

Holton schools picked for KSDE redesign project

Holton High School and Holton Middle School are two of 41 schools in Kansas that have been selected to take part in Apollo, the fourth phase of the Kansas Can School Redesign Project, the Kansas State Department of Education has announced.

The names of the schools and 19 school districts were announced during the Kansas State Board of Education meeting last week. The announcement brings the total number of schools taking part in the redesign process to about 150, representing 66 school districts.

The Kansas Can School Redesign Project was announced in 2017 in support of Kansas' vision for education. "Kansas leads the world in the success of each student."

The vision was created in 2015 based on feedback from 20 community meetings and seven business conversations that took place across the state, according to Ann Bush of the KSDE.

During those conversations, Kansans said that schools need to place an equal amount of focus on helping students develop nonacademic skills, such as social-emotional growth, as they do on developing academic skills.

This vision calls for a more student-focused system that provides support and resources for individual success.

In order for the state to achieve this vision, Kansans have to think differently about how students are educated. The current educational system has worked well for some students but not for all students. By personalizing education, students engage in learning that is personalized to their individual preferences and at a pace that ensures they are achieving to their fullest potential, Bush said.

More engagement means fewer student absences, fewer behavior referrals and an increase in student achievement. When a student's learning is designed around what he or she is passionate about, the likelihood of that student graduating and moving toward a successful future increases.

Meetings slated on redesign, bus fees

Holton USD 336 is inviting all district parents and patrons to public information meetings on the Apollo Redesign process and the possibility of bus fees for the 2019-20 school year, it was reported.

The district has scheduled a "community information event" on the Apollo Redesign process from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. this Wednesday in the Holton High School auditorium.

An informational meeting on possible bus fees for the next school year has also been scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. next Tuesday, April 30, in the HHS library. Both meetings are open to the public.

It has been reported that HHS and Holton Middle School have been accepted as schools going through the Apollo Redesign process by the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE). For the Apollo phase, KSDE invited districts to designate one or more elementary and/or secondary schools to be designed around the five outcomes established by the Kansas State Board of Education, the five elements identified as defining a successful Kansas high school graduate and what Kansans said they want their schools to look like in the future.

The hunt is on

Three-year-old Paxtyn Warren, daughter of Ritchie and Jennifer Warren of Holton, reached for one of thousands of Easter eggs scattered about the Jackson County Courtyard for the Holton/Jackson County Chamber of Commerce's annual Easter egg hunt on Saturday afternoon. Children aged 10 and under took part in the hunt for Easter eggs, four of which contained "golden tickets" with special prizes.

Governor's bill allows for 'vote centers'

By Ali Holcomb

Registered Jackson County voters might be able to cast their vote at a more convenient polling location in the county thanks to a new bill signed into law recently by Gov. Laura Kelly.

Gov. Kelly said House Substitute for Senate Bill 130 is "about local control and protecting every vote."

"Over the past decade, we have seen countless efforts aimed at making voting more difficult in this state," Gov. Kelly said in a news release. "I hope this will be the first of many laws that help ensure that every voice is heard in our democratic process and that every vote is counted."

The new law, which takes effect Thursday, April 25, gives county election officials the discretion to allow all registered voters to cast their ballots at any polling place in their county on Election Day.

Kathy Mick, who serves as the Jackson County clerk and election officer, said that the secretary of state's office will be adopting new regulations regarding the bill, and it's still unknown whether all current polling locations will be open to all voters as designated "vote centers" or if Mick can just designate some of the polls as "vote centers."

A "vote center" is a polling location that is open to any registered voter in the county.

"I would like to just do some as vote centers, but it's possible that we may have to open up all of them," Mick said.

Registered voters in Jackson County sign into their polling location to vote using a "poll pad," and Mick said the poll pads will need to be linked together to determine who's voted and who hasn't.

"If someone from Soldier is coming from Topeka and wants to vote in Douglas Township, we'll need the Soldier poll pad to communicate with the Douglas one so it knows the person has already voted, and they don't vote twice," Mick explained.

Voters who choose to vote at a polling location other than the one in their assigned precinct may likely have to vote on a computer touchscreen, as opposed to a paper ballot, Mick said.

"That way I don't have to have 36 different paper ballots on file at each polling location," she said. "People will have to be willing to vote using the touchscreen."

Mick said the new law was passed to increase convenience for voters, as well as help voters

Holloman retiring after 39 years as teacher, principal at Royal Valley

By Ali Holcomb

During his 39-year career in education, Jim Holloman has only worked for one district, Royal Valley, and he said he's proud of the strides the district has made for its students through the years.

"When I reflect back, I would not do anything different," Holloman said Thursday. "There's not many people who can say they love their job, and every day that I got up, I loved coming to Royal Valley. Being around these kids and co-workers made it so easy for me."

Holloman is retiring at the end of the school year from RV where he's served as the high school principal for 25 years and as a RVHS teacher for 14 years before that.

"It's a good time to retire," Holloman said. "We have a good staff, and we're solid with our administrative team. It's a good place to work, and I enjoy what I do."

Holloman, a Topeka High graduate, was hired as a U.S. Government and History teacher in the district in the fall of 1980. It was his first teaching job after graduating from Washburn University.

"My mom was a kindergarten teacher so I was around education. Every summer, my siblings and I would go to her school and set up her bulletin boards," he said. "I also had great teachers growing up, and some of my parents' best friends were teachers. I wanted to be a teacher to impact others and play some significance in their lives."

Holloman started out as an assistant football and freshmen basketball coach at Royal Valley.

Three years later, Royal Valley switched from the Jefferson-Jackson County League to the Big Seven League, which included wrestling.

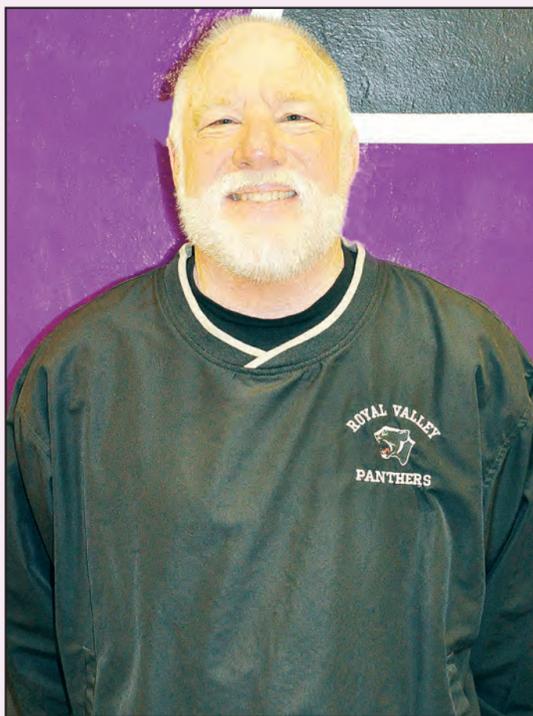

"The administrators knew my strength was wrestling, and they approached me about running the program," he said. "I jumped. I was ecstatic. We bought a mat and rolled it out to the commons area every day. At the end of practice, we'd roll the mat back up and into my classroom."

Royal Valley offers a tuition reimbursement for its staff members who pursue an advanced degree so Holloman took advantage of that and was able to obtain a degree in administration through Kansas State University.

"I didn't have any aspirations for a long-term principal position," he said. "When the job opened up, I decided to interview. It was a win-win. I loved my classroom and coaching wrestling, but the timing was right for me to jump in this new role."

Holloman said other district administrators pursued him to teach and coach in other districts but nothing drew him away from Royal Valley.

"The kids here are awesome, and how could I leave here?"

Royal Valley High School Principal Jim Holloman is retiring at the end of this school year after 39 years of service at the school, first as a teacher, then as an administrator.

I was bleeding purple at this point and it's where I wanted to be. Once I got the principal position, it was set in stone," he said.

Through the years, Holloman said he's seen many changes in the district.

"The kids are the same. It's just everything around them

Sentencing scheduled for Perez-Marquez

By Brian Sanders

The Omaha, Neb. woman charged in connection with the deaths of three members of a Sabetha family in a 2017 traffic accident north of Netawaka has pleaded no contest to three charges of vehicular homicide in connection with the accident, it was noted on Friday in Jackson County District Court.

Maria D. Perez-Marquez, 49, also entered a no-contest plea to a charge of aggravated battery during that afternoon's hearing in advance of a scheduled three-day trial, which had been set to begin Wednesday, May 1.

District Court Judge Norbert Marek took Perez-Marquez's trial out of setting and scheduled a sentencing hearing for Friday, June 14.

The charges against Perez-Marquez stem from the Nov. 25, 2017 traffic accident on U.S. Highway 75 about a mile north of Netawaka in which she allegedly drove her vehicle into the path of a minivan driven north on U.S. 75 by Carmen Ukele, 42, and carrying three other members of Ukele's family, all of Sabetha.

The accident resulted in the deaths of Ukele, her daughter, Marlee Ukele, 11, and another family member, Stephen Ukele, 62, and injuries to her husband, Lee Ukele. Perez-Marquez was also injured in the accident, as was a passenger in her vehicle.

Draper dealing with structural nuisances

By Brian Sanders

When dilapidated houses and outbuildings become a blight on a neighborhood, the property owner usually has one of two options — restore the structure, or tear it down.

And when the second option is the most viable in Holton, Codes Enforcement Officer Jeff Draper said he is willing to give property owners whatever help he can in removing structural eyesores.

"I generally try to work with folks as long as they are making progress," said Draper, who has served as the city's codes enforcement officer since October 2016.

Most recently, Draper has had to work with the owner of a dilapidated house in the 600 block of Ohio Avenue in coming up with the best course of action for the house. Last week, the

Bontrager inducted into Phi Kappa Phi

Alexandria Bontrager of Whiting was recently initiated into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the nation's oldest and most selective all-discipline collegiate honor society, it was reported.

Bontrager is pursuing degrees in micro/cell/molecular biology and Spanish at Kansas State University.

Bontrager is among approximately 30,000 students, faculty, professional staff and alumni to be initiated into Phi Kappa Phi each year.

Membership is by invitation only and requires nomination and approval by a chapter. Only the top 10 percent of seniors and 7.5 percent of juniors are eligible for membership.

Graduate students in the top 10 percent of the number of candidates for graduate degrees may also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.

Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1897 under the leadership of undergraduate student Marcus

L. Urann who had a desire to create a different kind of honor society: one that recognized excellence in all academic disciplines.

Today, the society has chapters on more than 300 campuses in the United States and the Philippines. Its mission is "to recognize and promote academic excellence in all fields of higher education and to engage the community of scholars in service to others."

Moravan Lodge #128

By Bob Dolezilek

This year started off with the Moravan Lodge being named as a Shining Star Award winner from Western Fraternal Life Insurance Company. The lodge was one of 19 winners nationally.

The lodge named Maxine Carver as its fratelist of the year. Carver taught school at St. Mary's for 30-plus years. She was involved in many organizations and was the secretary for the lodge. Sadly, she was hospitalized with an infection and died in January. The lodge's spring dance will be held in her honor.

The lodge received a donation of 25 polka music albums from Margarite and Merrill Hinkle of Mayetta.

Kolaches were sold at a Rossville High School basketball game.

A motion was made and it passed unanimously to pursue the polka being named as the official dance of Kansas by the Legislature. One senator and one representative have agreed to sponsor a bill. In addition, the lodge's representative has said that he will back the bill.

Doug Martinek has been busy gathering names and letters of support. The lodge produced a brochure about the polka. The polka is about the same age as Kansas. A polka was written for the first governor of Kansas. This polka may be played at the lodge's spring dance.

Martinek attended a celebration of the 20th anniversary of the Czech Republic joining NATO. A commemoration was held at the Truman Library in Kansas City, Mo. Then, a brunch was held at Sugar Creek Museum, also in Kansas City.

Bob and Diana Dolezilek and Julie Dolezilek attended the annual meeting of the Czech-Slovak Club of Kansas City. A linden tree was planted in Sugar Creek Park after the meeting. The tree is a Czech symbol

GUEST COMMENTARY

Reading printed material better for comprehension

By John Richard Schrock

A new analysis of research on reading on digital screens versus reading on paper has concluded that print is superior for comprehension.

“Reading Compared to Screens: A Systematic Review and Meta-Analysis” by Virginia Clinton was published Jan. 13 of this year in the Journal of Research in Reading. A “meta-analysis” is an analysis of the previously published research articles and data.

Clinton’s conclusions provide strength to teacher concerns over the last two decades. Veteran college professors have observed this erosion of student reading comprehension, along with a false overconfidence in some students.

The first warnings came from graduates of high schools that went “paperless,” primarily schools in affluent districts that wanted to impress parents with their modernity.

While paperless schools bragged about saving several hundred thousand dollars in texts and paper, much of that effort simply shifted the printing to the students’ printers at home. When I asked such students if they still read Shakespeare in English classes, the answer was “Sure, but you can’t do that on Trios [the handheld device of that time]. We print it off at home!”

Students already recognized the problems of eyestrain and skimming of digital text. Their schools’ bragging was empty; rather than “saving” resources by going online, the school was costing the students by requiring each one to print off their “textbook” on home printers that cost more time and money.

They were going to “paperless” schools but still doing much schoolwork at home on paper. Not anymore.

This last decade has seen most schools go to one-to-one computing (every student on a digital device), often against the professional judgement of veteran teachers who knew screens were inferior.

Much of Clinton’s conclusions can be explained based on earlier work by communication scientists such as Charles Bigelow, recently retired from Rochester Institute of Technology, and Gordon Legge, originator of MNREAD and author of Psychophysics of Reading in Normal and Low Vision.

Bigelow had long ago predicted the need for higher screen resolution to match a printed page. Much of that higher resolution has been achieved, and 5G will likely make electronic and print resolution equivalent.

Other questions will need to be answered that Clinton’s research set did not address, such as why comprehension is higher with a black-and-white “ink” display than with a full color backlit display. But reading is a far more complex task than these one-dimensional screen-versus-print studies address, and additional research on reading factors described by Bigelow and Legge need to be conducted.

This research by Clinton at The University of North Dakota was narrowly focused: “The purpose of this systematic review and meta-analysis is to consolidate the findings on reading performance, reading times and calibration of performance (metacognition) between reading text from paper compared to screens.”

Clinton used seven databases to locate studies comparing reading on paper versus screens. “Additional studies were identified by contacting researchers who have published on the topic, by a backwards search of the references of found reports and by a snowball search of reports citing what was initially found. Only studies that were experiments with random assignment and with participants who had fundamental reading skills and disseminated between 2008 and 2018 were included.”

She found 29 reports that included 33 studies that met her inclusion.

Her findings were clear. There was a small but statistically important benefit to reading on paper for reading performance, metacognition and efficiency. This is no surprise to college students, the majority of whom have clearly rejected e-textbooks, nor to the general public. Both were forecast to have totally abandoned print by 2015, but are still reading books today.

Screen reading’s lower efficiency poses little harm for reading romance novels. But this should cause educators to return to print and think twice concerning computer-based testing and expecting students to comprehend and remember extensive text read on screens.

We should also reconsider if the high school diploma and college degree of this era remain equivalent to those credentials back when students read and retained more in print.

We can expect the education-technology-industrial complex to gear up its propaganda “journals” to discount this research. But now we know the correct reply to their marketing phrase: “You can’t teach tomorrow’s students with today’s technology.” That reply is: “Yes, print would be better.”

MOLLETTE: Falsifying information and bribing people often fast tracks to jail

By Glenn Mollette

Is it possible to have a “new” news story?

We now have a college admission scandal. Breaking stories of wealth and influence traded for admission to some of the nation’s most prestigious colleges are now unfolding.

Allegedly Hollywood stars to corporate CEOs are being named for spending hundreds of thousands to millions of dollars to obtain a son’s or daughter’s admission to some of America’s most prestigious universities.

Some students have reportedly received athletic team and even academic recognition based on financial influence. There will be more to come from this story.

“Whatever it takes to get ahead,” is the philosophy of a segment of our culture. Sometimes this is seen on the interstate highway when one motorist endangers hundreds of other drivers by driving a hundred miles per hour while weaving in and out of traffic.

Where does this put him and all the interstate drivers? In a very dangerous setting. The reckless driver takes on the attitude, “To heck with the world. The interstate is all about me.” Too often this selfish attitude maims and kills others.

Criminals have adopted this philosophy. Their attitude is, “Why work hard? Just rob a store or a bank?” This attitude hurts others and eventually lands the criminal in jail.

Job seekers who pad their resumes with false degrees and bogus glorious achievements have to live in fear that someone will check out their credentials. Their scam hurts the employer because they aren’t really as competent as they profess and other employees and potential other real candidates are hurt by competing with liars.

The attitude trickles down to the used car dealer who is not forthcoming about what is really wrong with the car you are buying or the maid who finds a way to steal something every time he or she cleans a room or someone’s house.

Can you imagine a high school graduate being placed on an athletic team who has never played the sport before? All for money?

What is life really going to be like for that kid when the practice session starts? What happens when the college professor starts grading papers at Yale for the kid who got accepted based on falsified information but can’t write a paper or read simple lines like “See Spot run?”

Is someone going to keep the money flowing for the student to receive passing grades?

What happens when the student is passed through graduation? How long will he or she remain employed?

Being a celebrity and big money will obviously get you somewhere.

Falsifying information and bribing people may move you further along the way. Eventually the way is a dead end if not a fast track to jail.

Gov. Kelly signs more bills into law

Kansas Gov. Laura Kelly has signed House Bill 2103, injecting millions into Kansas programs that strengthen vulnerable children and families. This bill amends the revised Kansas Code for the Care of Children and enacts statutory provisions enabling Kansas to meet the requirements of the federal Family First Prevention Services Act (FFPSA).

“In the last few years, nothing has frustrated me more than the callous disregard some agency leaders demonstrated towards our vulnerable children and their families,” Gov. Kelly said. “This legislation will help to rebuild the Department for Children and Families and provide critical funding for programs aimed at strengthening families and keeping children safe.”

House Bill 2103 allows for an enhanced federal match rate for certain child welfare system evidence-based prevention services and programs beginning Oct. 1, 2019.

The bill defines a qualified residential treatment program (QRTP), establishes notice and hearing requirements when a child is placed in a QRTP, requires certain action a court must take when QRTP placement occurs and places additional documentation requirements on the court in a permanency hearing involving a child placed in QRTP.

“The Department for Children and Families has already begun to connect with community partners across the state to kick off our Family First initiatives,” said DCF Secretary Laura Howard. “The additional federal funds along with these valued partnerships will allow us to introduce evidence-based practices throughout the state that will keep families together and children safe.”

Further, the bill amends the definition of a secure facility and requires a child in need of care petition to have an attached copy of any existing prevention plan for a child. The bill takes effect upon publication in the Kansas Register.

The governor has also signed 10 additional bills, bringing the total number of bills signed in the 2019 Legislative Session to 53, with one being vetoed. By law, the Kansas governor has 10 calendar days to sign bills into law, veto bills or allow bills to become law without her signature.

House Bill 2007 – Amends requirements for tolled projects of the Kansas Turnpike Authority and the Secretary of Transportation. This was a recommendation of the Joint Legislative Transportation Vision Task Force. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2031 – Revises the Kansas Public Employees Retirement System (KPERs) as it pertains to the Kansas Police and Firemen’s Plan (KP&F) and provisions relating to working after retirement, membership eligibility and the administration of KPERs. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2038 – Creates law within the Kansas Probate Code providing for the automatic revocation of certain inheritance rights of a former spouse or former spouse’s relatives upon divorce. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2039 – Amends the Charitable Organizations and Solicitations Act to exempt from its registration requirement any charitable organization that is an animal shelter licensed pursuant to the Kansas Pet Animal Act.

The bill also creates and amends law related to limited liability companies in the Kansas Revised Limited Liability Company Act, Business Entity Standard Treatment Act, and other statutes. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2087 – Amends the definition of “school bus” in the Motor Fuel Tax Law to remove a requirement that the vehicle be designed for carrying more than 10 passengers and to remove use for the transportation of school personnel.

The bill retains in the definition that a school bus be any motor vehicle used by a school district or nonpublic school to transport pupils or students to or from school or to or from school-related functions or activities; the vehicle may be owned and operated by the school district or privately-owned and contracted for, leased, or hired by a school district or nonpublic school. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2177 – Amends the Insurance Code to permit life insurance companies that offer fixed index annuities to utilize an alternative methodology when accounting for certain reserves; amends the effective date specified for risk based capital instructions; amends registration requirements in the Insurance Holding Company Act related to a filing exemption for enterprise risk reports; and amends provisions governing fraudulent insurance acts and associated criminal penalty provisions. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2126 – Amends law restricting access to motor vehicle records. The bill removes from state law certain purposes for which state motor vehicle records may be released, but also authorizes release for any purpose not listed in Kansas law that is permissible under the federal Driver’s Privacy Protection Act as it existed on Jan. 1, 2018. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

House Bill 2119 – Amends the Pharmacy Act of the State of Kansas to require certain prescription orders be transmitted electronically and to permit a licensed pharmacist to administer a drug by injection in certain situations. The bill also allows a business entity issued a certificate of authorization by the Board of Healing Arts (BOHA) to employ or contract with one or more licensees of BOHA for the purpose of providing professional services for which such licensees hold a valid license issued by BOHA. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

Senate Substitute for House Bill 2214 – Adds passenger vehicle registration categories and establishes fees for those categories: $100 for all electric vehicles and $50 for motor vehicles that are electric hybrid or plug in electric hybrid vehicles. This was also a recommendation of the Joint Legislative Transportation Vision Task Force. It will be effective on and after Jan. 1, 2020. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

Senate Substitute for House Bill 2225 – Increases fees for certain permits authorizing oversize or overweight vehicles to operate on designated routes and requires registration of escort vehicle companies. This legislation will become effective upon its publication in the Kansas Statute Book.

Correction: The Armstrong Highway/Gilbertson Bridge bill number is HB 2070, not HB 2040, as published in an earlier story.

Guidelines for obituaries

When submitting obituaries to The Holton Recorder, please remember that survivors listed in free obituaries are limited to those related to the deceased either by blood or by marriage. "Companions," "special friends," caregivers, pets and godparents do not fit into either category. If you would like the names of non-relations to be printed with the obituary, call or e-mail The Recorder to make arrangements for a paid obituary.

Also, in free obituaries, references to the dead will involve courtesy titles, such as Mr., Mrs. and Miss, rather than first names or nicknames, as a matter of practice. Formal titles such as Dr. or those related to military rank will also be used if so specified by the family of the deceased.

Cobras compete at Rossville Invitational

By Brian Sanders

Although a limited number of athletes from Jackson Heights High School's varsity and junior varsity track teams participated in the Rossville Invitational on Good Friday, JHHS Head Track Coach Brad Alley said he was content with the work put in by those who went.

The varsity Lady Cobras, who placed 11th out of 15 participating teams, earned the bulk of their points on the strength of two first-place finishes from Jodi White in the 800-yard run (2:36.8) and Sydney Raborn in the javelin throw (114'8).

"Jodi is running really strong right now. We've tried her in about everything this year, and she has responded every time," Coach Alley said. "And Sydney has been at the top in most of our meets in the javelin. She has been really consistent this year, and that is really good to see."

On the varsity boys' side, the Cobras took seventh out of 15, led by a pair of second-place finishes from Levi Olberding in the triple jump (42'3) and Jackson Ahlgren in the pole vault (11'6).

"Levi jumped really well in the triple again," Alley said.

In the junior varsity competitions, the boys also finished seventh out of 14, while the girls finished eighth out of 12.

Alley said only a handful of Cobra competitors went to Rossville because each student-athlete is only allowed to participate in eight regular season meets, and Jackson Heights has 10 meets in this year's schedule.

Potawatomi United Methodist Church

By Ilene Dick

Sunday, April 14, was a beautiful sunny day as families and friends gathered for worship on Passion/Palm Sunday at Potawatomi United Methodist Church.

Pastor Howard opened the service with scripture and prayer, followed by announcements and sharing of joys and concerns.

Prayer concerns were raised for Terry Redlightning having loss of hearing in his left ear, and for the family of Ronnie Hase in his death.

Lily Hall served as acolyte. Tina Pugh provided the music. Hymns were "Tell Me The Story Of Jesus," "All Glory, Laud And Honor" and "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty."

Judy Thoman was liturgist, reading from Exodus 19:5, followed by the Passion/Palm Sunday prayer that was prayed in unison.

Pastor Howard read a story about Palm Sunday. Laura Schreiber shared a poem titled "Thankful" for the special.

Offertory ushers were Keith Bell and Clayton Hase.

Pastor Howard's message was titled "Passion (Palm Sunday)" with the text coming from Luke 19:28-40. Holy Week became holy because Christ set apart the last day of ministry by entering the holy city, teaching in the temple, having the Last Supper with His disciples, praying in Gethsemane, being arrested, tried and crucified and ultimately being resurrected.

Only by experiencing life can we really know life. Only by loving can we know love. Only by trusting God can we know trust. Only by believing in Christ can we know Christ.

This story showed Jesus' followers what they were to do during the time between Jesus' departure and His second coming. Because we live in that time, it applies directly to us.

Some took a "leap of faith" and found salvation. Some froze in fear and were left in despair. Together on Palm Sunday, let us take a 21st century leap of faith into life, death and resurrection of Christ. This is the word of God.

The quarterly board meeting was held following worship service. Those absent from the board meeting may contact Judy Thoman or another member present as to dates set for work activities, etc.

On May 5, the church will celebrate Native American Ministry at which time a special offering will be received. The annual conference will be held May 29-June 1 at the Topeka Expocentre.

Lily Hall enjoyed helping her sister, daughter and niece make Easter baskets for the family on Saturday, April 13.

Easter blessings to The Holton Recorder and to our readers.

Circleville Christian Church

By Jeannie Arnold

April 21, Easter morning activities began with a sunrise service at Circleville Christian Church at 6:30 a.m. with breakfast following at 8 a.m.

The children were able to hunt Easter eggs at 9 a.m. and the combined church service was held at 10:30 a.m.

Mark Fenton served as greeter at the door for the Easter Sunday service. Paul Davault gave a welcome to the congregation.

Music was provided by the praise team of David Allen, Johnny Lynch, Jennifer Winters, Sandra Hurt, Paul and Sue Davault and Kay Hallauer.

Blair Wagner gave the communion meditation and prayer. Servers were Larry Self Jr., Bill Dyer, Kevin Schierling, Brandon Winters, Rhett Kennedy, Garrett Will and Ben Bontrager. The prayer for the offering was given by Paul Davault.

Kay Hallauer provided the lovely piano music as communion was served and the offering received.

Brody Bliss used text from Matthew 27:62-28:10 as he gave the morning sermon titled "You Can't Keep A Good Man Down." With this being Easter Sunday, his message brought out five perspectives of the resurrection:

1. The Sanhedrin tried to prevent it.

2. The soldiers tried to guard against it.

3. The angels proclaimed it.

4. The women rejoiced in it.

5. The Lord Jesus affirmed it.

Jesus could not be conquered or contained in the tomb. That is the greatest event of human history. Only the risen savior can fill our hearts with the joy of salvation. The service closed by singing "Alleluia, Christ Is Risen Today."

Perez-Marquez...

Perez-Marquez had originally been charged with three felony counts of involuntary manslaughter, two felony counts of aggravated battery and a misdemeanor count of reckless driving. She had pleaded not guilty to all of the charges in January.

But a plea deal negotiated between Perez-Marquez's defense attorney, J. Richard Lake of Holton, and Jackson County Attorney Shawna Miller resulted in a reduction of the charges, as Judge Marek noted that each of the vehicular homicide charges was classified as a Class A misdemeanor with maximum penalties of a year in jail, a $2,500 fine or both.

Marek also noted that the aggravated battery charge against Perez-Marquez was classified as a Level 7 person felony with a possible prison sentence ranging from 11 months to 34 months (two years, 10 months), although much of the sentence would involve presumptive probation based on Perez-Marquez's criminal history.

Perez-Marquez currently remains free on bond.

Nuisance structures...

Holton City Commission gave the property owner 90 days to have the house demolished, and Draper told the owner he would provide contact information for local firms that could handle the demolition.

"We support doing local as much as we can," he said. "I gave the property owner the names of companies around here locally that would be willing to entertain taking this thing down and having it removed, and filling any holes so there's not a trip hazard."

Draper's job entails handling various nuisances in Holton, ranging from overgrown grass and brush to removal of junk vehicles and other objects. He fields reports of perceived nuisances from Holton residents, or sometimes he will spot them on his own.

"It's either-or. People call in and make a complaint, or I'm out and about and someone brings it to my attention," he said. "There are various ways that we get them."

When there's a structure involved — particularly one that has the potential of posing a danger to anyone who comes near it — it's a matter of determining the best course of action for that structure, Draper said.

"Maybe the siding's coming off, or maybe the house is leaning to one side," he said. "Or it's a poor foundation, things like that where a hard wind might be a bad idea at that point."

Draper said he investigates claims that people make about dilapidated structures in the city, filtering out any possible instances that merely involve

"bad blood" between neighbors and making note of actual structural concerns while reaching out to property owners about those concerns.

"Ninety-nine percent of the time, I make contact with someone who didn't realize there was something wrong," Draper said. "Most people don't realize it, and when that happens, we try to give them some time... We try to get them to give us a time frame for how long it's going to take."

In some cases, "multiple attempts" are made to contact the property owners, and often unsuccessfully, he said, noting that he had made several unsuccessful attempts to contact Brian Smith, the owner of the Ohio Avenue property, prior to last Monday's Holton City Commission meeting. Smith showed up at that meeting, however.

Property owners will often have plans in place to have dilapidated buildings torn down, Draper said, and, in many cases, that prevents the city from going through the public hearing process. At that point, he noted, it's simply a matter of establishing a timeline for getting the buildings demolished and the property filled in.

But there are times when the public hearing process is necessary, first with a notification about the dilapidated structure, then a second hearing in which the Holton City Commission determines what action to take about removing the structure, including setting a timeline for completion of demolition work.

If the matter can't be resolved that way, he said, the city can seek bids to have the structure demolished and the property cleared of debris. The cost of demolition and clearing work is then assessed to the property owner via an addition to the property tax bill.

Draper said he would prefer not to go that route whenever possible.

"My hope is that every time I make contact on a property, the owners realize that whatever their situation is, it's a violation of our code," he said. "I want to work with them to get the situation corrected and bring the property into compliance."

Removing dilapidated houses and storage structures is about more than getting rid of structural eyesores, Draper said.

"Making sure that structures are safe in our town is priority number one," he said. "The last thing I want to have is a stiff Kansas wind go up against a building that's compromised structurally, and then it becomes a severe safety risk, and you don't want to have somebody get hurt."

NRCS announces sign-up for CStP

The next deadline for Conservation Stewardship Program (CStP) applications to be considered for funding this year is May 10, it has been reported.

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) plans to invest up to $700 million for new enrollments and contract extensions in fiscal year 2019. The 2018 Farm Bill made several changes to this critical conservation program, which helps agricultural producers take the conservation activities on their farm or ranch to the next level.

"CStP continues to be a very effective tool for private landowners working to achieve their conservation and management goals," NRCS Chief Matthew Lohr said. "It is the largest conservation program in the United States with more than 70 million acres of productive agricultural and forest land enrolled."

While applications are accepted throughout the year, interested producers should submit applications to their local NRCS office by May 10 to ensure their applications are considered for 2019 funding.

Changes to the Program
The 2018 Farm Bill authorizes NRCS to accept new CStP enrollments from now until 2023, and it makes some important improvements to the program. These updates include:

* NRCS now enrolls eligible, high ranking applications based on dollars rather than acres. For fiscal 2019, NRCS can spend up to $700 million in the program, which covers part of the cost for producers implementing new conservation activities and maintaining their existing activities.

* Higher payment rates are now available for certain conservation activities, including cover crops and resource conserving crop rotations.

* CStP now provides specific support for organic and for transitioning to organic production activities and a special grassland conservation initiative for certain producers who have maintained cropland base acres.

About the Program
CStP is offered in all 50 states and the Pacific and Caribbean areas through continuous sign-ups. The program provides many benefits including increased crop yields, decreased inputs, wildlife habitat improvements and increased resilience to weather extremes.

CStP is for working lands including cropland, pastureland, rangeland, nonindustrial private forest land and agricultural land under the jurisdiction of an Indian tribe.

Police target impaired drivers

According to a 2016 American Automobile Association (AAA) poll in Kansas, only 63 percent of people consider driving after using marijuana "a very serious threat" to their personal safety.

In 2017, there were 287 crashes attributed to illegal drug use in Kansas. A total of 83 persons lost their lives in these crashes.

"There's a misconception that marijuana doesn't affect your ability to drive," said Chris Bortz, traffic safety program manager for the Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT). "That is just false. Illegal drugs can impair a person's judgment, concentration and reaction time. Driving under the influence of any impairing substance is illegal for a reason."

Law enforcement officers increased traffic enforcement and police visibility across the state this past weekend to crack down on drugged driving. The enforcement period ran from Friday, April 19 to Sunday, April 21, where "420" (April 20) is largely recognized for its social attention on marijuana.

Law enforcement and prosecutors also enforced a "No Refusal Weekend," in which all suspected impaired drivers who refuse a breath test may be subject to blood testing. Officers pledged to be extra vigilant over the weekend to detect all impaired drivers and consequently testing for both alcohol and drugs.

Marijuana laws are rapidly changing across the United States, including states bordering Kansas, leading to more drivers under the influence of marijuana. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, from 2007-2014, there was a 48 percent increase in drivers testing positive for marijuana across the nation.

These findings demonstrate the imminent danger on Kansas roads and the importance of raising awareness of the risks of drug impaired driving, it was reported.

"With this enforcement and our education efforts, we hope that 100 percent of Kansas drivers recognize and understand this serious issue," said Mark A. Dupree, Wyandotte County district attorney. "Driving under the influence of drugs is dangerous and deadly. We want people to arrive to their destinations safely, and that starts with smart decisions by both drivers and passengers."

Drug-impaired driving does lead to crashes, serious injury and even death. Kansans will see law enforcement agencies out in full force this weekend, pulling over drivers that exhibit signs of impaired driving due to drugs or alcohol.

Tractor accident injures two

Two people sustained injuries here Saturday evening from an accident involving a mini-van and a tractor, according to the Jackson County Sheriff Tim Morse.

Shortly before 10:30 p.m., the sheriff's office received a report of an accident east of B Road on Kansas Highway 16 Highway near the Pottawatomie County line.

Sheriff Morse said that a westbound 2005 Town and Country Chrysler mini-van, driven by Crystal Sudermann, 36, Corning, allegedly ran into the backside of a westbound farm tractor that was pulling a farm implement. The tractor was driven by Lester Harris, 59, Havensville.

There were two passengers in the van, Teri Koelzer, 63, and Kaylea Sudermann, 12, both of Corning.

Crystal Sudermann and Koelzer both sustained injuries, Morse said. Both were transported to Stormont Vail Medical Center at Topeka.

Life Star Air Ambulance transported the driver with life threatening injuries and Jackson County EMS transported the front-seat passenger.

The Soldier and Holton Fire Departments and Jackson County EMS responded to the incident. The Jackson County Sheriff's Office is investigating the incident.

Volunteers Needed

Buck's Grove

By Betty Bernitter

What a beautiful Easter morning at Buck's Grove United Methodist Church. Jack Bernitter rang the bell to announce the celebration of worship.

Emberlee Allen lighted the altar candles as the recorded prelude was played.

Pastor Charlotte Milroy asked for announcements and then led the call to worship, a time to listen and meditate, opening prayer and Psalm 118:19-23.

Donna Ashcraft read scripture, Acts 10:34-43 and 1 Corinthians 15:19-23, along with being song leader for hymns, "Up From The Grave He Arose," "Christ The Lord Is Risen Today" and "He Lives."

For a special, Theresa Rischick sang "Because He Lives."

Pastor Charlotte read Luke 24:1-12 and titled her message "Looking For Jesus." Why do we look for Jesus in all the wrong places? For example, one of the ways we look for an abundant life is through entertainment. We go to movies, ball games, concerts, horse shows, and God only know what else seeking to be entertained.

At the end of the day, we are left empty and unfulfilled. It's not that any of these forms of entertainment are essentially bad, it is just that they give us a temporary fix. They are not the source of true and abundant life.

A good place to look for the risen Christ is in scripture, among God's people, in the beauty of nature and in service to the poor. If that is not enough you can look for Jesus wherever you happen to be and especially when you least expect it.

There are lots of places to look for a full abundant life. Only one will give you what you are looking for and that is a close personal relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Are you looking for Christ in the right places?

After the offertory prayer, Don Boling and Wayne Rischick were the ushers.

The service closed by singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" as Emberlee carried out the light of Christ.

Our congregation hopes everyone had a blessed Easter.

Holton USD 336 Informational Meeting Concerning Bus Fees

For the upcoming 2019-20 School Year

5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Tuesday April 30, 2019

At Holton High School Auditorium

All school patrons invited!

An informational meeting will be hosted at Holton High School to go over potential bus fees for next year due to overcrowding on school buses. The school district has been transporting children in town and this school year, the buses have reached capacity and can not continue to transport in town children without some changes.

Schools must take care of transportation needs of children who live more than 2.5 miles from their attendance center, and the district is willing to go approximately 1 mile from a child's attendance center (but will not add any additional stops at this time) as well as get children across Highway 75.

Students in 6th through 12th grade whose home is under 1 mile from the attendance center or any K-12 student transported that does not go to their home or the current in-town closest drop off would be expected to pay to ride at $45 per household, per semester - payments due per semester.

Holton USD 336 Informational Meeting About "REDESIGN!"

5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Wednesday, April 24, 2019

At Holton High School Auditorium

All school patrons invited!

Holton High School and Holton Middle School have been accepted as schools going through the APOLLO Redesign process. For the APOLLO phase, KSDE invited districts to designate one or more elementary and/or secondary schools to be designed around the five outcomes established by the Kansas State Board of Education, the five elements identified as defining a successful Kansas high school graduate and what Kansans said they want their schools to look like in the future.

Like the phases before, each district applying to become an Apollo district also had to have support of their faculty, school board, and the local Kansas National Education Association (KNEA) or other professional organization.

School redesign is a process driven by four principles:

- Student success skills: An integrated approach to developing social-emotional growth.
- Community partnerships: Partnerships are based on mutually beneficial relationships and collaboration.
- Personalized learning: Teachers support students to have choice when it comes to time, place, pace, and path.
- Real-world applications: Project-based learning, internships, and civic engagement make learning relevant.

Congressman Steve Watkins (at left in photo above) paid a special visit to Holton Elementary School on Wednesday afternoon to discuss "smart savings" with fourth-grade students at the school. * Real-world applications: Project-based learning, internships and civic engagement make learning relevant.
The first phase of the school redesign project was Mercury 7. All Kansas school districts were invited to apply for this inaugural phase – only seven spots were available.
To be considered for the project, districts had to designate one elementary school and one secondary school to be redesigned around five outcomes established by the Kansas State Board of Education, the five elements identified as defining a successful Kansas high school graduate and what Kansans said they want their schools to look like in the future.

Each district also had to have support of their faculty, school board and the local Kansas National Education Association (KNEA) or other professional organization.
KSDE received 29 applications for the first phase. The seven districts were announced in August 2017. Each district represented one of the Mercury 7 astronauts.
KSDE gave the remaining Mercury 7 applicants an opportunity to take part in Gemini I. Twenty-one districts accepted the challenge.

Mercury 7 districts and a few Gemini I districts launched their redesign plans in the fall of the 2018-19 school year. The remaining Gemini I participants will launch no later than the spring of 2020.
In February 2018, KSDE announced the third phase – Gemini II: The Space Walk Begins. Nineteen school districts were announced as participants for Gemini II.
For the Apollo phase, KSDE invited districts to designate one or more elementary and/or secondary school to be designed around the five outcomes established by the Kansas State Board of Education, the five elements identified as defining a successful Kansas high school graduate and what Kansans said they want their schools to look like in the future.

Like the phases before, each district applying to become an Apollo district also had to have support of their faculty, school board and the local Kansas National Education Association (KNEA) or other professional organization.
Holton and the other Apollo districts must be able to launch a new school design in the 2020-21 school year.
All schools selected for the redesign process will serve as demonstration sites for other Kansas districts.
In addition to Holton, nearby Perry-Lecompton USD 343 and Kaw Valley USD 321 were selected for Apollo.
It is the goal of the State Board of Education and KSDE to have all 286 Kansas school districts started in the redesign process by 2026.

Both informational meetings are open to the public. For more information, call the USD 336 district office at 364-3650.

Jim Holloman...

that's changed," he said. "The v-tech and career programs and educational policies have expanded and changed. There's more expectations and opportunities for our kids now than ever before, in a good way."
The high school's facilities have "doubled" during Holloman's tenure.
"The highway expanding from two-lane to four-lane has made it much safer for our kids," he said.
The relationship between the Hoyt, Mayetta and Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation communities has only gotten stronger through the years.
"They say it takes a village to raise a child, but I think it's more than that," he said. "We've come a long way with our relationship with the tribe. We've been able to come together for our kids. We have a tribal flag in our gym, and I think it symbolizes that it takes all of us to raise our kids. It's a commitment to what we're trying to do for all our kids. I'm really proud that we're all working together."
Holloman said there's always been a "stable" workforce at Royal Valley thanks to district leadership from former Superintendents Fred Staker, Marceta Reilly and John Rundle.

"We've had solid leadership at the top that did some positive things in our district," he said. "They were hands-on superintendents who valued their employees. When you have leadership like that, all we want to do is run through a wall for them because you feel valued."
Joel Hesel, the current assistant principal at Jackson Heights High School, has been named as Holloman's replacement.
"I want him to succeed and for him to have a smooth transition," he said.
Holloman's wife, Melissa, retired from the Royal Valley district in 2013. The couple have two adult children and four grandchildren.
In his retirement, Holloman said he plans to spend more time with his family and possibly substitute teach for the district during the winter months.
"You just can't drop 39 years and go cold turkey," he said. "I'm just going to take each day as it comes."

Voting centers...

who may have moved in the county and show up at the wrong polling place.
"Some people get confused, and they aren't happy when you tell them they have to go to a different location to vote," she said.
Mick estimated that most of the provisional ballots cast each election are due to people voting at the wrong polling location.
"In a big election, we could have more than 100 people vote at the wrong place," she said. "I can see a lot of voters in Douglas Township going someplace else because they don't like the long lines that can happen there."
The new law also requires county election officers to make an attempt to contact each voter who submitted an advance voting ballot without a signature or with a signature that does not match the signature on file.

"We already do that," she said. "We do get a lot of advance ballots that come in unsigned, but we've already been calling them and ask them come in and sign them."
