New telescope best in five-state region

By Brian Sanders

It's taken a lot of "blood, sweat, tears, money and time," but a larger, more powerful telescope is finally up and running at Banner Creek Science Center and Observatory.

And Mike Ford couldn't be happier that the Holton community now has the best observatory in the five-state region.

"There's just no comparison," said Ford, longtime Holton educator and science center director of the 24-inch PlaneWave telescope that has recently been installed at the observatory, replacing a 20-inch reflector telescope that's been in place for almost 15 years and boosting the observatory's capability for studying the stars by about 60 percent.

Ford noted he's "still tweaking" the telescope to get it ready for public use, but he's also eager to show off the newest addition to the science center at an upcoming event on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 20 — the science center's observation of NASA's International Observe The Moon Night, allowing people to see the moon in its "waxing gibbous" phase between first quarter and full moon.

"It's going to be a football-shaped moon," Ford said. "We're also going to take a look at Saturn and Mars that night."

And even though the new telescope has him smiling from ear to ear, Ford said bidding farewell to the old 20-inch telescope was a bittersweet air to it, as it was in place for so long — back when the observatory was located north of Holton High School and was known as Elk Creek Observatory.

"That old telescope's been in the community since October of 2000," he said. "A lot of people have utilized it, both on site and remotely. It's like we're losing a major part of Holton."

But after a bolt of lightning in a June 2017 storm rendered the old telescope obsolete — the company that made it was no longer around, and few, if any, parts were available to make repairs — Ford noted it was time to start fund-raising efforts for a new telescope, which he estimated at the time would cost about $120,000.

First, however, he had to get the blessing of Holton school district officials, since the district owned the telescope. In October of 2017, the Holton school board — of which Ford is a member — gave its blessing to replace the telescope and begin the fund-raising efforts (Ford abstained from the vote).

"Our community was very, very helpful in raising funds," he said. "And we had donors from all over. We were getting donations from as far away as Guam."

That fund-raising goal was met earlier this year, thanks to more than $50,000 in donations from Wetmore business owners and philanthropists Bob and June Carson, as well as $40,000 from an Arizona organization that wanted to make its own contribution to the observatory. Ford also noted a plethora of smaller but nonetheless significant donations that added up to make the new telescope a reality.

The 24-inch telescope arrived at the science center in late August, and Ford said he and Gary Hug of the Northeast Kansas Amateur Astronomers League uncrated the telescope almost immediately, putting it

USDA approves loan for hospital expansion

Holton Community Hospital officials announced Thursday, Oct. 4, that HCH had been approved to move forward with a loan from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) to fund the expansion and renovation of the current hospital.

"The funds are secured and we're working with our USDA representative in Topeka to take the next steps," said Carrie Saia, CEO at the hospital. "This is a very exciting time for our hospital."

The partnership with the USDA has been a long process with the hospital conducting multiple studies and surveys, including a financial feasibility study.

"The USDA feels confident in our ability to fulfill our financial responsibility for this project," said Bobbi McGrath, president of Rural Health Resources of

Jackson County, Inc., board of directors, which does business as Holton Community Hospital. "There are so many checks and balances in place and they are working with us to ensure we move forward as responsibly as possible with our plan."

The hospital's $17.6 million project will be funded mostly through the low-interest USDA loan with some funding being secured locally.

"There is so much work that goes into a project this size and it's been a challenge to keep the community up-to-date. We know that can be frustrating and we're working on that," McGrath said.

Keeping the community informed was the focus at the recent dual board meeting held with the Rural Health Resources of Jackson County, Inc (Holton Community Hospital) Board and the Holton Community Hospital Foundation Board. The boards recently hired Harvey Nonprofit Development, of Denver, Colo. to conduct an educational and fundraising feasibility study for the hospital.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 3, Harvey Nonprofit Development CEO, Ari Hunniford, presented the findings of the confidential study to the boards.

The study consisted of 45 questions to help the boards decide if an educational and fundraising campaign should be considered.

"The study definitely pointed out some inconsistencies with our communication style. The community was loud and clear that we must work harder at getting the information dispersed in a direct and clear way," Saia said. "It was also very clear how

Fall Fest to feature chili, vendors

By Ali Holcomb

Fall Fest is set for Saturday, Oct. 13, in downtown Holton, and the annual event will feature craft and product vendors, a scarecrow contest, performances by Holton school bands and a chili cook-off contest.

Sponsored by the Holton/Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, the annual event will kick off at 8 a.m. with more than 40 vendors on the Courthouse courtyard.

Ashlee York, Chamber administrative assistant, said vendor items include homemade furniture, pottery, jewelry, photography, children's clothing, candles and barbecue, as well as local businesses and non-profits. Items will be on display until 4 p.m.

Two ribbon-cutting celebrations are also scheduled for that morning around the Square. At 9 a.m., a ceremony will be held at the newly combined More Than Lemons and Uptown Treasures on the east side of the Square.

Then at 9:30 a.m., a ribbon-cutting for the reopening of the Fifth Street Sandwich Shoppe on the north side of the Square will be held.

At 11:30 a.m. members of the Holton High School and Holton Middle School bands will perform on the east side of the Courthouse.

The 19th annual chili cook-off is also being held that day.

Chili cooks will compete for regional bragging rights, and prizes will be awarded for first, second and third place in three categories, People's Choice, Judges' Choice and Most Creative Chili Booth based on voting by chili samplers and judges.

Cook-off participants must supply four to five gallons of chili for the event, as well as their own table, extension cords, cookers to keep the chili warm, ladles for serving and decorations and/or costumes.

Mayetta teen charged with attempted murder

An 18-year-old Mayetta man has been charged with attempted murder after allegedly shooting and injuring a 17-year-old girl after an altercation Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 3, according to Jackson County Sheriff Tim Morse.

Shortly after 3:30 p.m. that day, the Jackson County Sheriff's Office received a report of an alleged shooting at a residence at 15580 L. Rd. on the Prairie Band Potawatomi Reservation west of Mayetta. According to county records, the home is owned by Linda Bailey.

Sheriff Morse reported that a car occupied by three females drove into the driveway of the home. The female victim was reportedly standing outside the vehicle in the driveway when Lance Malone Bailey, 18, of Mayetta allegedly opened fire with a rifle, striking the victim twice.

Moran applauds passage of long-term FAA agreement

Senator Jerry Moran (R-Kan.), a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation; a member of the Aviation Operations, Safety and Security Subcommittee; and co-chair of the Senate Aerospace Caucus, applauded the recent passage of the FAA Reauthorization Act of 2018, H.R. 302, by a 93-6 vote in the Senate.

This legislation will provide critical reforms and a five-year extension to the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) authority. Last week, the House of Representatives passed this legislation on a vote of 398-23. The bill will now go to President Trump's desk for signature, making this five-year authorization the longest enacted since 1982.

"After years of negotiations, this long-term, bipartisan and bicameral FAA extension is welcome news for travelers, aerospace manufacturers and industry innovators," said Sen. Moran. "Not only does this reauthorization elevate the more than 40,000 Kansans who make a living manufacturing, operating and servicing the aircraft industry, but it includes important provisions I championed to close the aviation skills gap and to bring more women into this field."

"I have been a vocal opponent of misguided proposals to privatize our nation's air traffic control system, and I am pleased this extension does not include any of these controversial provisions," continued Sen. Moran. "ATC privatization threatens access to airspace for all but the largest cities with largest airports, causing significant harm to the long term economic viability of rural America. I will continue to advocate instead for proposals that provide greater protections for the general aviation industry and small airports nationwide that are so critical to connecting Americans in rural communities with the rest of the world. Overall, this legislation will make airline travel smoother, safer and more transparent for all Americans."

Highlights of the act include: * H.R. 302 bolsters aviation manufacturing by streamlining the aircraft certification process. These reforms will strengthen U.S. aviation sales and exports, help bring new safety technology to market and more effectively utilize the resources of the FAA and general aviation industry. In addition, the FAA Aircraft Registry office is exempted from closure during a government shutdown that would otherwise prevent the delivery of newly manufactured aircraft.

* H.R. 302 reauthorizes the FAA Center of Excellence for Advanced Materials at Wichita State University. Advanced materials research at WSU has played a critical role in the evolution and integration of aircraft materials and technologies by providing invaluable research to validate the safety and integrity of new aircraft to the general public.

* H.R. 302 helps close the skills gap in the aviation workforce. Sen. Moran is an original cosponsor of legislation, included in the FAA bill in its entirety, to create a pilot program within the FAA through which grants would be authorized to support technical education and career development.

The grants would encourage collaboration between businesses, schools and local government to develop innovative workforce development programs supported by all three types of entities to help close the skills gap in the aerospace industry, which is struggling from a shortage of skilled workers.

More on Sen. Moran's work to reach a long-term FAA agreement includes:

* In February, Sen. Moran met with Acting FAA Administrator Dan Elwell to stress the need for a long-term FAA reauthorization.

* In January, Sen. Moran reiterated his commitment to the long-term FAA reauthorization bill passed by the Senate Commerce Committee in June 2017.

* Last September, Sen. Moran spoke on the Senate floor regarding Congress' damaging practice of passing short-term, 11th hour extensions to the FAA's authority.

* In April 2016, Sen. Moran voted in favor of the Senate's FAA reform proposal and opposed the six-month extension that resulted after disagreement with the House.

* In December 2016, Sen. Moran joined a bipartisan group of colleagues in sending a letter to President-Elect Donald Trump and Vice-President-Elect Mike Pence on the importance of maintaining the FAA's Contract Tower Program.

180th anniversary of Potawatomi Trail of Death march noted

(Reprinted from The Miami County Republic newspaper)
The Trail of Death marked a dark chapter in U.S. history. The forced removal of more than 850 members of the Potawatomi nation who walked from northern Indiana to Sugar Creek, south of Osawatomie (in what is now Miami County), led to more than 40 deaths along the 660-mile march in the fall of 1838, it was reported. During the two-month march, the Potawatomi were subjected to horrible conditions – often surviving on meager food rations and dirty drinking water, and with little shelter. The march led to 42 deaths, mostly elderly and children who died from sickness and exposure. Their bodies were buried along the way in unmarked graves, according to the Trail of Death Association. On Saturday, Sept. 22, 2018, the Potawatomi Trail of Death Association Commemorative Caravan rolled through Osawatomie, stopping at City Auditorium to greet community members who provided them with a lunch – organized and hosted by the Osawatomie Ministerial Association – and musical entertainment from the Band of Oz. “This [luncheon] was a way to show honor to the ancestors of the Potawatomi who walked on the Trail of Death,” said Pastor John Wastlund of the Well Wesleyan Church, Osawatomie. The pastor was one of the main organizers of the event. The Trail of Death caravan takes place every five years to “commemorate the forced removal of our Potawatomi ancestors,” organizers of the caravan said. “When I learned that they were marched at gunpoint down Main Street in Rochester (Indiana), I decided I had to do something to honor the Potawatomi,” said Shirley Willard, a Rochester resident who has been organizing the caravan every five years since its inception in 1988. The caravan begins at Chief Menominee monument at Twin Lakes, south of Plymouth, Ind., and ends at St. Philippine Duchesne Memorial Park, near Sugar Creek. This year also marks the 200th anniversary of the arrival of Philippine Duchesne, a nun who was a missionary to the Potawatomi at Sugar Creek. The Potawatomi named her “She Who Prays Always.” Janet Pearl accompanied her 92-year-old father, Bob “Kiwezi” Pearl, the eldest of the Potawatomi on the caravan.

Pearl reflected on the hardships her ancestors endured on the trip – as did Ozawkie resident Theresa McNary, who said her great-great-grandmother walked on the Trail of Death. McNary and her husband, Wayne, were greeted at the door on Sept. 22 by Debbie Romero, secretary of the Osawatomie Ministerial Association. Romero said it was an honor to host the Potawatomi, noting the significance of this year’s caravan marking the 180th anniversary of the Trail of Death. “This is an historic event,” Romero said.

After lunch, the caravan continued to Sugar Creek, culminating a journey that began on Sept. 17. Osawatomie Mayor Mark Govea was among the townspeople who traveled to Sugar Creek with the caravan. Earlier, he greeted members of the caravan as they arrived at City Auditorium. “I feel honored and humbled to host the Potawatomi,” Govea said. “This is an important day for our community.”

Recent research by Dr. Hans Coetzee, department head and professor of anatomy and physiology, Kansas State University; Michael D. Kleinhenz, graduate student, Kansas State University; and a slew of others from Iowa State University has looked into the efficiency of dart guns.

The use of pneumatic darts to deliver medication to livestock animals has been gaining popularity, said Dr. Coetzee, head of the department of anatomy and physiology at Kansas State University (K-State).

Due to an increase in the number of reports of the use of the technology by producers and practitioners from the field, Dr. Coetzee, in collaboration with colleagues at the College of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State University, recently published a study in the Journal of Animal Science detailing the use of pneumatic darts to administer tulathromycin (Draxxin) to cattle.

Historically, darting is a practice more commonly used to deliver drugs to wildlife. However, the use of pneumatic darts to deliver medication to sick cattle has seen an increase in some parts of the U.S.

In pasture and range conditions, where handling facilities are not immediately available, producers and practitioners have employed the use of darting to administer medication as soon as an illness is identified.

The team's first surprise came with the discovery that the darts did not consistently deliver the drug, according to Dr. Coetzee.

"There were four out of 15 animals that were successfully darted where the dart failed to deliver the drug altogether," Dr. Coetzee said.

In other cases, trace amounts of the drug were found in the animals, not at levels effective against the bacteria causing the infection, but at levels that could pose a risk of tissue residues or promote the development of antimicrobial resistance.

It's a significant finding, because when a dart is delivered, it can remain attached to the animal receiving treatment for up to an hour following delivery. Without retrieving the dart, producers would not know if the drug was delivered.

"In all cases, we would recommend that producers label the darts and retrieve them after they are expelled so they know if the drug was actually delivered through the dart to the target animal," Dr. Coetzee said. Dart retrieval will also prevent the needles from posing a risk to off-target animals and the environment.

A second finding from the study determined animals that were darted had a lower overall exposure to Draxxin compared to animals that were held in a squeeze chute and injected under the skin. Total drug exposure is a critical requirement for treatment success with drugs like Draxxin.

"The question our study raised is that with these delivery technologies, is the drug being delivered under the skin or in the muscle?" Dr. Coetzee pointed out. "Drugs like Draxxin are only approved for injection under the skin. In our study, we found that the drug behaved differently in the animal when it was darted versus when it was injected under the skin, suggesting that some of the drug may have been injected into the muscle. What we don't know at this time is whether the site of injection will impact the effectiveness of the drug or the potential for violative tissue residues." That will take additional studies, he said.

Dr. Coetzee also pointed out a handful of animal welfare concerns surrounding the technology. According to the study, darting appears to result in increased pain sensitivity and inflammation at the injection site, and appears to be more stressful compared to placing animals in a squeeze chute and administering the injection subcutaneously.

Darting can potentially be a useful tool, Dr. Coetzee maintained, but warned producers and practitioners of the limitations to the technology when treating animals.

"There are significant challenges with making sure the drug is delivered correctly," he said. "If producers are going to use this technology, they should be aware that our study represented the best-case scenario," he said. "Animals were restrained with rope halters at a fixed distance from an experienced veterinarian who was delivering the dart from a dead rest."

In spite of this, in one-third of the study animals, the dart was not administered in the Beef Quality Assurance (BQA)-compliant area of the neck.

While darting can be a convenient way to deliver a drug in range conditions, Dr. Coetzee concluded, there are significant limitations to this technology that producers should consider before they decide to deliver drugs this way.

HHS girls place sixth out of 11 at Falcon Lakes

By Brian Sanders

After winning three tournaments in a row, Holton High School's varsity girls golf team found itself falling back in the scores at the Basehor-Linwood Invitational on Thursday at Falcon Lakes Golf Course in Basehor, finishing sixth out of 11 in the team scores.

Coach Dennis Tegethoff noted that while the Lady Wildcat golfers "didn't play horrible," they stumbled a bit on the links that afternoon.

"We just didn't play as well as we have been," coach Tegethoff said. "It's a tough course, and playing it down for the first time this year does make a little difference... Otherwise, we didn't play too bad."

Senior golfer Sarah Holaday also stumbled after taking top individual honors in her last two tournaments, finishing just outside the top 10 alongside senior teammate Taylor Stevens with 92 strokes each. Stevens ranked 11th, while Holaday finished 12th.

"It didn't help that Sarah had to finish the last two holes in the dark," Tegethoff said. "She lost two balls and had high scores on both of those, or she would have medaled again."

Tegethoff and the Lady Wildcats went into the weekend hoping for a home-field advantage at the KSHSAA

Class 4A regional tournament, held this morning at the Holton Country Club with Kansas City-Piper, Shawnee Mission-Bishop Miege, Tonganoxie, Topeka-Hayden and Wamego participating.

The top three teams and best individual golfers at the Class 4A regionals will go on to compete at the Class 4A state tournament next Monday at Hutchinson's Carey Park. Team scores are calculated by the best four individual scores on a team.

Prep volleyball sub-state assignments reviewed for local teams

By Ali Holcomb

The sub-state assignments for high school volleyball were announced recently, and some area teams will be facing familiar competition in the postseason.

All sub-state tournaments will be played on Saturday, Oct. 20.

Both Royal Valley and Holton will compete at a Class 3A sub-state tournament at Silver Lake.

The tournament will also include Maur Hill-Mount Academy, Council Grove, Pleasant Ridge, Jefferson West, St. Marys and Silver Lake.

RV defeated Silver Lake at a tournament on Sept. 1 in three sets. At their home tournament on Sept. 29, the Lady Eagles defeated RV in three sets.

Valley Heights will be the host site for the Class 2A sub-state tournament that will also include Jackson Heights, Republic County, ACCHS, Horton, Oskaloosa, Rossville and Jefferson County North.

Jefferson County North has the best record in the sub-state pairing and defeated Jackson Heights earlier this year in three sets.

In order to win their Class 1A sub-state tournament in Onaga, Wetmore will have to go through Axtell, Doniphan West, Onaga, Troy, Valley Falls and Centralia.

Tournament seeding and brackets for all sub-state tournaments are expected to be released on Wednesday, Oct. 17.

Cobras beat Troy, Horton, fall to V. Falls

■ Lady Cobras to host triangular tomorrow

By Brian Sanders

Jackson Heights High School's Lady Cobra varsity volleyball team went two-for-three in a Thursday night home quad, defeating Troy and Horton but falling to Valley Falls in non-league action.

Head Coach Denise Visocky said Thursday's action was good overall for the Lady Cobras, currently 6-6 in the Northeast Kansas League and 19-11 overall for the season.

"We played well, and we were able to move the ball around a lot more than usual," coach Visocky said.

Heights opened up the evening with a straight-set win over Troy, 25-18 and 25-13, that saw senior Karley Dieckmann and sophomore Amaya Marlatt getting some good shots at the net, Visocky said.

"We started out a little slow, but we were able to get going and hit really well to get warmed up for the long night ahead," she added.

The Lady Cobras then went up against NEK League foe Valley Falls, losing the first set 25-20. The second set against the Lady Dragons saw Heights mounting a comeback, but the Lady Cobras ended up losing the set and the match on a 26-24 score.

"We were able to make some adjustments and try to get that win in the second set," Visocky said. "We were just not able to stop (Valley Falls junior) Jaci Brinker."

Visocky credited the work of junior Kylie Dohl, sophomore Sarah Marshall and freshman McKenzie McMahon at the net in keeping the second set against Valley Falls a close one.

In the nightcap, the Lady Cobras took down Horton in straight sets, 25-12 and 25-7.

"This was an easier win for us," Visocky said of the Horton match. "I have been trying to get our girls to play at a higher level and not drop down in play when we take on certain teams. So I was pleased in how we came out and played against Horton and Troy, not dropping down and playing poorly."

Dohl, McMahon and junior Sydney Raborn were cited by Visocky for their work on the court in the Horton match.

Another home meet is up next for the Lady Cobras, who will be hosting Valley Falls and McLouth on Tuesday.

"Hopefully we can continue making changes to move the ball around and get Valley Falls this time," Visocky said.

National 4-H Week aims to "Inspire Kids To Do"

For the 76th consecutive year, millions of youth, parents, volunteers and 4-H alumni across the country will celebrate National 4-H Week from Sunday, Oct. 7 through Saturday, Oct. 13, it was reported.

This year's theme, "Inspire Kids To Do," is a campaign that will give kids more opportunities to do, empowering them with the skills they need to succeed in their lives and careers.

Throughout National 4-H Week, Meadowlark District-Holton 4-H will showcase the many ways 4-H inspires kids to do through hands-on learning experiences, in addition to highlighting the remarkable 4-H youth in the community who work each day to make a positive impact on those around them.

4-H was founded on the belief that when kids are empowered to pursue their passions and chart their own courses, their unique skills grow and take shape, helping them to become true leaders in their lives, careers and communities.

Meadowlark District-Holton's 4-H clubs are celebrating National 4-H Week by taking part in community service projects such as canned food drives, making table decorations for senior citizen care homes and picking up trash and debris at Prairie Lake.

Throughout the week, young people will be at Tractor Supply Company in Holton, passing out clovers and asking for donations to help support their 4-H program. Young people will also be attending church for 4-H Sunday and promoting 4-H in their schools by passing out 4-H pencils, bookmarks, coloring pages and hanging 4-H posters.

Many community clubs will be creating window displays at local businesses around Holton's Town Square to showcase their 4-H pride and projects, it was reported.

Meadowlark District-Holton has 11 local 4-H clubs and two community project clubs — dog and shooting sports. 4-H offers more than 30 interest areas where young people can learn, grow and excel. Those interest areas include bee keeping, foods and nutrition, clothing, photography, woodworking, dogs, pets, horses and goats, to name a few.

4-H is a year-round program for youth between the ages of 7 and 18. Open enrollment began Oct. 1 and can be found online at <https://ks.4honline.com>

tive impact that 4-H has had on them as young people. In fact, research has shown that young people in 4-H are nearly four times as likely to contribute to their communities and are twice as likely to engage in Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) programs during after-school time.

According to 4-H program manager Cara Robinson, "4-H grows courage, creativity, character, confidence and so much more in today's youth. 4-H allows youth to use the skills that they learn to go out and make a positive difference in their communities. National 4-H Week is a great time to show off all the wonderful things 4-H has to offer."

In Meadowlark-Holton, more than 255 4-H youth and 80 volunteers from the community are involved in 4-H. For more information about the Meadowlark Extension District 4-H program and upcoming events, please visit your local Extension Office or go to www.meadowlark.k-state.edu/4-h/ to find out more.

A brief history of 4-H

Since 4-H began more than 100 years ago, it has become the nation's largest youth development organization. The 4-H idea is simple: help young people and their families gain the skills needed to be proactive forces in their communities and develop ideas for a more innovative economy.

4-H has opened the door for young people to learn leadership skills and revolutionized how youth connected to practical, hands-on learning experiences outside the classroom.

In the late 1800s, researchers discovered adults in the farming community did not readily accept new agricultural developments on university campuses, but found that young people were open to new thinking and would experiment with new ideas and share their experiences with adults. In this way, rural youth programs introduced new agriculture technology to communities.

The idea of practical and "hands-on" learning came from the desire to connect public school education to country life. Building community clubs to help solve agricultural challenges was a first step toward youth learning more about the industries in their community.

A. B. Graham started a youth program in Clark County, Ohio, in 1902, which is considered the birth of 4-H in the United States. The first club was called "The Tomato Club" or the "Corn Growing Club."

T.A. Erickson of Douglas County, Minn., started local agricultural after-school clubs and fairs that same year. Jessie Field Shambaugh developed the clover pin with an H on each leaf in 1910, and by 1912 they were called 4-H clubs.

The passage of the Smith-Lever Act in 1914 created the Cooperative Extension System at USDA and nationalized 4-H. By 1924, 4-H clubs were formed and the clover emblem was adopted.

The Cooperative Extension System is a partnership of the National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) within the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), more than 100 land-grant universities and more than 3,000 county offices across the nation. Cooperative Extension combines the expertise and resources of federal, state, and local governments and is designed to meet the need for research, knowledge and educational programs.

Today, 4-H serves youth in rural, urban and suburban communities in every state across the nation. 4-H'ers are tackling the nation's top issues, from global food security, climate change and sustainable energy to childhood obesity and food safety.

4-H out-of-school programming, in-school enrichment programs, clubs and camps also offer a wide variety of STEM opportunities — from agricultural and animal sciences to rocketry, robotics, environmental protection and computer science — to improve the nation's ability to compete in key scientific fields and take on the leading challenges of the 21st century.

Celebrities honor their beginnings in 4-H

This year, 4-H is placing a national spotlight on the stories of young people through its "Inspire Kids To Do" campaign.

Led by youth and alumni voices, the campaign aims to engage parents, alumni and the public to join 4-H in empowering one million kids to learn-by-doing year-round and send a message of inspiration — the more kids do, the more they grow the skills they need for life and career.

Once thought of as less significant than academic learning, life skills such as confidence, resilience and curiosity are now mandatory to prepare kids for life readiness, impacting their education, future careers and societal engagement.

Preparing kids with these skills today, comes at a pivotal time in the United States, when the need for a highly adaptive workforce and leaders who can solve community and societal challenges is more critical than ever.

"4-H knows that more kids 'doing' works. For more than a century, we've inspired youth to learn-by-doing by leveraging the best knowledge and research from more than 100 public universities," says Jennifer Sirangelo, president and CEO of the National 4-H Council.

"By creating hands-on programs customized for the needs of local communities, and by building the largest national network of positive youth-adult relationships kids get more opportunities to learn-by-doing and their unique skills grow and take shape," Sirangelo said. "This campaign is about empowering the actions of millions of true leaders — youth who do with purpose, impacting their own lives and changing the world around them."

To kick off the campaign, an array of prominent 4-H alumni voices who embody the results of "doing," ranging from musicians and athletes to actors and media personalities, are featured in a series of alumni ads for social media and digital release as an opportunity to share the impact of 4-H and highlight the life skills garnered from hands-on doing.

"We hope 4-H alumni across the country will also join us in sparking change, supporting our communities, and inspiring a movement by helping us to grow the next generation of true leaders," says Artis Stevens, chief marketing officer for the National 4-H Council. "Our alumni base of 25 million have firsthand knowledge of the incredible impact of 4-H."

"'Inspire Kids To Do' is an opportunity for alumni to reconnect and share the powerful message of doing by amplifying the stories of young people and creating 'doing' experiences like those that helped them pursue a positive path in life and achieve their goals," Stevens added.

Alumni supporters include Grammy award-winning singer and songwriter, Georgia 4-H alumna Jennifer Nettles, and award-winning journalist and South Carolina 4-H alumna, Craig Melvin.

"I support 4-H because of all that it's given me. Growing up in a small town in Georgia, 4-H opened doors and set the groundwork for me to pursue my dreams," Nettles said.

Other celebrity alumni supporters include:

- Aubrey Plaza, producer and actress, currently on FX's Legion, Delaware 4-H alumna.
- Reba McEntire, award-winning singer, actress, author, entrepreneur, philanthropist, Oklahoma 4-H alumna.

Gov. Colyer issues proclamation recognizing importance of National 4-H Week in Kansas

Kansas Gov. Jeff Colyer signed a proclamation on Monday, Oct. 2 recognizing Oct. 7-13 as National 4-H Week in Kansas, clearing the way for a week-long celebration of America's largest youth development organization.

4-H reaches nearly 75,000 young people across Kansas. Colyer's proclamation notes that National 4-H Week "highlights the remarkable 4-H youth in Kansas who work each day to make a positive impact on those around them."

The Kansas 4-H program is delivered through K-State Research and Extension and its network of local extension offices. Amy Sollock, the southwest area 4-H youth development specialist, notes that the organization empowers youth with skills to lead in their life and career.

"4-H was founded on the belief that when kids are empowered to pursue their passions and chart their own course, their unique skills grow and take shape, helping them to become true leaders in their lives, careers and communities," Sollock said.

In addition to the youth members, there are nearly 11,000 people who volunteer their time to Kansas 4-H by creating the life experiences that "Inspire Kids to Do" for their communities, which is the theme for National 4-H Week.

"4-H Youth Development has been a part of Kansas communities since 1905," said Wade Weber, state program leader for Kansas 4-H. "Today more than ever, 4-H provides a unique opportunity for youth to discover their passions, build their skills, and grow confidence with the support of caring adults and dynamic partnerships with local and K-State based resources.

"4-H youth build essential life skills like problem solving, team work, communication, and decision making that enable them to become tomorrow's leaders by doing leadership today," he added.

National 4-H Week in Kansas will wrap up Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 13 and 14, with the fifth-annual "48 Hours Of 4-H" community service event taking place across the state. 4-Hers and volunteers plan community service events sometime during that weekend to symbolize the organization's commitment of "doing."

"Kansas 4-Hers are active in their community year-round, but '48 Hours Of 4-H' is an opportunity to highlight the 4-H members and volunteers who are 'doing' all across Kansas," Sollock said. "In 4-H, kids roll up their sleeves and do with their hands.

Their experiences grow the confidence they need for life and career. 4-Hers do with a purpose, lead by example and empower their peers to do the same."

More information about 48 Hours of 4-H is available online. On social media, look for the hashtag, #484H, and for more information about National 4-H Week, visit 4-H.org mount together and discovering the new telescope and the mount were "a perfect fit." "We've got the most updated technology on a telescope in five states," Ford said. "This mount is really technologically advanced."

That's because where most mounts use a system of gears to move around, the altazimuth mount — one that allows for movement along vertical and horizontal axes simultaneously — for the 24-inch telescope is directed by an electromagnetic field that allows the telescope to track more easily, and quickly, than its predecessor.

The mount also gives the telescope an improved tracking that allows it take longer and better images from outer space. "It's got extremely precise resolution, and a better set of optics," he added.

There's still a little bit of electrical rewiring work to do on the new telescope, but Ford is optimistic that he will have the work done in time for the International Observe The Moon event on Oct. 20.

"We're going to be open from about 6 p.m. until whenever that night," he said. "We're also going to have several telescopes out that night, small ones and large ones."

important the community feels that the hospital is. It was a great reminder of why we work so hard for our patients and why we must continue to plan for the future."

The boards voted unanimously to hire Hunniford and Harvey Nonprofit Development to implement an educational and capital campaign.

"Hospitals and their finances are extremely complicated," Hunniford said. "I'm looking forward to working with the Holton Community Hospital staff to create a communication plan that will help the community understand the path of the hospital project."

Hunniford said she has worked with many rural Kansas hospitals including Smith County Memorial Hospital, which opened a brand new facility this summer, and Rawlins County Health Center.

In addition to improving the emergency department, the renovations include the construction of a new, 11,690-square-foot rural health clinic that would provide more room for the hospital's growing roster of outpatient services.

Saia told Holton City Commissioners in recent months that expansion was necessary because of new services added at the hospital during 2017. Those services included pulmonary function testing, nuclear imaging and stress tests, weekly outpatient urology services and an outpatient group therapy program for senior citizens.

Plans are for the new clinic to be built east and south of the current hospital building, with the new clinic and existing hospital to be connected by a new entrance that features a drop-off area with a covered awning. The new clinic will also include a second floor that would be partially finished for relocation of office space.

The renovation side of HCH's plan involves improvements in the hospital's existing emergency department, Saia said, including greater privacy for patients in the emergency room.

For additional information, contact Pam Holaday of the HCH administrative team at 785-364-9660.

During the recent Hunting and Fishing Day at Jackson Heights Elementary School, Nick Kramer (at right), a fish biologist with the Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks and Tourism at Lake Perry, visited with kindergarten students about seven types of fish common to northeastern Kansas. Here, Kramer showed students a blue catfish.

Each chili booth must be ready by 10:30 a.m. that day, and the Chamber will provide bowls, spoons and napkins.

There is a $5 fee to register your chili booth for the cook-off, and cooks can contact the Chamber office at 785-364-3963 or chamber@exploreholton.com to register. As of last Thursday, six cooks had signed up for the contest, York said.

Registration forms are also available at www.exploreholton.com. Participants can also register up to, and including, the day of the event. The cook-off "command station" will be located inside the Jackson County Courthouse that day.

People's Choice voting will end at 1 p.m., and chili cooks must return their voting containers to the registration table by 1:05 p.m. in order to have their votes tallied.

Chili sampling packs will be sold for $5 each for the public to sample chili from each cooker the day of the event. The packs will be sold inside the Courthouse.

A scarecrow contest will be held on the north side of the Square that day and is open to school groups, youth groups, clubs, organizations and businesses.

Entry forms are available by emailing chamber@exploreholton.com or at www.exploreholton.com.

Prizes will be awarded for the best decorated scarecrow, and there is a $5 entry fee.

Proceeds from this year's Fall Fest will benefit the Jackson County Christmas Bureau, which provides gifts and household goods at Christmas time to needy families and elderly citizens.

Shooting...

"The incident is believed to have occurred during a verbal altercation between the suspect and victim," Morse said. "The female victim is also of Mayetta."

The three girls left the scene in the vehicle and then called law enforcement, it was reported. The victim was located at 15752 Pheasant Run, according to Potawatomi Tribal Police.

Both the Jackson County Sheriff's Office and the Potawatomi Tribal Police responded to the scene.

Bailey was taken into custody and was later transported to the Jackson County Jail.

Others identified at the scene were detained for questioning and released, it was reported.

The victim, whose name has not been released, was transported to a Topeka hospital by BPN EMS where she was reported to be in "satisfactory condition" Wednesday evening, Morse said.

Deputies and officers obtained a search warrant Wednesday evening and processed the scene, the sheriff said. Bailey was booked into the jail on charges of attempted first degree murder, two counts of aggravated assault, possession of marijuana and possession of illegal drug paraphernalia.

The matter remains under investigation and anyone with additional information is encouraged to contact the Jackson County Sheriff's Office at 785-364-2251 or the Potawatomi Tribal Police at 785-966-3024.

Bailey is a 2018 graduate of Royal Valley High School, and members of the RV district reported that they had additional counseling available for students on Thursday.
