New clinic planned for Holton hospital

By Brian Sanders

Planned expansions and renovations at Holton Community Hospital — including the construction of a new, 11,690-square-foot rural health clinic — could get started as early as next spring, the Holton City Commission learned this week.

During the commission's regular meeting on Monday, HCH CEO Carrie Saia presented commissioners with plans for new construction and renovations, prompted by strategic planning sessions held last year by the Rural Health Resources board, which oversees operations at the hospital.

Saia told commissioners the strategic planning sessions produced recommendations for improvements in the emergency department and an expansion of the inpatient area, as well as the need for a new clinic that would provide more room for the hospital's growing roster of outpatient services.

The estimated cost of expansion and remodeling, she said, will be about $16.5 million, to be paid for through a USDA Rural Development loan. Commissioners agreed to provide HCH a letter of support for the project.

"This will be a great addition to the community," Holton City Manager Kerwin McKee told Saia.

If the USDA loan application is approved — Saia said HCH expected to find out sometime in October — groundbreaking for the new clinic could occur in the spring of 2019. A public information meeting has tentatively been scheduled for Wednesday, July 11, to "document the community's thoughts" on the expansion and renovation plan, she added.

Last year's strategic planning sessions identified hospital staff efficiency and teamwork as "problematic" with medical and support staff working in the adjoining Medical Clinic building on two separate levels, which Saia said "wasn't working" for the staff, and a lack of room for placement of additional or new providers.

Expansion was also necessary, she told commissioners, because of new services added at the hospital during 2017. Those services included pulmonary function testing, nuclear imaging and stress tests, weekly outpatient urology services and an outpatient group therapy program for senior citizens.

The addition of those new programs has contributed to a 23-percent growth in specialty clinic visits in the past decade, Saia noted.

"These things have caused us to look bigger and wider," she added.

The RHR board weighed an offer to purchase the adjoining Medical Clinic building for a possible remodel against construction of a new rural health clinic adjacent to the hospital and decided on the latter after getting input from doctors, Saia told commissioners.

Assessed values up in county

By Ali Holcomb

The assessed value of real estate and personal property in Jackson County increased by 4.6 percent ($5.5 million) this past year, it has been reported.

The values of all real estate, personal property, utilities and oil and gas properties were certified recently, and all school districts and almost all cities in the county experienced some increase, which will be helpful as governing bodies prepare next year's budgets.

The new assessed value of all real estate in the county is $102,355,726, which is a $3,989,045 increase from last year's value of $98,366,681.

Other new county values include personal property ($1,858,529), state assessed utilities ($15,021,321) and oil and gas ($37,064), which sets the county's total assessed valuation at $119,272,640, which is up 4.6 percent from last year's $113,748,048.

The county's assessed valuation was set at $108,275,877 in 2016, $104,006,032 in 2015, $99,241,720 in 2014 and $96,938,995 in 2013.

The assessed valuations of Jackson Heights (USD 335), Holton (USD 336) and Royal Valley (USD 337) all increased from the previous year, it was reported.

The valuation for Jackson Heights increased from $21,096,719 to $22,479,868 (a $1,383,149 increase) among Jackson County values. The district also receives some values from Nemaha, Brown and Atchison counties, it was reported.

Holton USD 336's valuation increased from $47,330,773 to $49,019,147 (a $1,688,374 increase) in Jackson County. The district also receives some assessed value from Jefferson County.

The assessed valuation for Royal Valley increased from $31,858,524 to $33,344,328 (a $1,485,804 increase) this past year.

The city of Holton received a $415,307 increase in its assessed valuation from 2017 to 2018 and has been set at $21,345,712.

July Jubilee to include music, food, fireworks and more

By Ali Holcomb

July Jubilee is planned for Saturday, June 30, and the annual event at Banner Creek Reservoir will feature food, vendors, children's activities and music by the Jackson County Community Band and country musician and songwriter Erik Dylan.

A native of Muscotah, Dylan, graduated from Atchison County Community High School in 1997 and was known then by his given name, Erik Anderson. He moved to Nashville, Tenn. 15 years ago.

Hailed as a singer-songwriter, Dylan has written songs for Kip Moore, Eric Paslay and Justin Moore.

The event will kick off at 5 p.m. that Saturday when members of the local VFW will post the colors at the stage set up on the north side of the reservoir.

Nick Walsh will be the opening act for the concert. Walsh is an aspiring singer-songwriter and is a former Kansas State University punter. Next, Dylan will perform at 5:30 p.m. and will take a break shortly before 8 p.m.

At 8 p.m., the Jackson County Community Band will perform at the chapel.

After their performance, Dylan will play a second set on the stage until the fireworks show, which will begin at dark – sometime between 9:30 p.m. at 10 p.m., it was reported. 2 Kirks Fireworks is once again putting on the fireworks display.

Three bounce houses and a "Kid Zone," featuring crafts for children, will also be available for free during the event.

A dinner of brats, chips and water, prepared and provided by Banner Creek LLC, will be available to purchase. A brat, chips and water will be sold for $6 and a single brat will be $3.

Additional food vendors will be set up that day, including a Chinese food truck. Shaved ice and kettle corn will also be offered by vendors. Several businesses and vendors will also be showcasing a variety of products.

Giant Communications is expected to have a dunk tank set up to raise funds for the Chamber's annual Christmas celebration.

Free will donations for the fireworks display will be collected at both the north and south entrances of the reservoir for the event.

Regular reservoir activities, such as swimming, boating, disc golf, fishing and kayak and paddleboat rentals will all be available that day.

Holton Fitness Center and the Banner Creek Science Center and Observatory will also be hosting the second annual "Fire In The Sky" 5K run and two-mile walk that morning at 8 a.m. at the north side of the reservoir.

City department heads present budget requests

By Brian Sanders

Proposed budgets for fiscal year 2019 in the City of Holton's water, sewer, electrical production and distribution departments are "toeing the line" from their respective budgets for 2018, the Holton City Commission noted this week.

During the commission's regular meeting on Monday, commissioners heard from Water and Sewer Superintendent Dennis Ashcraft, Electrical Distribution Superintendent Scott Frederick and Electrical Production Superintendent Ira Harrison about their budget requests for the coming fiscal year, compared with their budgets for 2018.

All three department heads noted that their proposed FY 2019 budgets did not mark much of a change from their 2018 budgets, whether those budgets were up slightly, as with requests from Frederick for power distribution and Ashcraft for wastewater, or down slightly, as with requests from Harrison for power production and Ashcraft for water.

Holton City Manager Kerwin McKee said the presentations heard on Monday, as well as those to be heard at the Monday, July 2 commission meeting from the city's street, fire, police, parks and recreation and administrative departments, will be worked into a full budget for possible review and action later in July.

Ashcraft's budget proposals included an FY 2019 request for $1,073,950 in the water fund, down from $1,105,367 in the 2018 budget, and an FY 2019 request for $1,249,239 in the sewer fund, up exactly $4,000 from that fund's 2018 budget.

"We're holding the line on what we've got," Ashcraft told commissioners, noting the water department's main project for the immediate future involves bringing the clarifier at the water treatment plant back into good working order.

OPINION

The Show-Me State showed us...

Missouri's Greitens wins "worst performance by an elected official" award in the region

Kansas Governor Sam Brownback, age 61, resigned recently to take a federal ambassador appointment involving religious freedom issues while Missouri Governor Eric Greitens resigned recently with the hope of staying out of jail.

Leave it to the show-me state to one-up our state again, this time by winning the unofficial "worst performance by an elected official in the midwest region" award.

The fact is that the Missouri governor scandals have made all of the states in the region look bad while some of the former Kansas governor's tax theories also did nothing to improve that image.

Former Missouri Gov. Greitens, age 44, admitted as part of a deal with St. Louis prosecutors that the state had enough evidence to take him to trial over the misuse of a charity's donor list for his campaign.

Circuit Attorney Kim Gardner's office on June 6 released the full agreement that led to Greitens stepping down.

Two paragraphs of that deal had originally been redacted, but Open Records requests being made by Missouri newspapers probably would have been successful in making them public very soon anyway.

In fact, Missouri Attorney General Josh Hawley's office had just ruled the day before Gardner's office released it that it was an open record.

The previously redacted portions did not change the basic deal: Greitens would resign from office, and in exchange, Gardner would drop a felony computer tampering charge over The Mission Continues donor list. But the sections are the closest Greitens has ever come to admitting wrongdoing.

In the first blacked-out portion, Greitens' attorneys acknowledge that prosecutors "had sufficient evidence to constitute a submissible case."

The second blacked-out portion said that first paragraph would not be made public, as part of the overall deal, unless Greitens committed a new crime or "engage[d] in public comment contrary to the stipulation."

One of those attorneys, Jack Garvey, said Gardner did not object to blacking out the two paragraphs in question when the deal was struck. He said the redaction was done for public relations purposes. "The language is very precise," he said. "It says Greitens' attorneys believe there is a submissible case. But the public might think he was guilty of an offense. There's a big difference."

AG Hawley's office argued from the beginning that the full copy of the agreement should be a public record because it was not actually part of any official court file.

When attorneys for Greitens objected, Gardner asked Hawley to weigh in.

"We have concluded that the stipulation is an open record," State Solicitor General John Sauer wrote in the opinion.

Under state law, he said, any final settlement involving a government agency is public unless a court has acted to close it.

Even though the two sides had agreed to redact portions of the agreement, Sauer said, no court had officially sealed it. "And given the circumstances surrounding this matter," he wrote, "it is unlikely that any interests would clearly outweigh the public's strong interest in knowing the terms of the settlement agreement here."

But Gardner's office also believed they had the right to release the full document under the terms of the deal itself.

In announcing his resignation, Greitens blasted the "forces that opposed him" for causing incredible strain on his family and legal harassment of his colleagues and campaign workers.

"I know, and people of good faith know, that I am not perfect, but I have not broken any laws or committed any offense worthy of this treatment," he said.

Gardner said that statement by Greitens broke the agreement.

"Given your client's blatant and material violation of the agreement," she wrote in a letter sent to Greitens' attorney Ed Dowd, "this office is no longer under any obligation under that agreement to maintain confidentiality of any provision of the agreement that your client previously sought."

Greitens also had another high-profile scandal dogging his gubernatorial term involving an extra-marital affair with his hairdresser.

By contrast to all of this in Missouri, Gov. Brownback seemed to have good (if not wishful) intentions but did wreck our state's economy and taught us to disbelieve anyone running for Kansas governor in the future who spouts the same flawed economic ideas for the state.

SOME OF THE ORIGINAL KANSAS JAYHAWKERS - The importance of Holton as a point on the trail of the "underground railroad" used to transport slaves north to freedom in the 1850s is undisputed. The photo above was taken by Lawrence photographer A.G. DaLee, and shows Dr. John Doy (seated) and his rescuers soon after Dr. Doy was rescued by the men from the jail at St. Joseph, Mo., in late June 1859. Free-state proponents in the Kansas Territory at the time - those who wanted Kansas to be admitted to the union as a free state - were called Jayhawkers.

Doy had been kidnapped by pro-slavery men the previous January as he was transporting 13 slaves north of Lawrence toward Holton in the Kansas Territory, according to Doy's own account of the story.

Doy was captured about 12 miles north of Lawrence. The other men in the photo were not offically identified by the photographer but believed to be Lawrence men, left to right, Theodore Gardner, Joseph Gardner, James B. Abbott, Joshua A. Pike, Jacob Senix, Thomas Simmons, S.J. Willis, John E. Stewart, Silas Soule and George Hay.

"Lane Trail" led slaves north to freedom

Note: The story that follows is part two of the Brown County Geneological Society's story written by Greg Newlin about the historic Lane Trail that was first published in July of 2003.

Powhatan's Overland Stage Station was established in 1855 at the same time the town was built in the far southwestern corner of Territorial Brown County.

The first post office was established July 17, 1857 in a tavern owned by Russell S. Newell, and as the tavern owner, he also was the first post master, too.

In addition to the tavern, there was a blacksmith, wagon shop, two stores, several dwellings and a cemetery.

This cemetery located straight west 1 1/4 miles of the present-day abandoned Kickapoo Truck Stop on U.S. Highway 75 is all that exists there today.

The post office received the east and west mail by stage coach that ran over the Military or Overland Trail. This trail extended from the ferry and steam boat landing at Atchison to Kennekuk then to Powhatan and then on westward to the Colorado Territory.

I have an ancestral connection to this station through the second proprietor Collingwood Clark Grubb, who is my great-great-grandfather.

His daughter Rachel Ann, born in Greencastle, Ind., Jan. 16, 1845, observed through the heating grate on the floor of the upstairs residence of the station master's home on a few occasions a young man who caught her eye while he was collecting his mail at the post office below on the first floor.

His name was James Twadell Newlin and he and Rachel were married Oct. 4, 868 in Hiawatha, and they are my great-grandparents.

Escaped slaves sheltered over night at old Powhatan went further northward on the next day on the Lane Trail west of Gregg Creek through Pleasant Spring (Granada) and Capioma onto Lexington, the namesake for the first battle fought in the American Revolution.

Lexington, located two miles northwest of Fairview, Brown County and 1 ½ miles southeast of Sabetha according to Meacham's 1887 Brown-Nemaha County Atlas, placed it on the farm in that year of E. M. Brown.

Extending from Fairview to Sabetha is the ridge earlier occupied as the St. Joe Road that followed the high piece of property separating the water flowing north to the Nemaha from the waters flowing south into the Kansas River watersheds. Then later, the Rock Island Railroad bed between the above two cities.

Even today at this location, one can see well in either direction and that is why it was used then as a site for Lexington, created because of the view to prevent the train from being attacked.

Lexington consisted of a small fort of hewn logs built by General James Lane and his men.

According to a report in the Oct. 26, 1894, Everest Enterprise, John Brown – the well-known abolitionist of the time - had armed this little fort with a brass cannon which also had been moved to Fort Plymouth located on Pony Creek near present-day Sycamore Springs in Brown County.

Nevertheless, gunfire by cannon, revolver or rifle was never known to have been exchanged between the members of the train personnel and any opposing forces along the trail's length.

In fact, not a shot was fired at the Battle of the Boot Spurs in present-day Jackson County. The battle name had been coined in jest by an eastern news correspondent as boot spurs were the only actual weapon employed.

All of the train officials exercised extreme caution to prevent any blood being shed by either side in the passage of this precious cargo.

From Lexington, the trail went to the villages of Sabetha and Albany, of which the latter, also the larger of the two, served as a safe overnight stop and a pivotal point where the trail began to follow Pony Creek eastward through northern Brown County to Fort Plymouth.

Where the Pony Creek trail lined up with the falls on the Big Nemaha River to the north, that is where the trail left Pony Creek, crossing the Nemaha at the falls.

At this geographical location, present-day Falls City, Neb. was located. So impressed with General Lane, the early-day citizens there wanted to name their city Laneville but instead named one of their major residential north/south streets after him, which presently runs north & south, one block east of Harlan St., or U.S. Highway 73.

The trail continued northeast of Falls City toward the Missouri River following it northward through the villages of Nemaha and Peru to Nebraska City.

From this point, it crossed the Missouri River and drove straight through the center of Iowa with an eventual terminus in Chicago, Ill.

After the American Civil War began, and with the passage of the Emancipation Proclamation as well as the 13th Amendment abolishing slavery, the Lane Trail lost its initial need for transporting slaves to freedom and saw little or no traffic for either the movement of Union soldiers and pioneers.

Originally, sources for this column came from the Brown County Genealogical Society's research library at 116 South Seventh St. in Hiawatha.

However contributing to this re-print were facts from the December 2004 Ancestor Trail's - The Legend of the Brass Cannon of Brown County.

Note: In case you have not noticed, the original Powhatan had only one "t" and a second one was added only after it moved to its present location in the early 1900s to be closer to the Chicago-Rock Island Railroad between present-day 180th St. on the north & 170th St. on the south, and Goldfinch Road on the west and Grasshopper Road on the east.

Mini-grazing school to be offered by extension district

By Jody G. Holthaus
Meadowlark Extension District Agent

The Meadowlark Extension District, in cooperation with the Jackson County Conservation District and the Natural Resources Conservation Service, is sponsoring a three-part mini grazing school. The events are hosted by the Charles and Paul Kennedy farms, located southwest of Holton.

The second session will be held on Tuesday, June 26. The focus will be on unwanted weeds and brush. Mixie Vance, the Jackson County noxious weed director, and Dr. Walt Fick, KSU range management specialist, will be the featured presenters.

The evening will begin at 5:30 p.m. with a light meal that is sponsored by the Jackson County Conservation District. Due to the meal count, we ask that you call in at 785-364-4125 or email jholthau@ksu.edu to make sure we have enough food.

The third session will feature water and fencing ideas, which may be extremely timely, if precipitation does not occur. The third session will be held in late August.

All interested persons are encouraged to attend any or all sessions.

Reproduction Revisited

Reproduction is the most important factor on a modern dairy farm. Getting dairy cattle rebred in a timely fashion is critical for dairy farm profitability.

The Meadowlark Extension District will be hosting two sessions, "Reproduction Revisited," featuring Dr. Luis Mendonca DVM, KSU dairy veterinarian.

These sessions will be offered on June 25, at the Nemaha County Community Building, 1500 Community Dr., Seneca.

These interactive discussions will be held at 1 p.m. in Spanish and repeated at 2:30 p.m. in English. Individual reproduction records can by analyzed by request when you RSVP. Please RSVP by June 22 at the Extension office, 785-336-2184, or email jholthau@ksu.edu.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

OBITUARIES

Thornton

Cynthia Ann Bradberry Thornton, 62, of Whiting, was welcomed to her heavenly home on Saturday, June 16, 2018, after a seven-year battle with cancer.

Cynthia (Cindy) was born Feb. 25, 1956, in Hiawatha, the daughter of Joseph Keith Bradberry and Edna Marie Davis Bradberry. Cindy was a graduate of Horton High School, class of 1974.

On Aug. 10, 1974, Cindy married her best friend and love of her life, Larry Thornton. Together they began their life together in their home outside of Whiting. They welcomed two children, Rebekah Ann Thornton-Savage and Adam Brady Thornton before moving to the family farm in October 1983.

Family was Cindy's passion. She enjoyed being a homemaker, although she would work outside of the home on occasion over the years. She found great delight in her five grandchildren and welcomed every opportunity to spend with them.

Cindy was always a very active member of her church, serving as Sunday school teacher and VBS director many times. She embraced the opportunity to further serve her Lord using her cancer as an opportunity to witness to others.

Cindy is survived by her husband, Larry Thornton; daughter Rebekah Thornton-Savage of Manhattan; son Adam (Erin) Thornton of Wamego; five grandchildren, Bailey, Kendall, Reece and Brady Thornton and Keith Savage; sister Glenda (Allan) Williams of Vermillion; four nephews; and a niece. She was preceded in death by her parents and a brother, Douglas Bradberry.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, June 21 at the First Baptist Church of Horton. Family will greet friends on Wednesday evening from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Dishon-Maple-Chaney Mortuary. Burial will be held in Springhill Cemetery, Whiting.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Horton First Baptist Church Building Fund, sent in care of the mortuary. A special message may be sent to the family at www.dishon-maple-chaney.com

HHS grad Heitzman earns JCHS scholarship

Gladys Heitzman, a recent Holton High School graduate, was awarded a $250 scholarship from the Jackson County Historical and Genealogical Society for 2018.

Heitzman and her parents were guests of the society at its annual Founders Day program in April. She plans to pursue a degree in political science at Wichita State University.

This is the ninth year that the society has awarded a scholarship to a graduating high school senior who resides within the county.

Participants must visit the Jackson County Museum and submit a paper about that visit. Judges select the winner based on weighted categories of ideas and content, voice, organization and word choice and sentence fluency and conventions.

The Jackson County Historical and Genealogical Society is a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of Jackson County, artifacts, printed materials, oral history and other relevant material which serve to record the history of the area.

The society brings together those people interested in that history and will make such items available to the public for display, research, educational and informational purposes. Its motto is "Preserving the Past to Serve the Future." The society's website is https://sites.google.com/site/jchsks

Heitzman's essay is printed below:

Jackson County's Hidden Treasure

The artifact was hidden underneath a flamboyant lady's hat. I had mentioned it to my peers as I was getting ready to write this paper, but they had no recollection of what I was talking about.

Although, how could they? How would one be able to see it when a remarkable lady's hat from the 1800s was attracting all the attention?

It was nothing special at first glance; I wasn't surprised it had gone unnoticed by my classmates before me. The colors were bland, the material seemed worn, and it looked like it was made from rags — perhaps it was. It caught my attention merely because of how peculiar it seemed.

Why was it there? What purpose did it serve? My curiosity was strong enough for me to interrupt my tour guide, Emily Jane, and ask her about it. She picked up the hat and moved it aside so we could get a better look at the material that lay before us.

"King May? Yes, King May. He was an ex-slave, had about nine to ten children? They had a business and weaved rugs up to nine-feet wide!"

Emily Jane closed her eyes and searched through her brain like a file cabinet pulling out a single piece of information at a time. I wanted to learn more, but not about the other artifacts such as Frank Carpenter's canes or about Campbell College — I was too enticed by the rug made from rags that hadn't even been spotted by the multiple people who toured the museum before me.

I asked Emily Jane how I could acquire more information about King May's family, and she said that the Research House contained articles, school information and a short story about the family that was written by King May's daughter, Elizabeth.

Sunday afternoon, two days after my visit to the museum, I went to the Research House and took as many notes as I could. I was shocked that the short narrative hadn't been in the museum; it contained an abundance of information.

I learned that King May's full name was Robert K. May and that he was born in 1856 during the last decade of slavery. He had been nine years old when Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation and belonged to a family that lived on the border between Alabama and Mississippi.

Gladys Heitzman

Then in 1883, at age 27, he traveled to Kansas. When he migrated to Holton, he met Hattie Elizabeth Ford — his future wife. After the couple got married, they had 10 children: Edgar, Lotta, Robert Jr., Charles, Elizabeth, Ross, Josephine, Percy, Frances and Ralph.

With a family of their size, it was hard to make payments. After studying catalogs, Hattie soon convinced Robert that rug weaving could help with the expenses. Robert then went into the rug weaving business and later added carpet cleaning to the business.

They had two looms, the largest was used to weave rugs up to nine-feet wide, and the smaller loom could weave rugs up to four feet. Everyone in the family had become experts in how to use the looms.

Although no one chose to continue in the business, each child became successful in his or her own right. All 10 children were educated at and graduated from Holton High School and went on to pursue different business paths.

If I could add anything to the museum, I would include a copy of the story, "The Way Of Life Of A Kansas Family," written by Robert's daughter, Elizabeth. I would also add the children's high school photos, which can be found at the Research House as well. I would give the items their own section in the museum so they would no longer be hidden or covered up by flamboyant hats.

The May family had lived the American Dream, and they left a legacy defined by all the accomplishments the family had made.

Not only would giving the Mays their own exhibit help people learn more about them and their family, but it would also educate more people on Holton's history as well.

After I had learned that all their children graduated from the high school I now attend, I was shocked. I've never been as proud of our little town as I was that Sunday afternoon when I learned that Holton didn't have a segregation policy.

In fact, Ross played on the football team. I had stumbled upon a newspaper clipping of the football team, side by side, shoulders touching shoulders. You could easily see that no one treated Ross as an outsider — he was a teammate.

Holton isn't just "north of Topeka." It has its own history, and people need to know about it. As Marcus Garvey, the founder of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, once said, "A people without the knowledge of their past history, origin and culture is like a tree without roots."

Circleville Christian Church

By Jeannie Arnold

Mark Fenton served as greeter at the door for the Cowboy/Traditional church service at Circleville Christian Church on June 17. Music was provided by the praise team of Dale and Ilah Rose Askren, Johnny Lynch, David Spencer, David Allen, Paul and Sue Davault and Kay Hallauer. The opening hymn was "Draw Me Nearer, Nearer Blessed Lord." Brody Bliss gave the prayer for concerns and praises.

Paul Davault used text from Jeremiah 31:31-34 as he gave the communion meditation and prayer. Communion servers were Jeremy Kennedy, Mike Cochren, Elmer Ent, John Ray and Blair Wagner. The prayer for the offering was given by David Allen. Kay Hallauer provided the lovely piano music as communion was served and the offering received.

Brody Bliss used text from Ecclesiastes 2:17-23 as he gave the morning sermon titled "Vanity Of Inheritances." His message told how everything that we have in this life will be left to another person because death is inevitable.

You don't know if your heirs will be wise with it or foolish. Inheritances can be great evils and can break families apart. We put way too much emphasis on what is temporal and it can jeopardize our eternal inheritance. Find contentment in enjoying the blessings of each day and remember that our inheritance is not of this world.

The service closed by singing "Family Of God."

Taylor Montgomery of Las Vegas, Nev. won the 2018 APT Prairie Band Topeka Championship last weekend.

Montgomery wins men's APT Prairie Band Topeka title

Taylor Montgomery shot a 4-under 68 in Saturday's final round of the 2018 APT Prairie Band Topeka Championship at Firekeeper Golf Course near Mayetta to coast to a five-stroke victory, his first on the tour, it was reported.

A 50-foot putt on No. 2 set the tone for the Las Vegas native's win at 17-under.

Inclement weather washed away the final round of the Northwest Mississippi Championship in Robinsonville, Miss., back in April locking the 23-year-old Montgomery into a second-place finish there— just one stroke back of the lead.

Montgomery's 7-under 65 on Thursday tied for the best single round of the event.

Australia's Nicholas Flanagan (12-under) finished second Saturday, while former KU standout Chase Hanna (11-under) rode a 7-under 65 in the final round to finish tied for third with Gregory Yates and Matthew Perrine.

But the victory — and the $20,500 payday — went to Montgomery, who all but sealed it by going 3-under on the front nine.

After the victory, Montgomery reportedly called his father and the two shared a personal moment — "If it wasn't for him I probably wouldn't even be playing golf," Montgomery later said.

In the men's division there were 45 golfers and all earned money ranging from $20,500 to $645.

In operation since 1994, the APT (Adams Pro Tour), a subsidiary of K&G Sports LLC., partners with local non-profits to conduct professional golf tournaments in the mid-south region of the U.S.

Cox wins women's division of APT tourney

Sydney Cox on Thursday, June 14, took control of the women's division of the APT Prairie Band Topeka Championship golf tourney near Mayetta.

Cox's only goal in Friday's final round of the 54-hole event was to make sure she did enough to stay in that spot.

And she did.

The 31-year-old native of Edmond, Okla., achieved that objective in convincing fashion, winning the women's title by a six-stroke margin with a final round of 1-over 73 at Firekeeper to earn $5,000.

Cox, shown in the photo at right kissing the tourney trophy, took an eight-shot lead into the final round after a 6-under 66 on Thursday and was never seriously challenged on Friday, with Hannah Arnold carding a 68 to finish second at 218 while Anna Young was another two strokes back at 220 after a closing 73 In the women's division of the tourney, there were 15 competitors.

Potawatomi U.M.C.

By Ilene Dick

Sunday, June 17, was another hot day, but the promise of rain the coming week is a blessing. The fourth Sunday after Pentecost and Father's Day were celebrated at Potawatomi United Methodist Church.

Pastor Howard opened the service with reading from the Psalms followed by prayer. He reported having attended the annual conference in Wichita last week and it was a good meeting. It will be held in Topeka next year.

He also reported that Potawatomi UMC was a Gold Star Church having paid Mission Share and Mission Agency Support in full in 2017. It was sad to learn that five U.M. churches closed last year.

Prayers and sympathy goes out to the family of Willard Kampmeier of Silver Lake in his death. Pastor Will served as minister to Circleville UMC and Potawatomi UMC Charge in 1990-1991. He then preached at Mayetta UMC and Potawatomi UMC when they became a charge in 1991. He took a leave of absence in 1993 due to failing health. He, his wife, Donna, and daughter, Gina, were a blessing in his ministry.

Acolyte for the service was Judy Thoman. LeAnna Meeks was liturgist, reading from Isaiah 43:2. The Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison. Hymns were "How Great Thou Art," "Great Is Thy Faithfulness" and "Faith Of Our Fathers." Ann Wilkening provided the music.

In keeping with Father's Day, Betty Bowser gave the special, sharing "Why Parents Go Gray" and a poem titled "Fathers Are A Wonderful People." Offertory ushers were Jim Shenk and Jim Meeks.

Pastor Howard's message was titled "If We Had Known Then What We Know Now," with the text coming from Genesis 21:8-21. He relayed the message about Sarah, who bore a son even though she was old.

We learn from our children. No father is perfect. We must learn to be forgiving, and not favor one child. God is a perfect parent to everyone.

The title of next Sunday's sermon will be "Being God's Children."

On Saturday, June 16, Jamie and Jerry Meeks, their wives and grandson, C.J. Meeks, his girlfriend, Hanna Billings, and grandson, Derek, treated Jim and LeAnna Meeks with an "assisted shopping spree," a trolley ride and a great Italian pizza meal.

Jim and Marjean Shenk had a wonderful meal with Jeff Shenk's family at Corning on Saturday evening. They were also expecting Greg Shenk to arrive Sunday, June 17, for a few days. Marilee Bernart-Shenk's children plan to come later in the week for a visit.

Pam and Leon Daugherty called on Dorthea and Keith Bell and were glad to find Dorthea feeling better. They enjoyed the visit.

Our daughter, Lori, came to have lunch with Ronald and me on Father's Day at Vintage Park, and presented her father a quilt she made in honor of his duty in the Air Force.

Larry Riley of Mayetta called on Ronald and me Thursday morning, June 14. We had a good visit. We also enjoyed a visit from Pam and Leon Daugherty Saturday evening. We had a good visit, and also Pam's cookies! They also served cookies to the church family Sunday morning after church for Father's Day.

Mayetta City Council approves fence, other updates to park

The Mayetta City Council held its monthly meeting on Wednesday May 9, since the scheduled May 2 meeting was postponed due to weather.

Mayor Jonathan Wimer called the meeting to order at 7 p.m. Others present were council members Dan Whiteman, Rudy Schmidt, Kevin Decker, Darrel Chapman and Shelley Ramage. Also present was Tom Barns, the city's attorney.

Schmidt made a motion to reappoint Grace Bowser as city clerk. Ramage seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Ramage made a motion to appoint Cindy Meyer as city treasurer. Decker seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Schmidt made a motion to reappoint Steve Rupert as chief of police. Ramage seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Chapman made a motion to reappoint Barns and Stumbo Hanson as city attorneys. Ramage seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Barns reported that Clarence Kuone has been given 60 days to remove the structures at 201 N. First St. Since the deadline has passed, the council can take action to demolish them.

Kuone said he has a plan to demolish the structures. He has an authorization letter from the Veteran's Administration for demolishing the house and putting a new one in. He has submitted the papers to a financial clearing house to see if any of the banks will give him a loan.

If he gets approved, the Veterans Administration will pay for the project, and if Kuone defaults, the Veterans Association gets the house.

Attorney Barns looked over the paperwork form the Veterans Administration and noted that it was dated a year ago. Barns asked Kuone if he agreed the structures need to come down. Kuone said the garage needs to be torn down but not the house.

To comply with the city, Barns told Kuone that the house will have to be torn down.

Barns said he didn't know if Kuone could beat the lowest bid the city got for demolition and suggested since the property needs to come down, Kuone could engage the city to tear it down and he could reimburse the city when his funding comes through.

Kuone asked for more time to get his personal property out of the house.

Chapman made a motion to allow Kuone until May 29 to remove personal property from the house. Schmidt seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Schmidt made a motion to approve the demolition bid from Dwayne Hug Trucking and Excavating for $7,500. Ramage seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

The other bids were $7,750 from Doug Hug Trucking and $11,982.90 from Brahma Excavating Inc.

Decker made a motion to approve Ordinance 201 requiring pet owners to pick up their animal's waste on other people's property. Chapman seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Mayor Wimer discussed the addition of the control room on the bathroom at the park for the proposed spray park. He discussed the issue with Keith Reicherter, who reported that the overhang of the roof on the old part of the bathroom needs three support posts under it.

Reicherter suggested the city close off the attic space between the bathroom and the control room. Reicherter presented a bid of $320 to complete the work.

Decker made a motion to approve the bid. Whiteman seconded the motion, and it passed 4-0, with Chapman abstaining.

Schmidt presented the council with a list of rules for the spray park. Council members agreed to order a sign for the park.

Members discussed adding a camera at the park and putting the monitor at city hall. Bowser said she would check with Adam Schafer about the potential cost of the equipment.

The council asked Bowser to order a changing table for the bathroom and some trash cans for the park, as well as signs that tell pet owners to pick up after their dog and a dog waste station with bags.

Ramage suggested the city paint the outside of the bathroom building.

Chapman said he is still looking for answers on the annual cost of running the spray park, such as employee cost for extra hours, the cost of chemicals, etc.

Chapman made a motion to approve a $21,000 bid from Kansas Fence Co. to build a six-foot fence on the north and east sides of the park. Ramage seconded the motion, and it passed 5-0.

Wimer reported that the Kansas Department of Transportation will fix the potholes at the entrance at 162nd Street. The city will pay for the asphalt used to fix the holes on the city side at an estimated cost of $1,800.

Ramage said there have been reports of people driving around really slow during the night. The council asked Chief Rupert to work some hours after midnight.

Chapman said that if there are any changes to the spray park plans, he feels the council needs to discuss it.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:19 p.m.

USDA extends deadline for dairy program

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Sonny Perdue announced recently that the re-enrollment deadline for the Margin Protection Program (MPP) for Dairy will be extended until June 22.

The new and improved program protects participating dairy producers when the margin – the difference between the price of milk and feed costs – falls below levels of protection selected by the applicant.

USDA has already issued more than $89 million for margins triggered in February, March and April, and USDA offices are continuing to process remaining payments daily.

"Last week, we re-opened enrollment to offer producers preoccupied with field work an additional opportunity to come into their local office to sign up. We did get more than 500 new operations enrolled but want to continue to provide an opportunity for folks to participate before the next margin is announced," said Secretary Perdue. "More than 21,000 American dairies have gone into our 2,200 FSA offices to sign-up for 2018 MPP coverage, but I am certain we can do better with this extra week and a half."

The re-enrollment deadline was previously extended through June 8. The deadline is being extended a second time to ensure that dairy producers are given every opportunity to make a calculated decision and enroll in the program if they choose.

This will be the last opportunity for producers to take advantage of key adjustments Congress made to provisions of the MPP program under the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018 to strengthen its support of dairy producers.

USDA encourages producers contemplating enrollment to use the online web resource at www.fsa.usda.gov/mpptool to calculate the best levels of coverage for their dairy operation.

The next margin under MPP, for May 2018, will be published on June 28, 2018. Therefore, all coverage elections on form CCC-782 and the $100 administrative fee, unless exempt, must be submitted to the County FSA Office no later than June 22. No registers will be utilized, so producers are encouraged to have their enrollment for 2018 completed by close of business on June 22.

All dairy operations must make new coverage elections for 2018 during the re-enrollment period, even if the operation was enrolled during the previous 2018 signup. Coverage elections made for 2018 will be retroactive to Jan. 1, 2018. MPP payments will be sequestered at a rate of 6.6 percent.

To learn more about the Margin Protection Program for dairy, contact your local USDA Farm Service Agency county office at offices.usda.gov or visit us on the Web at www.fsa.usda.gov

Political signs prohibited on highway right-of-ways

It's a sign of the season – campaigning to support your favorite political candidate.

However, if your plans involve placing a political sign, the Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) reminds you to make sure it's not located on highway right-of-way.

By law, all right-of-way on state highways is to be used exclusively for public highway purposes. Only regulatory, guide signs and warning signs are allowed on the state highway system. KDOT has jurisdiction over all interstate, Kansas and U.S. routes on the state's 9,500-mile system.

The public should be aware that all political campaign signs or billboards are prohibited on the state right-of-way.

When KDOT maintenance crews find political or business advertising on state right-of-ways, the signs will be removed immediately without notice. All such signs will then be taken to the closest KDOT subarea office where they can be picked up by the owner with the agreement they will not be placed on state right-of-way again.

All political campaign signs not picked up will be disposed of after the election.

Political campaign advertising is allowed on private property bordering state right-of-ways. However, people erecting signs on private property must first obtain permission from the property owner.

About 40 motorcycle riders from across Kansas stopped at Holton's Linscott Park recently as part of the American Legion Riders' fourth annual Kansas Legacy Run. During their stop in Holton, the riders held a ceremony at the Purple Heart Monument at the park in which they honored the late Pfc. Cody Baker, who was killed in action in Afghanistan.

Traffic sign at Hoyt Cemetery discussed

Traffic control during funeral processions at the Hoyt Cemetery was discussed at a recent Jackson County Commission meeting.

Beth Fenske of Hoyt asked if the commissioners could place a sign at the Hoyt Cemetery during funerals to alert motorists of a funeral procession.

Fenske and others had previously requested a sign with flashing lights to warn drivers to slow down during services.

Dan Barnett, road and bridge department supervisor, explained that getting a sign in place is still in the works, but they have to have it engineered and then approved through the commissioners.

For the time being, it was suggested that Fenske notify the Jackson County Sheriff's Office so they can assist with traffic control during funeral services.

In other business, according to the approved minutes from June 4, the commission:

* Asked Barnett to compile a list of all road and bridge equipment and vehicles in order to decide what items need to be replaced first and to create a schedule for new purchases.

* Met in executive session for five minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

* Heard a weekly report from John Kennedy, Banner Creek Reservoir director. Kennedy reported that more than 100 people participated in the recent run in honor of Ron and Scott Strader and Tom Davies.

The funds collected will go to the proposed community building at the lake.

* Met with local photographer Jim Hunley who presented a photo he took of the southwest corner of the Courthouse.

* Met with Marvin Keehn, Rodney Obermeier and Joe Schneider who submitted insurance information and a signed contract with Jackson County to host a triathlon at Banner Creek Reservoir on Aug. 4.

Arrangements have already been made for EMS, lifeguards, sheriff's office and fire department personnel to be in attendance.

Later in the meeting, County Counselor Alex Morrissey reviewed and approved the contract.

* Discussed new proposed rates for the recycling center and landfill.

* Adjourned the meeting at 4:13 p.m. All three commissioners were present.

Values...

Every other Jackson County town, except Denison, received some type of increase in its assessed valuation this past year. The valuations included:

* $640,830 for Circleville, which is a $15,359 increase from last year's 625,471.

* $540,830 for Delia, which is a $15,280 increase from last year's $525,552.

* $550,207 for Denison, which is a $8,507 decrease from last year's $$558,714.

* $3,100,757 for Hoyt, which is a $30,872 increase from last year's $3,069,885.

* $1,249,699 for Mayetta, which is a $6,133 increase from last year's $1,243,566.

* $670,049 for Netawaka, which is a $18,050 increase from last year's $651,999.

* $306,591 for Soldier, which is a $16,024 increase from last year's $290,567.

* $958,101 for Whiting, which is a $33,941 increase from last year's $924,160.

As the county commissioners, city councils and school boards begin to set budgets for the coming fiscal year, the increase in assessed valuation will help keep mill levies from increasing.

The total assessed valuation of each county or city multiplied by the mill levy determines local funding. When a municipality experiences an increase in assessed valuation, it automatically generates more tax funds using the same mill levy as the previous year.

If the assessed valuation decreases, it takes more funds to generate the same budget as last year.

Buck's Grove

By Betty Bernritter

Happy Father's Day on the fourth Sunday after Pentecost, June 17.

As the recorded prelude was played at Buck's Grove United Methodist Church, Betty Bernritter carried in the light of Christ.

John Hefty welcomed everyone, asked for announcements and led the congregation in the call to worship, opening prayer, Psalter, Psalm 72 and the Apostles' Creed.

Scripture included 1 Samuel 15:34-16:13 and 2 Corinthians 5:6-10-14-17.

Donna Ashcraft assisted in singing hymns "Victory In Jesus," "Just As I Am Without One Plea" and "This Is A Day of New Beginnings."

For Denny and Donna Ashcraft's special, Trevor Ashcraft read Father's Day quotes and Donna read a poem titled "What Makes A Dad." Donna also provided gifts for all the fathers.

Gospel reading was Mark 4:26-34 and John titled his message "Remember Our Heavenly Father On Father's Day." John shared his first Father's Day and then reflected on our Heavenly Father.

God is forever and wants to be with us. God is all present and is our refuge and our strength. God is slow to anger and truly loves each of us. He does not play favorites. We are blessed to have a real God who has given us a gift to believe in Him and have eternal life.

The offertory prayer was recited and Don Boling and Wayne Rieschick were ushers.

The worship service closed by singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" as Betty carried out the light of Christ.

There was no Bible study on June 17, but will continue next Sunday.

Benediction: Together, we catch a glimpse of God's glory. Scattered, we carry that vision into the world. God bless us with peace amid the world's tensions. Spread God's love. Amen.

Holton Budget...

Frederick's power distribution request for FY 2019 totaled $1,084,700, up from the 2018 budget of $1,056,500. While there was "nothing big foreseen" in the coming year, Frederick told commissioners that capital outlay funds may be needed for replacement of a truck or renovation of a storage shed for his department in the near future.

Harrison's request for power production in FY 2019, totaling $4,302,620, showed a decrease from the 2018 budget of $4,403,120. He told commissioners that the top project in his department for 2019 would involve retesting the catalysts for the city's electric power generators.

The two power departments included an administrative request for $754,500 in FY 2019, up from $745,000 in 2018, bringing the total "light fund" request for 2019 to $6,141,820, down from the 2018 budget of $6,204,620.

In other business on Monday, commissioners continued to discuss the possible reinstatement of the Neighborhood Revitalization Plan, a tax abatement program developed in the 1990s and offered through 2009 for Jackson County property owners who built new properties or rehabilitated older structures.

McKee said he had heard from Jackson County Commissioner and former Holton City Commissioner Janet Zwonitzer on discussion about the county level, noting county officials were "in the works of getting legal documents drawn up" to reinstate the program.

"I think that's a great thing, and I'm excited about that," McKee said, noting that county officials were checking with other counties that had a similar program in place.

Commissioner Dan Brenner concurred, saying that he had talked with county officials about rebooting the program and was told that it is "in the process."

Discussion on rebooting the revitalization program has been spurred in recent weeks by a group of Holton-area residents with an interest in economic development in the city. Commissioners met with the group at their May 21 meeting and encouraged the residents to meet with Jackson County officials, since the original program was overseen by the county, noting that if the county program were reinstated, they would support it.

Commissioners also:

■ Approved minutes from the commission's June 4 meeting and budget appropriations made since that meeting.

■ Met with Holton Community Hospital CEO Carrie Saia to discuss expansion and remodeling plans at the hospital (see related story).

■ Approved renewal of a retail liquor license for Southside Liquor.

■ Heart a report from McKee on maintenance work at the city's water tower.

■ Heard from Commissioner Twila White that a complaint had been received about a garage located in the city that is in "a dilapidated state." White also asked whether the complaint has been forwarded to Codes Enforcement Officer Jeff Draper.

■ Heard a suggestion from Mayor Robert Dieckmann that the city offer a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects involved in a recent rash of burglaries and thefts in the city. McKee said he would check with Holton City Attorney Dennis White on whether the city could do that.

■ Heard comment from McKee that the lake level at Banner Creek Reservoir was down about 12 inches from normal pool, an amount that he said "is not bad," and that Prairie Lake is likely "close to full."

■ Heard a comment from Brenner on being contacted by a Topeka television station about mounting a "weather camera" atop the tallest building in Holton.

■ Adjourned the meeting at about 8 p.m. All five commissioners were present.

"The doctors really felt that to get it all on one level, there would be almost a complete demolish of what's currently there, because they're on two levels right now," she said. "And to invest, we'd have to own the building, so to buy the building when it has two other owners… we'd have three different owners doing construction with the USDA, and we'd be investing in a building that's almost 20 years old."

Plans are for the new clinic to be built east and south of the current hospital building, with the new clinic and existing hospital to be connected by a new entrance that features a drop-off area with a covered awning. The new clinic will also include a second floor that would be partially finished for relocation of office space.

The renovation side of HCH's plan involves improvements in the hospital's existing emergency department, Saia said, including greater privacy for patients in the emergency room.

"There are two stretchers that are only separated by a curtain, and you can hear everything about your neighbor, whether you want to or not, and they can hear everything about you," she said of the hospital's emergency room. "We wanted to be able to provide a more private and complete setting for our patients."

Emergency department upgrades would also allow hospital staff more room to handle growing patient volumes, which Saia said have grown from little more than 2,000 visitors annually a decade ago to more than 3,000 in the past year.

Also planned for the emergency department is a separate entrance for ambulance personnel. At present, Saia said, emergency medical technicians and patients have to enter the ER area through the same door.

If the hospital's loan is approved by Rural Development, Saia said the hospital would like to expand its surgery area to include two operating rooms. That will eventually allow for the hiring of an additional general staff surgeon, she added.

With that in mind, she said, the hospital's main focus will be outpatient treatment and programs.

"We want this community to have the services it needs," Saia told commissioners. "We're probably not ever going to do heart surgery or brain surgery here, but we do want to keep our community healthy."

Holton Community Hospital, located north of Holton on U.S. Highway 75, was built in the late 1990s at an approximate cost of $5 million and opened to the public in January of 1999. The hospital does not receive any city or county tax revenues for operations.
