bit of hard freezing weather hit just as the entries were beginning to poke through.

Spring saw some great growth, however, with close to 100 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre combining with a heavy 120 pound per acre seeding rate to really thicken the stand. Stripe rust set in and the plot was sprayed with a fungicide on May 5 to help combat the fungal disease pressure.

The real kicker came during flowering when almost constant moisture and conditions more than suitable for Fusarium Head Blight (head scab) really hurt grain quality.

Yields ranged from a low of 26 bushels/acre to a high of 58. Cedar topped the plot this year followed at 51 bushels per acre by Everest.

Results (in planting order) are: Fuller: 37 bu/A; WB-Grainfield: 35.2 bu/A; SY Wolf: 42.6 bu/A; WB-Cedar: 57.9 bu/A; WB-Redhawk: 33.2 bu/A; Everest: 51.4 bu/A; LCS Mint: 25.8 bu/A; Armour: 41.1 bu/A; Kan-Mark: 39.5 bu/A; LCS Wizard: 26.2 bu/a; and 1863: 37.5 bu/A.

The Ascend seed treatments showed a slight positive response when applied to Armour and a slight negative response when applied to 1863. Test weights ranged from 51.5 to 46.6 pounds.

Due to the extreme variability in conditions across the state this year, results should be used in combination with other yield data sources. These results are available under the Crops and Soils link at www.meadowlark.ksu.edu or by contacting your district office.

Kansas Crop Performance Test results are located at www.agronomy.k-state.edu/services/crop-performance-tests/winter-wheat/index.html

Special thanks to Bern Seed, Ag Partners Co-op and Doug and Leonard Edelman for their assistance with this year's plot.

Peony "Measles" If you've been trimming around your peonies and noticed that it seems to be all spotted up, red spot is your culprit. This summer's weather has been a boon to the disease that causes distinct, reddish-purple spots on the upper leaf surfaces.

The spots often coalesce and become large, reddish purple blotches on the upper leaf surfaces but are a light brown color when viewed from the underside of the leaves. Spots on stems will merge and form streaks that are reddish brown.

The best control for the disease is simple sanitation. Start by removing all diseased tissue, including stems, at the end of the growing season. Mulch that contains plant debris should also be discarded and then replaced with fresh mulch. Reducing the source of the inoculum will reduce the chances of another severe outbreak next year.

Audit machines after elections

A mathematician at Wichita State University who wants to check the accuracy of some Kansas voting machines after finding odd patterns in election returns says she is finding out just how difficult it can be to get government officials to turn over public documents.

Beth Clarkson, a certified quality engineer with a doctorate in statistics, said her calculations from the Kansas general election in November 2014 showed enough patterns to suspect that "some voting systems were being sabotaged."

That's strong language for a statistician.

Clarkson believed so strongly in her statistical research that she filed a lawsuit against the Sedgwick County Election Office and Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach earlier this year, asking for access to the paper records that voting machines record each time someone votes. The record does not identify the voter.

The voting machines that Sedgwick County uses have a paper record of the votes, known as Real Time Voting Machine Paper Tapes, which similar machines in Kansas and around the country do not have, it has been reported.

Because the software reportedly is proprietary, even election officials can't examine it and post-election audits can't be done, according to Pamela Smith, president of Verified Voting Foundation, a nonprofit agency whose mission is to safeguard elections in the digital age.

Smith's comments are unacceptable dribble. Post-election audits should be performed by independent inspectors.

Clarkson asked Sedgwick County to do a recount in 2013 but the time to file reportedly had expired. She then filed an open records request, but officials refused to provide the requested documents. She filed a lawsuit but the judge said the paper records were ballots, even though they didn't identify the voter, and thus were not subject to the state's open records law.

Clarkson filed for a recount after the November election, but Sedgwick County officials again refused, saying only a judge could release the records.

A lawsuit she filed in February against Kansas' attorney general — and later amended to add the Sedgwick County election commissioner and Kobach — sought a court order giving her access to a certain number of voting records to conduct an audit.

She mailed it to the Sedgwick County election commissioner and Kobach, who under state law had 30 days to respond. Neither responded, later saying they weren't aware they'd received the summons.

"I don't know if we did or not," said Eric Rucker, assistant secretary of state. "We are not going to comment on the status or the nature of this litigation at this time."

It hasn't been that long ago that all elections in Kansas were conducted with printed ballots, filled out with a No. 2 pencil and the results were tallied by people one ballot at a time.

I can remember because our newspaper in the 1980s - The Yates Center News - in Woodson County - had the contract with the county to print the official voter ballots.

When computerized voter machines came along as a new way pitched to save money by not paying local people to stay up late on election night and count the ballots one by one - there was a lot of problems with the machines' accuracy.

There's a lot of important functions in society that computers and machines have been given to do, to take the place of people.

I've never fully trusted the computerized voting machines. The only way to test their accuracy is to actually have trustworthy people with no political party interest count the ballots after elections one at a time.

It's a good idea to audit the computerized voting machines after elections, not before them. Sadly, some people with powerful political clout have been able to convince enough other people that we must announce election results quickly.

Of course, mistakes happen when work is rushed. There is no reason why more time can't be taken to ensure that election results are accurate.

The fact that the WSU statistician's call for an audit of the last general election in Kansas is being largely ignored by the Kansas Secretary of State's Office should be a red flag to anyone who cares about fair elections. David Powls

Who will be the next President?

By Glenn Mollette
Most Americans cannot tell you how many Republicans are running for President. If they are like me at this point, they don't care.

I suppose if 10 more people announce their candidacy we would just nod our heads sort of like Linda Blair did in the movie The Exorcist. If you didn't see the movie it wasn't pretty.

There is not much pretty right now about all the political rhetoric in our country. I guess we shrug our shoulders and say, "That's politics in America." Actually it's entertaining and will become more so. We have Lindsey Graham shattering his cell phone after Trump gave out his phone number. Rand Paul tried to become theatrical sawing up a copy of the tax code.

Ted Cruz recently called Mitch McConnell a liar and Mike Huckabee has the Jews at the door of a furnace if the Iran nuclear arms deal goes through.

Personally I don't like the idea of trusting anything to Iran either. If they get a bomb we will be the second people they will drop one on, right after Israel. All the while Trump's hairdo has not changed. If I had $10 billion dollars I would at least get a different haircut. While the Republicans get louder Hillary is still dealing with her email problems and Bernie Sanders is turning up the chase just a bit.

Trying to answer the question of who will be our next President is a little scary. Just exactly who will be our next Commander in Chief? Who really has the best ideas and the leadership ability to pull this country together and save us from going the way of Greece?

While politicians slug it out Americans are dealing with their own worries. How long will we have Social Security for retirement? How will Medicare ever pay all the growing medical bills? My wife recently had three tests done in one of our esteemed clinics and the bill was over $10,000! Fortunately our insurance paid $7,700 but that left us with a nice balance.

In my opinion, the three tests were worth about $2,300.00. I suspect we paid the bill and our insurance company was slammed for the $7,700 of gravy money. Stuff like this is happening all around. We have University Presidents in this nation making close to a $1 million a year while 22 year old kids try to pay back their $60,000 college loans. All the while many of the corporations and unions that promised to pay generous lifelong retirements plus all the medical bills are trying to renege or at least edit what they promised.

Many Americans watch the news and they know that ISIS and terrorism are growing. They know our jobs are leaving America. They know education is expensive. Even with Obamacare going to the doctor is often cost prohibitive. They know our country is being flooded with illegals and they have realized that in many cases our kids may not have the American life that our parents did.

In the midst of all this many Americans are depressed and feel hopeless and many don't give an iota about who is a Democrat or a Republican. They want somebody that gives them a feeling of hope. The man or woman who for the next 16 months can convince the average American that he or she can pull this country together and truly make us a leading and prosperous nation again will be our next President.

PLAINS FOLK: Back when well water almost went dry

By Jim Hoy
Seeing the film "When The Well Runs Dry," which I wrote about in my last column, got me to thinking about the severe drought of the 1950s and the trouble we had with water back on the ranch.

We drank, cooked with, bathed in and washed clothes with well water. Our well was hooked up to an electric pump, thanks to the Rural Electrification Administration. The water had a good taste, unlike that at my grandparents' house a quarter of a mile north, which was hard as could be with a strong mineral taste.

We had a pit in our front yard for dishwasher and the bathtub to drain into. One of my chores, once I got big enough, was to dip water to dip water out of the pit and pour it on the trees and flowers that my parents had planted in the yard. We didn't waste water because there was little to waste; our well wasn't very strong.

Besides the well at the house, we also had a well in the corral for our horses and milk cows. That well, although not great, never failed to provide enough stock water. But when the drought of the 1950s hit, our house well provided barely enough water for drinking, and Mother could wash dishes only once a day. Water for the ringer clothes washing machine had to be drawn over several days.

When the house well began to take a long time to replenish, Dad decided to drill another one. Although he was not what I would call an ardent believer, he did think it wise to call in the local water witch for determining where to dig.

The dowser picked a spot about 50 yards south of the house, and also three other sites for livestock water in pastures within half a mile from the house. There was water in all four wells, but not very much, although three of them had enough for windmills to be installed.

Because the new house well was a disappointment, Dad decided to have another one drilled. I don't remember who drilled the previous four wells, but the well driller for this one, from Sumner County, was an entertaining character.

My maternal grandparents were from Conway Springs. When the earlier wells proved weak, Grandpa Rice suggested this particular driller because of his prowess as a water witch. Besides telling colorful stories, this new driller also chewed enormous plugs of Beechnut tobacco. There were spent wads all over our east yard for months (maybe years) after he had left.

As I recall, he used a pair of pliers rather than a forked tree branch to do his witching, which indicated a spot just east of the house that he guaranteed had abundant water.

"How deep?" Dad asked. (Any water witch worth his salt — an apropos expression in this instance — could predict both depth of well and flow of water.)

"110 feet," he said.

"Then it will be salt water," Dad said.

"Oh, no," said the driller, "It's sweet water."

"Anything over 70 feet around here is salty," Dad told him.

"If it's not good water, you don't owe me a dime," was the reply.

So he dug. He hit water somewhere around 112 or 115 feet, but it was full of salt. He left without a check, and we were left with our old well that we had to nurse along until the drought finally ended. And a yard full of slowly deteriorating wads of chewing tobacco.

Various kinds of Insurance suggested for college days

By Ken Selzer, CPA, Kansas Commissioner of Insurance

Many of us have watched our children head off to college. Remembering to pack everything they need is always a challenge. This is especially true when it comes to checking off "insurance" on the needs list. Although not a physical item to be included in the packing, insurance for your student is a necessary item to consider.

Our staff at the Kansas Insurance Department, as well as the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC), compiled the following insurance tips for both parents and college students to consider for the Fall 2015 semester.

Auto Insurance - If your student is taking a car to school, check with your local agent about the current vehicle insurance policy. Ask about the rates for the college's city and state before deciding whether to keep the student's car on the family's auto policy.

Also, make sure your insurance company is notified each semester if your student maintains good grades, which might lead to a good student discount on the vehicle's premium.

If your student is involved in an auto crash, the new WreckCheck mobile smartphone application from the NAIC outlines what to do immediately following the crash, taking you step by step through creating an accident report. The app is free and available in your smartphone app store.

Identity Theft - With the current concern over cybersecurity, identity theft coverage is certainly a consideration. Identity theft insurance is limited, however. It can't protect parents or students from becoming victims of identity theft, and it doesn't cover your direct financial losses. It does give coverage for the cost of reclaiming a person's financial identity - such as the costs of making phone calls, making copies, mailing documents, taking time off from work without pay (lost wages) and hiring an attorney.

Parents, check first to see if your homeowners policy includes identity theft insurance while the student is away from the family home. If a student is renting an apartment, ask if his/her renters insurance covers identity theft, or if that could be added to the policy.

Renters Insurance - Parents, check with your insurance agents to determine whether your family homeowners policies extend coverage to property taken to school. If not, consider a renters policy.

Your student should realize that a landlord's insurance policy doesn't cover a renter's personal belongings.

Also, make sure to take photos or video of the possessions, and store an inventory list in a secure location.

To print an easy-to-use home inventory checklist and get more tips about disaster preparedness, visit www.ksinsurance.org. Smartphone users can complete an electronic property inventory by using the myHOMEScr.APP.book application from the NAIC.

Finally, before packing a student's belongings into a car or rental vehicle, make sure to talk with your insurance agent about whether the contents are insured. Ask if your homeowners insurance policy will cover the belongings in the student's car or rental trailer before he/she gets to campus.

Health Insurance - Nearly all young adults up to age 26 can now stay on their parents' health insurance plans because of federal health reform legislation. Marital status, financial dependency, enrollment in school, or location don't affect that provision.

At school, students should have copies of their insurance cards and know how/where to seek medical treatment.

If the student is insured through a network of medical providers, check to see if he/she will be in or out of the network service area while at school. That will make a difference in how much you or your student will have to pay for out-of-pocket charges.

Dental and Eye Care - Routine dental care and eye care generally are not included as part of a health insurance plan, although many will cover non-cosmetic dental work that is medically necessary because of an accident. Some plans may include limited coverage for dental procedures, such as the removal of wisdom teeth, if performed in a hospital.

Also, most health insurance plans do not cover expenses related to periodic eye examinations, glasses or contact lenses, but most will cover medical care as a result of an eye disease or injury.

For more information about auto, home, life and health insurance options, as well as tips for choosing the coverage that is right for you and your family, visit our department's website at www.ksinsurance.org, or call our Consumer Assistance Representatives at 800-432-2484.

New "Clean Power Plan" announced

WASHINGTON - President Barack Obama has announced the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's final Clean Power Plan, which will reportedly cut U.S. carbon pollution from the power sector by 870 million tons, or 32 percent below 2005 levels, in 2030.

Power plants are the largest drivers of climate change in the United States, according to the government's news release, accounting for about one-third of all carbon pollution emissions, but there were no national limits placed on carbon pollution until now.

The Clean Power Plan accelerates the transition to a clean energy future, which is happening even faster than expected - which means carbon and air pollution are already decreasing, improving public health year by year, according to the government's news release.

By 2030, the plan will cut carbon pollution from the power sector by nearly a third and additional reductions will come from pollutants that can create dangerous soot and smog, translating to significant health benefits for the American people.

By 2030, emissions of sulfur dioxide from power plants will be 90 percent lower and emissions of nitrogen oxides will be 72 percent lower, compared to 2005 levels.

Americans, according to the news release, will avoid up to 90,000 asthma attacks and spend up to 300,000 more days in the office or the classroom, instead of sick at home. And up to 3,600 families will be spared the grief of losing a loved one too soon.

Today, according to the EPA, the United States uses three times more wind and 20 times more solar energy than it did in 2009, and the solar industry added jobs 10 times faster than the rest of the economy. It safeguards energy reliability by setting common-sense, achievable state-by-state goals that build on a rapidly growing clean energy economy and gives states and utilities the time and flexibility they need to meet their goals.

Final rule, fact sheets and details about the Clean Power Plan, the final standards for new, modified and reconstructed sources and the proposed federal plan are available at: <http://www2.epa.gov/cleanpowerplan>

Ag Week Recap...

U.S. grain sorghum headed was at 57 percent compared to 45 percent last week, 54 percent last year and 53 percent on the five-year average. Grain sorghum coloring was at 29 percent, 23 percent last week, 34 percent last year and 30 percent on the five-year average. Conditions were unchanged at 68 percent good to excellent, but 1 percent worse at 7 percent poor to very poor.

Kansas has only 33 percent headed and 1 percent coloring. Conditions were 1 percent better at 67 percent good to excellent and 5 percent poor to very poor, left unchanged.

Winter wheat harvest is at 93 percent complete now, compared to 85 percent last week, 89 percent last year and 85 percent on the five-year average. Southern plains are done now and Nebraska is at 93 percent with South Dakota at 76 percent. Spring wheat harvest is now at 8 percent complete, compared to 2 percent last week, 3 percent last year and 11 percent on the five-year average.

December corn is now only $.14 away from the contract low at $3.62½, set back in mid-June with resistance at $3.88. November soybeans have around $.40 to reach its contract low of $8.95¼. Resistance there is seen at $9.50.

The September KC wheat broke through its contract low last week and continues to make new lows daily, while the September Chicago wheat still has some $.30 to go to reach the contract low at $4.69¼.

This week's rain is forecasted at one to three inches from North Dakota down into Kansas and then east over most of the Corn Belt. The 6-10 day maps show mostly normal precipitation with below normal temperatures for the entire Corn Belt.

JHHS coach Caleb Wick (shown above, standing) spots Wyatt Roles as he works on the bench press during a weight room session earlier this summer. Roles is one of the players Wick noted is building back up after an injury-riddled 2014 season and he is hoping that upward trend will apply to his team as well this fall.

Weight programs help athletes prep for high school season

While high school athletes get pulled in several different directions through the summer, one place they are all likely to congregate is in the weight room.

That has been the case for the Holton, Jackson Heights and Royal Valley athletes since late May and the weight rooms have remained full and busy up until these waning days of the summer.

It is an important program for athletes to be a part of, according to the three football coaches that run the high school weight rooms in Jackson County, and for RVHS football coach Jacob Lott, it's also important in helping him build on the foundation he started laying down when he took his position at Royal Valley last summer.

"We just kind of kept with what we've been doing, help complete our program and reinforce what we did during the school year and what we started in the summer last year," Lott said. "It really is a development process that I'm in with them from the ground floor, to see them reach their goals."

Helping with that, the summer weights program at Royal Valley has grown a little bit from last summer, with an average of 50 to 60 kids attending per day this summer. A lot of that growth, Lott said, has come from increased attendance out of the middle school athletes.

The Panthers have been going strong since the start of June, working four days per week, and just recently wrapped up their summer weights sessions. While Lott noted he didn't change much about the program, he did say there was a focus to try and address some of the weaknesses of the athletes over June and July.

"I try to emphasize exercises that attack a lot of our weaknesses while still getting an overall athletic workout in, so we really emphasized the legs and quick movement exercises," Lott said.

While Lott noted the Panthers had a good group of seniors setting the tone in the weight room, he noted he is always looking for more. He said he wants the athletes to push harder and achieve more each time out and that's part of why he tries to get as many athletes as possible in the weight room over the off-season.

"No matter what sport you play or where you are in your career right now, there's nothing wrong with being stronger, faster and more athletic," Lott said.

For the Cobras, that principle especially applies with the lack of numbers in the weight room and, potentially, on the field this fall.

Currently, JHHS football coach Caleb Wick has seen roughly between 20 to 25 kids per day, which is a little lower than what Jackson Heights had last year.

Given that and a potential drop in roster size, the focal points for the Cobras' weight room were pretty apparent.

"We're not going to have very many kids, so we have to be in great shape, so conditioning has been a key factor," Wick said.

Flexibility has been another focus related to that because of all the injuries JHHS had to deal with last season. Building up that flexibility helps give the athletes a sturdy base to improve upon and help those injured athletes make some headway in the summer.

While the Cobra athletes we're also working out four days per week earlier in the summer, Wick made some changes in the weight room after his team's football camp.

After talking with some colleagues, Wick shifted to a three-day workout program focused around the three main lifts (squat, clean and bench), due to the results it has yielded for those colleagues' programs.

It has taken some time, but Wick says the Cobra athletes are starting to buy into the change and get back to the level of production they were at earlier in the summer, which is something the coach said he will continue to harp on until right before the start of school.

Given the results for other schools (Olpe, Silver Lake, Holton, etc.), Wick believes the benefits of the summer weights program should be pretty evident to his players and even more so after seeing the results from the past couple of years.

"There's a distinct correlation between being strong, being athletic and then being successful in sports. That's the big selling point to our kids right now," Wick said.

That is starting to sink in, though, and affect the work in the weight room over the summer and the coach said he is excited to see what the results will yield on the field this fall.

Holton has seen some pretty good results come out of the work the Wildcat athletes have put in during the summer in recent seasons and HHS football coach Brooks Barta has certainly had a hand in that, but he noted the athletes' attitudes have also helped them get the most out of the experience.

"I don't think we could have a more positive environment because everybody who's there wants to be there," Barta said.

There is a certain necessity to it as well, though, as Barta echoed some of Wick's sentiments on the less noticeable advantages.

"If they want to perform and perform well, they have to do that. If they want to stay healthy, it's a big part of staying healthy," Barta said.

While Holton got some new back equipment in to diversify its workouts and balance between the pushes and the pulls, Barta noted his routine stays the same through most of the summer and it draws a crowd.

Vacations can take a chunk out of attendance, but Holton has averaged roughly 70 athletes per day in the weight room, with sessions four days per week through this coming Friday.

Over the course of the summer, Barta said he can get an idea of who has been making the most of their time and how that will translate to the field in the fall, with the Wildcats sticking to a tried and true formula.

"There are always little quirks and little changes, but we're really striving for a range of motion. That's become a new thing and something we've always, I think, been pretty good at is working our range of motion, flexibility, strength and power, which produces speed," Barta said.

The coach noted he is always excited to see the growth of the athletes over a five or six year period and this summer has been no different, as he noted he is happy with the results he's seen.

All three coaches will see how that plays out this fall when practices start up for the high school season on Monday, Aug. 17.

Area athletes excel at Sunflower State Games

The 26th annual Sunflower State Games in Topeka recently came to a close with the third and final weekend of competition taking place at the end of July.

While one event (mountain biking) did get delayed until Oct. 10 due to weather, it was another overall success as the event drew 8,106 participants in 2015. Participation records were set in badminton, bowling, cricket, darts and trap/skeet shooting this year.

In total, 48 competitive events were offered in more than 35 locations around the Topeka and Shawnee County area. Jackson County was well represented in those events and listed below is a look at some of the area athletes who competed and placed in the Sunflower State Games this year.

Next year's dates have already been set, too, as the SSG will be held from July 8 through July 24 in Topeka in 2016.

Physical racing, exciting finishes stand out in recent action at Thunder Hill

Hot action on the track produced a great night of racing for the fans in attendance at Thunder Hill Speedway last Saturday.

This season has been like the Oklahoma Land Rush of 1893. All you have to do as a racer is show up and you might have a chance at getting a victory. It makes for exciting racing that the fans love to see.

In the IMCA Modified feature, Justin Becker jumped out to the early lead. Becker held the top spot for several laps, but there were plenty of drivers making a run at him and looking to take his spot.

Josh Everhart and Corey Burch were two of those drivers. Burch was making his first appearance at Thunder Hill this season and Everhart was making his second start of the year. It looked like those two were seasoned veterans, though, watching them slice their way through to Becker.

Once at Becker's back bumper, the three drivers would mix it up for the fans. Burch took the lead from Becker and then Everhart took the lead from Burch.

While the drivers at the front mixed it up, there were several battles going on right behind them. Tom Charles and Steven Bowers Jr. had a great battle for several laps, while Mike Peterslie was on the move at one point and Corey Lagroon was also on a run to the front.

Burch and Everhart got by Becker and battled side-by-side for what seemed like 100 laps. The two swapped the top spot at the stripe a few times before it all came down to the white flag lap.

As the two came to the white flag, it was a barn burner. Everhart took a slight advantage in turn one and came away with an even bigger advantage heading out of turn two. As the leaders entered turn three, Everhart took the line away from Burch and slowed his momentum. It was enough for Everhart to speed out of turn four for the victory.

The win was Everhart's first win of the season and he became the fourth different feature winner of the season.

Burch, who put on a great race, finished in second after starting 12th.

The overall points leader, Bowers, finished in the 3rd spot after starting 11th, while fourth went to Becker and rounding out the top five was Tom Charles, who started in the 10th spot.

Fans might be witnessing one of the best dirt track seasons a racer has ever had in the IMCA Northern Sport Mods.

Tyler Frye came into the night with seven straight wins on the year. That's right, Thunder Hill Speedway has had seven races and Frye has won all seven. The question remains: Can he win every single race this season?

Saturday night's crowd watched as Bryce Frakes and Bret Degand drove out and battled at the front of the main event to start, with Degand winning the battle for supremacy at the front.

Degand held on for a strong run, but Frye was flexing his muscle once again as he started 11th and quickly ran up to Degand and passed by for the lead.

Luke Stallbaumer gave chase and followed Frye to the front. Stallbaumer did not lose touch with Frye and gave it his best effort. A few late race yellows, though, bunched the field up and put Stallbaumer in a battle with Shawn Harker. The back and forth battle between those two drivers allowed Frye to open it up on the way to another win.

Frye scooted to win number eight on the season. He has the most wins at Thunder Hill Speedway in 2015, in any division. His domination has been unrivaled this season and it's a run that many have never witnessed before. Currently, Frye leads the track points and the IMCA National Points at this time. Another win certainly wouldn't hurt those efforts.

Harker got by Stallbaumer for the second-place finish. Stallbaumer settled for 3rd, Degand had his best finish of the season, taking fourth, and fifth went to Bryan Rigby, who is currently second in the overall points standings.

The IMCA Stock Car feature was a crazy one on Saturday night.

Kyle Stallbaumer put his stock car at the point position early in the event and he kept the lead before Bryan Rigby took it away. After a restart, Rigby went back out in front of the field and that's where it got wild.

Heading into turn one, contact was made between the top two cars. The contact continued out of turn two and down the back straight and that's when the melee erupted.

Kyle Stallbaumer ended up coming off the top of the track and into the back straight wall. Rigby, the leader, suffered considerable damage and after a quick discussion both drivers were black flagged from the event.

The lead was then taken by Jeff Tubbs as the race got restarted. Tubbs and Matt Haid, the current points leader, decided to run several laps side-by-side on the speedway. After the start of the race, this was exactly the kind of racing the fans wanted to see; good, hard-nosed, clean racing. It stayed that way until late in the race.

Tubbs was trying to slow down the momentum of Haid and went to shut the door (take Haid's line) on him heading into turn three. Tubbs had the lead and it was close when he dropped to the bottom of the track and contact between the two leaders occurred. Tubbs spun out, leading to a yellow. Haid was black flagged for rough driving and Tubbs was sent to the rear for bringing out the yellow.

All of this action handed the lead to Mat Stallbaumer. Stallbaumer, who has two wins on the season in the Stock Car division, had no problem nailing down win number three as he sailed to the victory after the restart.

Greg Deters motored his way to second, third went to Shaylon Holloway after starting 12th. Gene Stigall started 11th and finished fourth and the fifth spot went to Leif Weyer in his first night out at Thunder Hill.

During the 2015 season at Thunder Hill Speedway, only one driver in the IMCA Hobby Stock class has managed multiple wins, Tyler Hinrichs. After Saturday night's race, Hinrichs had to make some room for Jacob Olmstead.

The previous week, Olmstead got his first win of the season at Thunder Hill. Last Saturday, starting from the seventh position, it didn't take him long to get to the front and wrestle the lead away from Mallory Stiffler.

Gardener's Corner

Rain and rabbits; blessings and banes

Coe - Bean

Konrad and Amber Coe and Ted and Jo Ann Bean are pleased to announce the engagement of their children. Rachele Coe and Aaron Bean are planning an August wedding. The bride-to-be is a 2012 graduate of Jackson Heights High School and is currently attending Kansas State University majoring in animal science.

The future groom is a 2009 graduate of Thomas Moore Prep-Marian in Hays and graduated from Kansas State University in 2014 with a degree in construction science and management.

By Sandra M. Siebert

By this time every year I have usually established my watering routine.

I get up in the morning, eat breakfast and go out to the garden, buckets or watering wand in hand, to refresh the particular plants on that day's schedule.

Early in July, when it looked like the rain might be drying up, I wrote down the schedule: blueberries, peppers and lettuce on Monday; tomatoes and beans on Tuesday; and etc. Although not the ideal way to water your plants (my Master Gardeners training taught me that you should water plants "when they need it"), developing a schedule means I can get everything watered at least once a week without going nuts.

I left the weekend free of watering tasks and any significant rainfall resets the schedule.

I can usually do other things, such as picking tomatoes or weeding (there's always weeding), while I'm waiting for buckets to fill or waiting to switch the hose to another row.

This summer, however, rainfall has not been as scarce and I've not been rigidly on schedule. Is a third of an inch of rain sufficient to relieve me of watering duties for a while? That depends on when we got the last third of an inch of rain, how hot it's going to be and how lazy... I mean... "busy" I am at the time.

If I could get the weeds cleared up - crabgrass has taken over my neatly, mulched paths - the garden would not feel busy at all, and I'd happily water after that third of an inch. The tomatoes are doing well but not filling the kitchen counter waiting to be frozen/canned/dehydrated and the green beans have barely begun to trickle in.

The pole beans are still recovering from the rabbits and deer. By now the pole beans should be taking a break from their early prolific flow and getting ready for the August resurrection, which at times has brought a larger harvest than the early production. Often, by August I'm starting to have trouble keeping up with the beans and tomatoes and watering.

But we keep getting rain sufficient enough to make me question the need to water.

Yesterday the bean harvest was... um... small. I picked six beans off the two rows of pole beans.

Six. Between the slow start in the cool, cloudy latter half of May, and hungry deer and rabbits, their production has been sparse, to say the least. Usually, once the pole beans start climbing the trellis, they aren't as palatable to the critters and I can remove protective barriers. For some reason, deer, at least one of them, have been unable to resist the beans. Not that the rabbits haven't done their fair share of snacking.

What's up with the rabbits, anyway? Usually, we see one or two rabbits when we head out in the morning or evening. This summer we see easily half a dozen at a time. I see you nodding your head. They seem to be multiplying everywhere.

However, I know deer are the main culprits in munching the pole beans because the vines are bare of leaves about deer-head-height. The flimsy barriers I put up a few weeks ago seem to be somewhat effective against the deer and the beans are flowering and beginning to produce. But I won't have the buckets of beans I usually get.

Critters even ate off my young okra plants. So, while two or three have bravely rallied, the plants are less than a foot tall and never going to get big enough to produce pods.

And it looks like squash bugs are trying to take out one of the watermelon patches before I ever get a ripe watermelon. Or maybe not. In early evening, the leaves no longer look wilted, so maybe the vines have enough life that the melons already on them will mature. I'm crossing my fingers that they won't find the other watermelon patch. Should I mention the sweet potatoes? Rabbits again.

On top of this, a raccoon or squirrel - probably a family of them

- picked one peach tree clean before I could. Clean. Not one peach left. I got most of the peaches off the other tree before they did, but they broke two branches before I picked the tree clean, and another after the tree was bare of fruit. While I was waiting for the summer apples to ripen, some critter, probably the same one, cleaned those trees, as well - after breaking another branch.

This leaves me feeling a bit injured. It feels like an affront to my gardening prowess, like the universe looked down upon me and determined that I'm a bit too confident and smug and need to be taken down a notch. (Am I? I don't feel particularly smug. Not now anyway.)

As if filling the garden paths with crabgrass weren't enough of an assault.

It would be easy to complain, but I'm not. It's always something. Some years the squash bugs are tame and others, well, the deer keep eating the beans... and the melons... and okra and... And then I just have to laugh.

At least the tomatoes are doing quite well. The tomatillos are phenomenal. The bush beans I planted in mid-July are protected from both rabbits and deer. I did get some peaches, many more than last year.

Tiny kale plants and beets have sprouted and the baby brussels sprouts are looking good. So far, it looks like the fall garden will thrive.

And I don't have to spend my days watering, because we had rain in July. Rain. In July.

Who's complaining?

Search continues here for wanted man

The search for Danny Ross Adams, who fled from Jackson County Sheriff's Officers on Saturday, continues, and no new updates have been reported, according to Jackson County Sheriff Tim Morse.

Adams, 25, is wanted on an outstanding warrant from Wyandotte County, it has been reported.

Adams was last seen near 142nd and T Road in Jackson County after he fled on foot from a Jackson County Sheriff's Deputy.

Morse reported that two major searches were conducted Saturday in dense, heavily wooded areas after Adams was sighted, but he fled again and was not captured.

On Sunday, Morse reported that Adams was suspected to be enroute to or in the Meriden, Topeka or Denison areas.

According to the Kansas Department of Corrections, Adams was convicted of burglary in 2012 in Wyandotte County. He is an absconder, which means he is no longer in contact with his parole or probation officer.

Adams is described as having dark brown hair and red facial hair, including a goatee, glasses and was last seen wearing black pants, a black ball cap and a red shirt tied around his waist. He also has several tattoos. He is six-foot tall and weighs 190 pounds.

While Adams remains at large, Morse advises residents to keep their doors locked and their keys out of their vehicles.

There has been no indication that Adams is dangerous, however, if sighted do not approach and contact law enforcement immediately, Morse said.

Members of the public who see someone matching Adams' description are asked to contact the sheriff's office at 785-364-2251.

New website being built for county

By Ali Holcomb

A new website is being built and designed for Jackson County after a 2-1 vote of the commission.

Jackson County Commissioners Janet Zwonitzer and Rob Ladner approved a motion to enter into an agreement with maWebCenters of North Carolina to create a new website for the county. Commissioner Bill Elmer opposed the motion.

maWebCenters has offered advanced Internet design and hosting services to small and medium-sized businesses since 1992. In addition to the United States, maWebCenters serves customers in Canada, Mexico, the Bahamas, United Kingdom, Ireland, China, Macau, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Australia.

The commissioners said they want the new site to be easier for the public to research county information and to navigate.

Commissioner Elmer said he was concerned with the county receiving services from a web design company located out of the state.

The initial cost to build the new site is $3,859 with a $60 set up fee. The county will pay a $60 maintenance fee every month, or $720 every year, and the county's contract with maWebCenters will be monthly.

The county has operated a website for less than 10 years, and it is provided and serviced by Manatron. The county pays an annual fee of $1,430 to the company for the basic website, it was reported.

In other business, during the July 20 meeting, the commission:

- * Heard a weekly report from Eric Fritz and Earl Bahret, road and bridge co-supervisors. Fritz reported that crews are chip-and-sealing the road leading to the back of Holton Community Hospital. After the road is complete, additional roads set to be chip-and-sealed include 214th Road, 190th Road and S Road.

- * Discussed a request to repair 254th Road east of U.S. Highway 75. Fritz asked to wait until the chip-and-seal projects are complete before addressing that concern.

- * Learned from Commissioner Elmer that he received complaints that 118th Road was closed during is a part of) expanded to five events this season. That pushed the total prize purse to $50,000 and the overall winner of the Potawatomi Cup, which will be awarded at Firekeeper Golf Course, will receive a $6,000 bonus.

While Towner said a lot was learned after the first year of the tournament and plans for the second year of the event are solidifying quicker, the biggest change may be in accessibility to both fans and players.

At the 2015 event, admission will be free to the public, but local families will also have the chance to get more up close and personal with the golfers as the tournament is looking for volunteers to host the Symetra Tour players for the duration of the event this year.

Currently, Towner said the course has arranged housing for golfers with 30 area families. Any additional families interested in hosting a tour pro can visit the course's website (www.firekeepergolf.com) and click on the Symetra Tour volunteer link or contact Robert Jones for more information at (785) 224-8198 or nejrjk67@hotmail.com.

With a concert by George Thorogood and The Destroyers scheduled to close out the event as well, the Prairie Band Casino and Resort Charity Classic looks to be a bigger and better affair in 2015 for everyone involved.

The tournament will be held Sept. 11, 12 and 13 with 144 golfers from 30 countries competing in the event. This season marks the 35th year of competition on the Symetra Tour, with the top 10 money winners each season qualifying for membership on the LPGA Tour.

Hoyt's Fourth of July celebration.

- * Learned from Chad Phillips, head custodian, that all of the new lobby lights have been installed at the Courthouse. The work was completed by Montgomery Electric for $7,207.21, which includes the cost of materials and installation. New exit lights, priced at about $52 each, were also installed.

- * Phillips and the commissioners also discussed the driveway on the east side of the Courthouse. It was noted that if the city repairs the curb on that side of the Courthouse in the next few years, the county could change the slope of the circle drive, as well as install a sidewalk.

- * Discussed the historical pictures set to be displayed at the Courthouse with Phillips. The pictures will be framed soon with space below the picture to include a description of the photo.

- * Met with Cindy Hower of Kellerman's Insurance, who stated that insurance to cover the radio tower that the county may purchase is estimated at $400 per year. The tower is located on Kansas Highway 79 and K Road.

- * Learned from Jackson County Clerk Kathy Mick that she met with a representative of GeoSpan recently to discuss its services. The company flies over the county and takes aerial photos. The photos are then used to determine if there are any unknown buildings in the county that are not being taxed.

- * Met with David Elsbury, KANZA Mental Health and Guidance

Center CEO. Elsbury said KANZA is not requesting a funding increase for the 2016 budget year.

Elsbury noted that KANZA recently hired a psychologist that will begin this month. There is still one more staffing position to fill.

KANZA administrators continue to pursue the purchase of the Moser building, and, in the future, mental health services are expected to be extended in Jackson County.

Elsbury also reported that Wyandotte Mental Health Center in Kansas City is opening 12 adult beds for involuntary admissions who are not able to stay at the Osawatomie State Hospital when it is at full capacity.

- * Met in executive session with County Counselor Alex Morrissey, Sheriff Tim Morse and Undersheriff Darrel Chapman for 25 minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

- * Left their chambers to view K and 116th Roads, the recycling center and the entrance at Banner Creek Reservoir.

The commissioners agreed to leave the fence at the entrance to Banner Creek Reservoir as is and determined that the gutters at the recycling center still need more repairs.

- * Signed a payroll change notice for Andy Caviness, who was promoted to sergeant at the Jackson County Sheriff's Office.

- * Adjourned the meeting.

Potawatomi Methodist By Ilene Dick

On Sunday, Aug. 2, at Potawatomi United Methodist Church, following greetings and announcements, a brief memorial service was held in memory of Robert Hall, whose one-year death date was July 31. Lily Hall and son, Joe Redlightning, provided beautiful bookmarks commemorating Robert. Joe and Pastor Howard passed out the bookmarks, along with a neatly wrapped cookie, having memorial date and scripture attached. Pastor Howard read Psalm 100 and offered prayer.

Added to the prayer list were Marilee Bernart-Shenk having an emergency appendectomy and doing well, and Earline Pugh recently having an infected toe amputated.

Acolyte was Laura Schreiber. LeAnna Meeks read the scripture from Acts 2:22. Music was provided by Tina Pugh, Ilene Dick and Ann W. with hymns "I Surrender All," "Fill My Cup, Lord" and "He Touched Me."

Ann gave the special from the Upper Room by sharing the article titled "No Higher Love."

Offertory ushers were Keith Bell and Jim Shenk.

The sermon text was from Mark 10:46-52, with the title "Blind." The scripture tells of Bartimaeus, a beggar who was blind. Beggars were common in those days, and people passed him by. Jesus reached out to heal his blindness.

There were three observations:

1. Growth happens by spurts.

2. Growth occurs at God's will.
3. Growth can be sanitized by us and by others.

Bartimaeus prayed for healing. When seeing Jesus, he shouted out, and told Jesus he wanted to see. He recognized who Jesus was, and Jesus restored his sight.

We must find encouragement in the name of Jesus. He is the witness of the church. Growth requires action. Faith heals as we act in obedience to God's word. The story of Bartimaeus is good news.

Pastor Howard's sermon next Sunday will be "Work In Christian Perspective." Everyone is welcome.

Shayne and Brian Dorris spent a couple of days with their grandparents, Judy and Donnie Thoman.

Judy and Donnie Thoman attended the talent show during the Jackson County 4-H Fair and watched Shayne perform a skit.

Jim and Marjean Shenk enjoyed watching their granddaughter, McKenzie, show her bucket calf at the Shawnee County 4-H Fair. McKenzie received grand champion for showmanship. Congratulations, McKenzie.

The Shenks were thankful for the prayers for Marilee as she underwent the appendectomy.

Lily Hall and her children visited the gravesite of her late husband, Robert Hall, on Friday, July 31. They enjoyed sharing the memorial bookmarks and cookies with the church family.

Pam and Leon Daugherty enjoyed attending the early birthday celebration of their grandsons, Christopher and Kolby Roush, on Friday, July 31, given by their mother, Loretta Roush. Christopher and Kolby will be 14 years old on Aug. 5. Happy birthday, Christopher and Kolby.

Cecil and Betty Bowser were among family and friends attending the wedding of Zachery Bowser and Lauren Hower on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 1, at the Trinity Lutheran Church of Holton. Congratulations and best wishes to Zach and Lauren.

Cecil and Betty Bowser also enjoyed having lunch with family at the home of Steve and Celia Bowser on Sunday, Aug. 2. They enjoyed watching the newlyweds opening their gifts.

Circleville News

By Jeannie Arnold

David and Linda Mitchell recently took a trip to Helena, Mont. to visit their daughter, Deana Austria, and her family. They went to Mount Rushmore on their way. They spent three weeks in Montana and did some fishing with the kids. They drove through Wind Canyon in Wyoming and thought that was real impressive. They reported having a great trip.

Ed and Liz Rostetter hosted a get-together for family and friends in honor of their children being home on Saturday, July 25. Ed and Nichole Rostetter and their children, Evelyn and Amelia, were here from Hawaii and Alisha and Aaron Friess were here from Roswell, N.M.. It was a chance for all their friends who could make it to see them.

Several have been busy this past week with the 4-H fair and parade. The Circleville Saddle Club members rode in the parade on Wednesday evening.

I got to celebrate my birthday a day early with relatives on Thursday, July 30. Dinner guests at our house were Maxine Lewis of Holton, Lori Burdick of Circleville, Winnie Krueger and Marcia Wade of Topeka and Karen Noland of Doylestown, Pa. We all enjoyed the afternoon visiting and then had cake and ice cream before they had to head home.

Barbara Hutchinson attended the funeral service for Ramona Riederer at Mercer Funeral Home on Thursday, July 30. Ramona graduated from Circleville High School in 1950.

Bob and I went to the home of Maxine Lewis in Holton on Saturday, Aug. 1, to visit with relatives. Maxine's company included her granddaughter, Jynda Murray, husband, Mike, and children, Mattie, Andrew and Jadrien. They came from Blackwell, Okla. for a weekend visit before school starts. Merlin and Judy Arnold were also there, and we all attended the Arnold family reunion on Sunday, Aug. 2, that was held at the EUM church in Holton.

The Circleville Saddle Club is sponsoring the third annual URA/IRA rodeo at the arena on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 7 and 8.

Circleville UMC

By Sue Wichman

Sunday, Aug. 2, was another warm summer morning as the congregation gathered at the Circleville United Methodist Church.

"Rock of Ages" was the recorded prelude as Katharyn and Isaac Dur-yea lighted the altar candles.

Lay Speaker Joyce Immenschuh extended the welcome and asked for announcements. The congregation was reminded of the administrative board meeting next Sunday, Aug. 9. The Soldier Group Ministry Chuck Wagon Supper and Variety Show will be held on Aug. 25 at Circleville.

David Allen served as song leader, using the recorded accompaniment. Sunday's hymns were "I Surrender All," "There is a Fountain Filled with Blood" and "Fill My Cup, Lord."

Joyce's sermon, "Faith," was based on the Gospel lesson, John 6: 24-35. "Jesus is asking us to believe and trust in God, as the captain of our ship, directing us in all the foggy situations of life."

Having faith is to receive the gifts God offers, believe in God's promises and accept God's work of salvation as a gift.

Verlin Wichman received the morning offering before the service closed with "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

The Sunday School class will not meet next Sunday, Aug. 9, due to the administrative board meeting at 9 a.m. The class will have the final lesson from the book of Esther on Aug. 16.

Netawaka Seniors

By Mary E. Edwards

The Netawaka Seniors met on Thursday, July 30, for their monthly lunch meeting. Fredrika Mullins asked the blessing before the bountiful meal.

We had been planning to go as a group to a Kansas City baseball game. We agreed to cancel that for this year due to the hot weather. We plan to go out to dinner and a movie for our next meeting, Aug. 27.

Six people, out of the 10 attending, played pitch, a good activity for a hot afternoon.

Lucky Stars 4-H

By Shayne Dorris

The Lucky Stars 4-H Club met on Monday, June 8, 2015. After opening activities, the gavel was turned over to Madeline Montgomery for the program portion.

Timber Wilson talked about forestry. Logan Altenburg spoke about forestry as well. Taygen Altenburg discussed bicycling, and Elizabeth Schuster made bird feeders.

The club also met on July 13, 2015. Roll call was "What is your favorite project?" The meeting song was "Down By The Bay."

For the program portion of the meeting, Sophia Mellenbruch talked about caring for sheep and prepping them for the fair. Maverick Mellenbruch told club members about photography. Ahnna Mellenbruch named some ways to stay safe during Shooting Sports. Phoenix Mellenbruch told club members about her food project.

The next meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 11.

Denison Bible Church

By Esther L. Hall

There weren't many in Denison Bible Church on July 26, but "where two or three are gathered," the Lord is there also.

Tim and Elizabeth Miles were visiting on Sunday morning. The "Wandering Willows" had a good and safe trip to and from the Black Hills of South Dakota last week.

Joel B. and Youth Under Construction member Dakota J. collected Sunday morning's offerings. Special music, "Before The Throne Of God Above," was sung by Judy Heckart.

Pastor Tim's sermon, "Blessed Assurance," was based on the text of Ephesians 1. Many philosophers had/have their own opinions regarding philosophy vs. theology and the expectation of another life; a life with Jesus Christ.

In every season of our lives, we still have some questions of assurance. How do I know for sure that I am saved and that I am His and He is mine?

In Ephesians, Paul was writing to the common people who were striving to understand and be enlightened by God. He prayed for their enlightenment. Man seeks assurance and wants to know the truth, but then again, they don't want to know the truth. The gift of the assurance of our faith is beyond our understanding.

Assurance isn't something that comes naturally. We are sinners and grace comes through understanding that Christ died on the cross for us. Our lives should be focused on God and we should be in constant prayer for those around us and in particular, the unsaved.

Many Christians know God but they don't know His love. They continue to ask whether or not God really loves them, rather than having the assurance of His love. We read that God loves us, but where is our assurance? We can't wrap our heads around it.

There are three questions we should ask ourselves and depending on how we answer the questions will determine whether or not we're really saved:

1. Do I have a present trust in Christ for salvation? We start with our testimonies and they must be genuine. But where do we go from there? We're all sinners and we should submit to Him every day. We must yield to Him. If we don't, the every day temptations will become too strong for us.

2. Is evidence of a generated spirit at work in me? Our hearts should be re-generated of the Holy Spirit every day. Working for the Lord is important but doesn't guarantee our salvation. If we are working for the Lord, in His name and in His salvation we will be saved. Our good works don't guarantee our salvation. The testimony of the Holy Spirit in our lives today is witness to our salvation.

3. Am I growing in my walk with Christ? When we let God's spirit lead us, we are true children of God. When we accept Christ as our savior, we can have the blessed assurance that we are saved and will spend eternity with Christ. We don't need our eyes to see Him. Our hearts have the eyes to see Him.

Denison Bible Church

By Esther L. Hall

This summer has really flown by! It seems like school was just out and here it is about to start up again.

Several youth from Denison Bible Church, plus friends, went to God's Mountain in Rushville, Mo. and/or Super C Christian Camp in Polo, Mo. One even made a 10-day trip to Canada with Preachers of the Word (P.O.W.) through Midland Ministries. It has been awesome seeing all the kids excited about Bible Camp and broadening their walk with Jesus Christ.

It was good to see Marie G. in church Sunday morning. Special guests were Amber M. and her two little ones, Dave and Rose M. had their three youngest grandchildren and Pastor Tim and Judy's daughter, son-in-law and family were visiting. Pastor Tim's message Sunday morning, Aug. 2, was over Ephesians 2:1-5a and titled, "From Death To Life."

Today's zombie movies could be a very good description of the number of "walking dead" who walk among us. Zombies have four characteristics: they're dead, they're disobedient, they're depraved and they're doomed. That sounds pretty much like the same characteristics of the people in verses 1-3 of Ephesians 2.

The walking dead are dead in their transgressions of sin. So are people who walk in the ways of the world and are spiritually dead. They don't understand spiritual things. They can't respond to the Word of God.

A spiritually dead person can't hear or see. They can hear the word, but they don't understand it. They can read the word, but they don't understand what they read. What's the cause of spiritual death? Being dead because of our transgressions and sins.

"The wages of sin is death..." but the good news is "the gift of God is eternal life" when we are no longer spiritually dead. If we are separated from God, we are dead. We are born doomed. The unsaved are not just sick; there is no treatment for sin or the sinful nature of man. We must be resurrected from our sinful nature in Jesus Christ our Lord.

Deception is Satan's biggest tool. He is the father of lies. He lied to Eve in the garden, and he continues to lie to sway us to his side.

Sinful flesh is the sinful nature of man. When we let Christ control our lives, our nature changes. We should be defeating Satan, our enemy, rather than living a life of sin.

Jackson County Commission

 Commissioner Rob Ladner said that if Jackson County is going to pay more money to staff a second ambulance, the second ambulance should be solely used to handle Jackson County calls.
 Teter said that if Jackson County EMS has extra staff on hand, they will continue to assist in emergencies in other counties.
 The commissioners requested information on fully staffing a second ambulance on a part-time basis. Teter agreed to gather that information.

Also during the meeting, the commissioners met with representatives from Jackson County Developmental Services, including Elizabeth Lewis.

Lewis gave the commissioners an update on the condition of the center and stated that the center needs to replace its laundry equipment, with bids estimated near $9,000 per unit. New flooring is also needed in the workshop.

Lewis stated that the center just received zoning clearance to build a new three-bedroom duplex, totaling six bedrooms, for housing clients.

DSJC is not requesting any additional county funds for the next budget year, it was reported.

In other business, the commission:

- * Heard a weekly report from Eric Fritz and Earl Bahret, road and bridge co-supervisors.

- * Met with David Luke, a representative from the Kansas County Association Multi-Line Pool (KCAMP), to discuss liability insurance.

- * Attended a Federal Emergency Management Agency meeting at the county's emergency management office.

- * Met with Jason Claycamp, zoning director, who outlined a request for a zoning change east of Hoyt on 94th and V Roads. Zoning for part of the individual's property will be changed to allow construction equipment to be stored on the property.

- * The planning commission has approved the zoning change. Commissioner Zwonitzer said she was concerned with the county "spot zoning" property in the county. She said she is also concerned that if the current landowner were to move, whoever acquired the land could potentially put any business they want to on this property.

- * The commissioners agreed to discuss the issue with County Counselor Alex Morrissey before taking any action.

- * Met in executive session with Claycamp for 25 minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

- * Ate lunch at the Jackson County Senior Citizens Center.

- * Left their chamber to tour recent renovations at the jail and sheriff's office.

- * Received a letter from a citizen with a concern that Banner Creek Reservoir does not have handicap accessible water and fishing docks.

- * Signed a Courthouse lawn use request for Lamberson Elite Athletics for Sept. 19.

- * Learned that a few people have been camping at the horse trails at Banner Creek Reservoir for several weeks. The commissioners said they were concerned that the campers were not paying for a camping spot since they were staying on the horse trails.

It was noted that campsites are not available on the horse trail and campers can be subject to penalties for not following the regulations at the reservoir.

- * Met in executive session with Morrissey and Mick for 20 minutes to discuss a matter of attorney/client privilege. No action was taken back in open session.

- * Signed off on payroll change notices for John Calvert as a full-time employee for the sheriff's office and Jacklyn Kaiser as a full-time employee at the jail.

- * Adjourned the meeting at 5:16 p.m. All commissioners were present.

Banner Road...

As to whether KDOT would accept Bettis' bid, Bauer said KDOT's project manager on the Banner Road extension had told him that KDOT had entered into a contract with the city to extend Banner across U.S. 75, and "they're aware of their obligation." Furthermore, the city was given a "checklist" by KDOT, he said, and items on that list had to be checked off before the bidding process could even begin.

Even then, if KDOT rejected Bettis' bid, Bauer noted that it would only set the city back "another 30 days" on getting the extension built.

"Let's say they do deny this or reject this once we've sent it onto them, and they very well could," he said. "I won't tell you that they won't. But that would just mean we'd start the bidding process all over again... We're just following their rules."

However, Cameron told commissioners that because the city went through "all the proper procedures" with KDOT, including pre-bid conferences, "there's no real reason for them to reject it." Bauer also noted that it was unclear how long it would be before the city heard back from KDOT once the bid documents were submitted.

Commissioners noted that Bettis' bid also included setting up a traffic signal at the intersection of Banner Road and U.S. 75, as well as placing flashing "advance warning lights" similar to the lights placed along U.S. 75 at the entrances to Mayetta at 158th and 162nd roads.

In other business on Monday, commissioners awarded another bid, this time for the purchase of a new 40-foot aerial bucket truck for the city's electrical distribution department. The winning bid was submitted by Foster Ford of Holton, which bid $104,231 for a new truck that Electrical Distribution Superintendent Scott Frederickson said would give city linemen an extra four feet of reach.

The new truck will replace a 2001 model truck that Bauer said had begun to get costly on the maintenance side. Bauer also noted that $90,000 of the truck's cost will come from the electrical distribution department, with the remainder to come from the city's equipment reserve fund.

Foster Ford had submitted two bids for a new bucket truck, and Frederickson noted that the bids were for trucks from two different manufacturers. The bid for the other truck through Foster was $106,228.

Other bids received included $102,124.84 from ETI Equipment of Oklahoma City, Okla.; $104,981 from Altec of St. Joseph, Mo.; and $105,379 from Terex of Watertown, S.D.

Commissioner Erich Campbell said the purchase of the new bucket truck was justified "for safety reasons."

"I cannot live with myself if I made our city employees go into an unsafe vehicle and get hurt," Campbell said.

As to disposition of the 2001 bucket truck, Frederickson said he had been told that the city would get more money selling the truck on its own rather than in trade-in value. It had been suggested that the city could get between $16,000 and $20,000 selling the truck at auction or on its own, as opposed to getting between $5,000 and $8,000 on a trade-in, he said.

Mayor Robert Dieckmann suggested that if the city sells the 2001 truck at auction, a reserve price — meaning that if bids do not meet or exceed a level suggested for the truck's sale, the sale is cancelled — be placed on the truck.

Commissioners also:
 ■ Held a public hearing on the city's proposed 2016 budget prior to the regular meeting, during which time no public comments were received. Later, during the regular meeting, commissioners approved the budget.

■ Approved minutes from the July 20 meeting and budget appropriations made since that meeting.

■ Discussed options for concrete purchases by the street department.

■ Approved a resolution authorizing the service of complimentary alcoholic or cereal malt beverages in conjunction with the Holton/Jackson County Chamber of Commerce's Second Saturday promotions. Bauer said the resolution covers the second Saturday of each month starting Oct. 10 and continuing through the end of 2016, in order to put future resolutions "on a calendar-year rotation."

■ Heard comment from Bauer on a general obligation bond that was issued by the city in 2004 and is "eligible for refinancing."

■ Heard comment from Commissioner Dan Brenner on the street department's cleaning of the streets after the Jackson County Fair parade.

■ Heard comment from Brenner about forming a policy to fine people who misdial 911 repeatedly.

■ Heard comment from Dieckmann about a waterskiing event for children with special needs, to be held on Sunday at Prairie Lake.

■ Heard comment from Dieckmann about the need to "slow people down" as they approach the city on northbound U.S. 75, particularly through the use of police radar.

■ Heard comment from Bauer that the leak in the municipal swimming pool still has not been located yet and that city staff are waiting until after the pool closes for the season on Sunday, Aug. 16 to continue to look for the leak.

■ Heard a question from Campbell about what the street department could do to spray grass that is growing in between the bricks on the city's brick streets, some of which are starting to look "pretty furry."

■ Heard comment from Campbell about a 2015 wrap-up report from the Kansas Legislature, noting that "some of it will have a direct impact on our city," particularly in terms of how elections will change for the city commission.

■ Adjourned the meeting at 7:40 p.m.

Members of the Jackson County Fair Association were also recognized for their hard work during the dedication of the new fairgrounds. Library Expansion...

Expansion is also necessary to accommodate children's programs at the library, Ent said.

"Our children's room is very small, and we're noticing this especially when we have our children's programs," she said. "We are just overpacked."

The need for expansion has been on the library's agenda "for the past several years," Ent noted, but the library has been "landlocked" until the house and lot came up for sale. Ent did not disclose the purchase price of the house and lot at the present time, but noted that its value would likely be greater for the library than for anyone else looking to purchase the property. "Our first step was acquiring the land," she noted.

Ent also stated that the house will be demolished in the near future to make room for library expansion.

"That's already been lined up, and we're just waiting on the demolition company and their schedule," she said. "We want to clean up the lot, and the neighbors are looking forward to it, too."

Library officials said they plan to provide "opportunities for community input to assist our decision-making process," the advertisement states. For more information, contact the library at 364-3532.
