

Flu shots expected to arrive here soon

■ Reith: CDC foresees 'adequate supply'

By Brian Sanders

Every year, a group of medical experts gets together to attempt to determine which particular strains of the influenza virus — commonly known as “the flu” — will be prevalent during that year’s flu season, which normally begins in October and continues through the next May.

However, the vaccination approved for the 2014-15 flu season proved to be all but ineffective against a particular strain of the flu for many, mainly because flu viruses are “not stagnant,” Jackson County Health Nurse Angie Reith said.

“Flu viruses don’t stay the same,” Reith said. “They change constantly inside our bodies, and when they do that, they literally can become foreign again, meaning that if your body came into contact with it again, it would not recognize it as the same virus, even though it is the same virus. It has changed in such a way that your body would not recognize it, and you would become ill with it again.”

That doesn’t mean that people should avoid getting their annual flu shots in the coming weeks. Everyone who is at least six months old is encouraged to receive the vaccinations as they become available, particularly because it takes about two weeks for the vaccination to work its way through the body, Reith said.

“Every year, thousands of people die in the United States from influenza,” she noted. “We continue to try to encourage people — especially those with underlying health conditions — to get their annual flu shots as soon as the shots are available. There is no need to wait until October or November — just get it when you can.”

Those flu vaccinations are on their way, Reith said, noting that vaccine manufacturers tend to put out small shipments to health clinics in late summer and increase the size of the shipments as flu season progresses. According to the Centers for Disease Control, vaccine manufacturers are expecting to ship anywhere between 171 million and 179 million vaccines this season.

“There should be an adequate supply for all who wish to be vaccinated,” Reith said.

Influenza vaccines are generally “trivalent” — meaning they are engineered to prevent infection by three different flu strains that are predicted to be prevalent during the flu season. CDC officials said this year’s vaccine should protect against two “A” viruses (those capable of affecting animals as well as people and are generally more responsible for flu epidemics) and one “B” virus (those that do not mutate as quickly as “A” viruses and are found only in humans).

9/11 remembrance planned on Holton’s Town Square

On Friday morning, Sept. 11, many Americans will pause in remembrance of the terrorist attacks that occurred 14 years earlier on Sept. 11, 2001, and the nearly 3,000 people who died as a result of those attacks.

Law enforcement and emergency personnel from Holton and Jackson County will join in the remembrance, and the public is invited to take a few minutes out of their day to join them, according to Carolyn Koger, who is coordinating this year’s event. Previous years’ remembrances had been organized by the now-defunct Holton Main Street organization, although it has been reported that former Main Street director Bob Carlson would be on hand Friday for the brief remembrance.

The remembrance is expected to follow the format of previous years’ remembrances, Koger said. Church bells will toll shortly before 9 a.m., at which time there will be a moment of silence, followed by taps performed by Holton High School musicians.

Emergency personnel from Holton (police and fire departments) and Jackson County (EMS and sheriff’s

Holton Rotary Club member Eric Bjelland (right) rewarded Diana Fate of Holton with a dollar for having her seat belt on Friday morning near the intersection of Fifth Street and New York Avenue as part of the “Bucks for Buckles” campaign. Rotary members assisted State Farm Insurance with its program and gave dollar bills to motorists who were properly buckled up, while those drivers who were not found with their seat belts on were given a fact sheet about safety belts and an encouragement to buckle up. 23rd Mayetta Pioneer Day set for weekend

By Ali Holcomb

The 23rd annual Mayetta Pioneer Day is set for Saturday, Sept. 12, in downtown Mayetta.

The festivities will kick off at 7 a.m. with biscuits and gravy being served at the Masonic Lodge on Main Street.

After breakfast, a quilt show will be on display in city hall starting at 9 a.m. along with a flea market outside. A variety of vendors will be on site selling woodworking items, knives, jewelry, candles and bags.

Friendly competitions for both the young and the young at heart will start at 9:30 a.m. with a flying doughnut contest, followed by the annual turtle races at 10 a.m. for those ages 15 and younger. Participants must bring their own turtle.

For area men, a beard and mustache contest is being held that day. Sign in is at 9:45 a.m. at city hall, and the winners will be announced at 10:30 a.m.

Both men and women can compete in a nail driving contest at 10:30 a.m. and then a pudding-eating contest at 11 a.m. The marshmallow toss contest will be at 1 p.m., followed by the ring toss at 2 p.m.

A sign-up sheet for all games and contests will be posted in front of city hall starting at 9 a.m.

Demonstrations of pioneer pastimes and skills will begin on Main Street at 11 a.m. The demonstrations will include woodcarving, twine braiding, making cornhusk dolls and crocheting. Bud Stauffer will also display an old Mayetta mail wagon and antique tractors.

An old 1929 era film will be shown starting at 11 a.m. in the back room of the Masonic Lodge. Additional showings will be held throughout the day.

For lunch, Indian tacos will be available to purchase, as well as ham and beans, pulled pork, bratwursts and pies all being sold at the Masonic Lodge.

Throughout the day, music will be provided by Brad Hamilton and Dave VanMeter. Free kiddie train rides will be offered downtown starting at noon. A rope-spinning exhibition will be held at 1:30 p.m., and a display of flags from all 50 states will be set up that day downtown.

Line up for the annual parade will begin at 2:30 p.m. at Royal Valley Middle School, with the parade starting at 3 p.m. Sam and Donna Carriker will be serving as the grand marshals, and Cornelia Harrison Donahue will be honored as the Prairie Band Potawatomi Elder Queen.

Following the parade, Ryan Russell will hold a horseshoe-pitching exhibition on Main Street.

A silent auction will be held throughout the day, as well as a drawing for $100. Tickets are three for $1, and the winners will be announced following the parade. You must be present to win.

Tickets can also be purchased that day to qualify to win the 1966 Chevrolet Corvair being given away as a fund-raiser for the Heart of Jackson Humane Society.

Soup and dessert will be served at the Mayetta Christian Church, 212 Jones Street, starting at 4:30 p.m.

Upcoming Honor Flight to be a ‘family affair’

By Brian Sanders

For two participants in Jackson Heights High School’s sixth Honor Flight on Thursday, Sept. 17, the event will be a family affair.

U.S. Navy veteran Clifton Johnson of Nortonville, whose military experience includes sea-board stints during the Korean and Vietnam wars, will be joined by his granddaughter, JHHS student Maggie Rostetter, for the daylong trip to Washington, D.C. and back. It’s a trip that both are excited about taking.

For Johnson, it’s his first visit to the nation’s capital in more than half a century. For Rostetter, it’s her first trip to Washington. And for all those participating, it will be the first time that all involved will make a stop in Arlington Cemetery to watch the changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Johnson, a native of Atchison County, spent the first few years of his life in Effingham before moving to Atchison when he was six years old. He stayed in Atchison until he was 17, at which time — 1952 — he made a decision to change the direction his life was headed.

“I got smarter than the teacher, quit school and went to the Navy,” he joked.

Johnson went through basic training in San Diego, Calif., and in 1953, he was headed to Korea to provide amphibious support for troops on the ground. He wasn’t involved in any combat, however. He got out of the Navy in 1956, but two years later, he made the decision to re-enlist.

“We were going through a recession in 1958,” he said. “You might work two days one week, and if you got lucky, you worked three days the next week. I told my wife, you can’t raise a family like that, only working two or three days a week. So I called a Navy recruiter and told him I was ready to go back in.”

The Navy, Johnson says, provided him with a pretty good living

NEK County Officials to meet here on Oct. 2

By Ali Holcomb

Jackson County will host the annual Northeast Kansas County Officials meeting and lunch in Holton on Friday, Oct. 2.

County commissioners and other officials from area counties, including Atchison, Douglas, Johnson, Marshall, Pottawatomie, Wabaunsee, Brown, Leavenworth, Nemaha, Riley, Wyandotte, Doniphan, Jefferson, Lyon, Osage and Shawnee, have all been invited to Penny’s in Holton to hear updates on progress in Jackson County and to share ideas.

The event is scheduled to kick off in the morning and last until about 2 p.m.

Different county department heads are expected to speak at the meeting, and then the officials will break into groups and visit different areas and businesses in the county.

During a recent Jackson County Commission meeting, the commissioners accepted a bid from Bailey’s Bakery, Café and Sports Bar to cater the event at a cost of $12 a meal.

Hall of Fame nominations sought

Only one new nomination for the Holton/Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Hall of Fame has been submitted for the 2016 round of Hall of Fame inductees so far, Chamber administrative assistant Beth McManigal said today.

“We’ve got about 30 nominations from previous years, and those are still good,” McManigal added. “Once they’re submitted, they’re considered good. But we’re still encouraging and welcoming new nominations or updated versions of previous nominations.”

Nominations for the 11th round of Hall of Fame inductees are being accepted through Wednesday, Sept. 30, it was noted. Chamber officials said nominations are open to all Jackson County residents who are currently or who have in the past been active in Holton and Jackson County.

This year’s nominations must be submitted by noon on Wednesday, Sept. 30 at the Chamber office, located in The Gossip building at 118 E. Fifth St. in Holton. The inductees for 2016 will be honored at the annual Hall of Fame banquet in February, at which time current and past business leaders also will be celebrated. Inductees also will be profiled with Holton Recorder feature stories.

Nelda Rolfe has announced that the spring session at Holton Bowling Center will be her last, but she’s hopeful that someone will come along with a desire to take the center and its adjacent nightspot, the Jolly Troll, and make a good living from the two businesses. Rolfe has run the center off and on since 1968, when it was first located in the building that now houses Holton Farm and Home, it was reported.

The new patio area at the Holton High School football field is well under way. The project will provide an open patio area with a rail for Wildcat football fans, as well as an elevated viewing area for wheelchair-bound fans. HHS Athletic Director Mitch Beims said the patio is likely to be finished in time for the Wildcats’ Sept. 10 home opener.

Ian Naismith, grandson of basketball founder Dr. James Naismith, has given permission and stated that he would be proud to have his family’s name on the Holton High School basketball court, if the community and school board approve such an idea. Ian Naismith is also the son of Frances Pomeroy Naismith, a Holton native and a 1928 graduate of Holton High School.

Since 2005, restaurants and other businesses in Holton wishing to sell alcoholic beverages have been required by city ordinance to be located no less than 200 feet from a church, school or hospital. On Tuesday, Sept. 7, the Holton City Commission voted to decrease that limit to 100 feet.

Michelle and Jay Jackson of Mayetta departed their home on Labor Day Monday evening for the 15-hour drive to DeRidder, La., with a contractor trailer load of supplies for victims of Hurricane Katrina. Michelle, a native of DeRidder, said she estimated she’d received various food and supplies, goods and gas money from a total of about 100 different people.

Work continues in the 10,200-square-foot addition to Gran Villas assisted living in Holton. The new wing will add 12 residential units to the existing 19. A groundbreaking was held in May and construction is expected to be completed in November.

In celebration of Jackson County’s 150th birthday, The Holton Recorder featured articles on area businesses as well as history on the first settlers and buildings in the area. Of note was the city of Denison moving its site when a railroad was being planned, Circleville surviving two major fires downtown, Soldier’s name being settled in 1883 after being switched back and forth from Smithland and a swarm of grasshoppers that arrived in a dark cloud in 1874.

The county’s 150th birthday celebration held on Sept. 10-11 included a massive birthday cake that was decorated over a five-hour period by Teresa Scheidegger, as well as an old-time fashion competition.

Shaun and Tara Deegan are the new owners of Holton House, it has been announced. The Deegans came to Holton three years ago and have since kept their eyes open for a business opportunity here.

AN ORDINANCE THE CITY OF HOYT, KANSAS ESTABLISHING A PROCEDURE FOR APPEALING AN EXCESSIVELY HIGH WATER BILL AND REPEALING ALL ORDINANCES OR PARTS OF ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT THEREWITH.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE GOVERNING BODY OF THE CITY OF HOYT, KANSAS:

SECTION 1. APPEAL OF WATER BILL. Allowances may be made by the City Council for the cost of water lost through leaks or excusable neglect after the water has passed through the meter. Any customer seeking such an allowance must appeal the bill they deem excessive by filing a written appeal with the City Clerk, requesting that the matter be heard by the Council at its next, regularly scheduled meeting. Bucks for Buckles program rewards motorists for using their seat belts

Thousands of vehicles will be traveling the Kansas roadways during the Labor Day weekend. Many families will head out on one last camping trip or getaway as the school year begins.

Safe Kids Kansas, State Farm Insurance and the Kansas Department of Transportation (KDOT) want to encourage families to buckle up and drive safely to protect their most valuable asset, their families.

This year, Aug. 30 through Sept. 12, a safety belt awareness campaign called “Bucks for Buckles” is being held in more than 40 cities across Kansas, including Holton, which saw a “Bucks for Buckles” campaign conducted here on Friday.

One-dollar bills are being distributed by local volunteers to drivers who have all occupants buckled up securely in their vehicle. Those riding unrestrained will receive educational materials about the effectiveness of seat belts and child safety seats in saving lives and reducing injuries.

Cherie Sage, state director for Safe Kids Kansas, said that while no one can predict when they will be involved in a motor vehicle crash, almost everyone will be involved in an automobile crash during their lives. More than 380 people died in crashes last year, and in more than half of those cases, those killed were not wearing proper safety restraints, Sage said.

“The most effective way to protect the lives of you and your passengers is to wear seat belts and use appropriate child restraints every time you ride in the vehicle — even short distances,” Sage said.

According to the 2014 KDOT Seat Belt Survey, 86 percent of those surveyed were wearing their seat belts. This compares to the national average of 87 percent. That put Kansas in 41st place in the nation in seat belt usage, however.

Our politicians are failing us on the national debt

By Lee H. Hamilton

A couple of months ago, the Congressional Budget Office issued a sobering report on the U.S. economy's long-term prospects. Not to put too fine a point on it, we're headed for the fiscal rocks.

Federal spending accounts for about 20 percent of the nation's GDP, the budget analysts note; if current trends continue, that will rise to fully 25 percent by 2040. Revenues will not keep up - they'll amount to only 19 percent of GDP.

Here's what the non-partisan CBO has to say: "Mainly because of the aging of the population and rising health care costs, the extended baseline projections show revenues that fall well short of spending over the long term, producing a substantial imbalance in the federal budget. As a result, budget deficits are projected to rise steadily and, by 2040, to raise federal debt held by the public to a percentage of GDP seen at only one previous time in U.S. history - the final year of World War II and the following year. We face a fiscal crisis of historic proportions."

Our presidential candidates can talk all they want about American prosperity and world leadership, but without a firm fiscal base it's just hot air. Unless we can stabilize the debt and put the country on a path of sustainable economic growth with prosperity evenly shared, we'll have no firm economic base for all those lofty goals to rest upon.

This means tackling a host of complex problems. We have to get long-term debt under control. We have to preserve Social Security yet find a solution to rising entitlement spending, which will be a key driver of federal spending for decades to come.

We have to deal with health-care costs, which pose the same challenge. We have to invest in skills, education, and infrastructure without breaking the bank. We have to craft a simpler, fairer, less intrusive tax policy that promotes economic efficiency and is conducive to long-term growth.

The people who have to do all these things are politicians who, thus far, have been unwilling and unable to take these obvious challenges head on. The problem is not with the system itself. Similar barriers have been overcome repeatedly in the past, with reforms in Social Security in 1983, taxes in 1986, and repeatedly in budget agreements.

Rather, the problem is that our leaders are divided between those who want to cut spending and those who want to boost taxes in order to expand government's role. Yet it's impossible to solve our problems by finding new revenues or cutting spending alone. Without doing both, we face a weakened future. It is unreasonable and unacceptable to try to continue our present course of trying to muddle through.

There's a reason that you don't hear much talk about this in Washington. Americans themselves want it all - lower taxes without significant cuts in federal spending. But here's the problem: Almost 60 percent of federal spending is accounted for by Social Security, Medicare and defense and national security.

Add the 7 percent of the budget that goes to interest on the national debt, and there's little room for significant progress without painful and difficult legislative action.

Political leaders should grasp these realities and act now. But they have not, so it's up to Americans to pressure them to do so. True, nothing will happen without presidential leadership. All issues will have to be on the table, because the pain needs to be shared broadly. And progress will require the adroit bipartisan participation of congressional leaders.

Instead, those who believe in a single path assure us that we need only wait until the next election and they'll get the forces they need. This is a pipedream. The electorate is too evenly divided and too volatile to sustain complete control by one side over several elections.

So really, it's up to the American people to demand action. We have to create the political will that drives our leaders to deal with these difficult economic problems - that leads them to tackle entitlements, health costs, investing in the future, and tax reform.

The question is whether our political leaders are up to the task before our economy runs out of time.

Post it: Thou Shalt Not Kill

By Glenn Mollette

I had never heard of Chicago suburb Fox Lake police officer Joe Gliniewicz. Recently, three men murdered him. Sadly I now know about what a great man, and police officer he was.

Could this be a good time to re-instate the sixth commandment? You might know it better as "Thou Shalt Not Kill," or "Thou Shalt Not Murder," "You Should Not Kill."

The sixth commandment appears in a series of commandments remembered by some today as The Ten Commandments. These commandments can be found in the Old Testament of the Bible.

Donald Trump was recently asked if he liked the Old Testament or New Testament the best and he replied that he liked it all affirming the Bible as his favorite book.

I doubt if the majority of Americans can tell you for sure about where to find The Ten Commandments. Some would simply affirm them as being important while others would not.

Not every American may know that The Ten Commandments come from the Old Testament of the Bible. Honestly, most Americans may not care.

I am old enough to remember when The Ten Commandments were a big deal everywhere. We had them in some of our classrooms where I grew up. I used to see them posted in state and federal buildings.

Actually, I was speaking in a small Nevada town two years ago and The Ten Commandments were posted in front of the courthouse. I would tell you the name but I don't want someone fussing and fuming at those good people for keeping The Ten Commandments up front and public.

Actually there are still several state and county buildings where you can find The Ten Commandments posted or engraved even in granite.

The Ten Commandments has never kept this nation from doing anything wrong. People went right on killing; stealing, disrespecting their parents and doing all sorts of stuff that The Ten Commandments forbid us from doing.

I totally understand separation of church and state. I don't want to see something from the Koran on my local court or state house.

However, I think this would be a good time to bring back the sixth commandment. We don't even have to refer to it as the sixth commandment. Let's just simply start reposting in our elementary, junior high and senior high schools these three words, "Do Not Kill." Or, "Do Not Murder."

The minds of little children are very impressionable and teachable. My father put the fear of God into me when it came to smoking.

From the time I was a young child he successfully made me afraid of smoking or drinking alcohol. This kind of teaching and impressing is harder when children become teenagers. Teenagers start becoming smarter than their parents, so they think.

I realize hanging "Do Not Kill" on every wall and home in America will not eliminate the murder of black people, white people, Hispanics or police officers. However, how could it hurt?

departments) will be present at the southeast corner of Holton's Town Square for the remembrance, Koger said.

It has also been reported that local VFW and American Legion Riders will line up with flags in a show of remembrance on all four sides of the intersection of U.S. Highway 75 and Kansas Highway 16 between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. that day.

The public is invited to visit the Square on Friday morning to remember the thousands who died or were injured in the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on New York's World Trade Center and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., as well as those who lost their lives in that day's plane crash in Pennsylvania. The remembrance is expected to last no more than a few minutes, it was reported.

It is requested that flags are flown at half-staff on Friday in observance of what is now known as "Patriot Day." Sept. 11 was declared a national holiday of remembrance shortly after the 2001 attacks, and the first such remembrance was held on Sept. 11, 2002.

Flu Vaccine...

All of the 2015-16 trivalent influenza vaccine is being made to protect against an A/California/7/2009 (H1N1)pdm09-like virus, an A/Switzerland/9715293/2013 (H3N2)-like virus and a B/Phuket/3073/2013-like virus. Some of the 2015-16 flu vaccine is quadrivalent vaccine and also protects against an additional B virus (B/Brisbane/60/2008-like virus), with viruses generally named after their point of origin, the CDC reported.

Each year's vaccine is the result of "an educated estimate" of which flu viruses need to be protected against, but sometimes, those responsible for coming up with that estimate "do miss it," as was the case with last year's vaccine, Reith said. Still, people should get vaccinated and continue to take whatever precautions they can to avoid getting infected by the flu.

One general hope of medical experts is that eventually, a "one-shot" vaccine that can protect anyone from any strain or mutation of the flu will become available, and some scientists have made recent strides toward that end. However, Reith is in agreement

Honor Flight...

— even on $75 a month at that time. After checking in at a receiving station in Washington, he was sent to work at a naval base in New London, Conn., and transferred to the U.S.S. Nitro in 1962 in Rhode Island.

It was aboard the Nitro that Johnson was part of the most terrifying military experience of his career — the Cuban Missile Crisis.

"We'd just come back from Germany with a load of naval ammunition that we'd picked up, and all that started," Johnson said of the Cuban Missile Crisis. "We followed some of the Russian ships toward Puerto Rico, which was where we were going for some R-and-R. But the day they called it off, we saw the destroyer ships turn around and head back to Florida."

Johnson left the Nitro in 1964 and boarded a troop ship in San Diego, and in 1965, he was on his way to Vietnam, where conflict was beginning to escalate into full-blown war between North and South Vietnam. But as with the Korean War, he stayed aboard ship and didn't see any combat.

"Out of all the service I had, and that was 21 1/2 years, 18 years of it was sea duty," he said. "For three years, I was pushing recruits at San Diego. That's the only shore duty I had."

Johnson left the Navy for good in 1973 and moved to Nortonville, where his wife and eight children had moved a couple of years beforehand. He enjoyed the life of a retired military officer and "just kind of lived in town," he said.

Fast forward to 2015, when granddaughter Maggie came to him with a question: would he be interested in accompanying her on the upcoming Honor Flight?

"I knew Grandpa had been in two wars, and I wanted to do something good for him," she said. "I asked him if he'd go on the Honor Flight with me, and I was happy when he said yes."

Johnson knows it's going to be a long day, however.

"I mentioned the trip to my doctor the other day," he said. "He told me about some guy he knew from down around Valley Falls who went, and the guy who went said that when he came back, he was tired, but it was worth it. You can sleep on the flight!"

But for Johnson and Rostetter, more importantly, it will be a chance to share a big experience as grandfather and granddaughter.

"She's a good girl," Johnson said of Rostetter, before adding with a laugh, "at times."

with scientists that such a vaccine is years away despite that particular news.

"It's still being researched," she said. "While the research is good, I feel it's still important to continue to get your annual flu shot. But we'll keep looking to the future, to hope that some of this research will help us in our fight against influenza."

The CDC recommends that all persons six months of age and older get vaccinated, and the shot is especially recommended for those at higher risk of severe influenza and their close contacts, including health care personnel and children younger than six months who normally come into contact with them. Adults and older children only need one inoculation each year, although some children younger than nine years of age may need two, it was reported.

There are those, however, who should contact their doctor before getting vaccinated — specifically those who have severe allergies to eggs, since vaccines are grown in chickens' eggs. People undergoing chemotherapy treatments, having underlying health conditions or running a high fever are advised not to get the vaccine without contacting their doctor, it was reported.

The CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices has issued the following guidelines for the 2015-16 season:

■ All persons aged six months or older should receive influenza vaccine annually. Influenza vaccination should not be delayed to procure a specific vaccine preparation if an appropriate one is already available.

■ For healthy children aged two through eight years who have no contraindications or precautions, either LAIV (live attenuated influenza vaccine) or IIV (inactivated influenza vaccines) is an appropriate option.

JHHS volleyball fights back to earn split in home opener

Competing on its home court for the first time this season, JHHS volleyball coach Kaylee Mick said her team might have been a little anxious leading up to its non-league matches against Bishop Seabury and Onaga on Thursday night.

That may have caused some issues in the first match, a loss to Bishop Seabury, but the Cobras quickly rebounded to close out the evening with a win over the Buffalos of Onaga.

“We struggled at first. You know, I think we were really nervous for our first home game, so we struggled with Seabury. They were a good team,” Mick said. “When we came out with Onaga, we had figured out what those mistakes were against Seabury and came out ready to go, stayed on top of them and took care of business.”

Against the Seahawks of Seabury, Heights’ troubles were very simple as the team wasn’t quite crisp enough to walk away with a win, giving up 12 free balls in the two sets.

“Our passes just weren’t where they needed to be and we had some missed serves,” Mick said.

Even so, Heights still had its chances. While the team fell behind early, it managed a mid-set comeback. The Cobras couldn’t push all the way through, though, and some timely mistakes cost them in the loss (16-25 and 17-25) to Seabury.

For all that went wrong in the team’s first match, the second match against Onaga was the polar opposite as the Cobras came out and executed from the start on the way to a victory (25-20 and 25-16) that earned the team a split on the night.

Right away, Taylor Abel and Katelin Strube set the tone for Jackson Heights, collaborating on a few successful attacks that gave the team a lead it would not relinquish.

Mentally, the Cobras seemed to have the edge. Each team had its fair share of mistakes, but Onaga seemed to get deflated after each one while Jackson Heights just moved on to the next point.

“Last year, they really struggled with that. They would do well one game and then not the next,” Mick said. “After our loss to Seabury, we went in the locker room and talked about it and that was what we were going to make sure we did well, staying positive and hungry and not letting them make it close.”

After some long rallies late, the Cobras pushed their advantage to 22-17, but Mick said her players felt getting Abby Williams amped up would be the key to putting the first set away. Shortly after the team took that lead, Onaga had a miraculous rally to keep a ball alive only to have Williams squash it with a big block at the net that fired up both her and her teammates.

Williams had a late kill as well and the duo of Strube and Abel struck again to end the first set in the Cobra’s favor, 25-20.

Jackson Heights might not have led the whole way in the following set, but after stumbling early, the team quickly found its groove to push past the Buffalos.

Abby Williams played well again, as did sister Hannah Williams, as the two were like vultures up front just waiting to pounce on any free ball Onaga sent over the net. The two combined for 10 kills and five blocks in the second match of the night.

Those two helped the Cobras hang around before a couple of Onaga errors opened the door for Heights to take charge of the set and it didn’t look back. It wasn’t just the Williams sisters contributing, either, as Strube and Abel were efficient all night, while Maggie Rostetter came up with some big plays on defense and Bree Williams added some depth to the Cobras’ attack.

All of the players who took the court for JHHS contributed something in the match and that seemed to take its toll on the Buffalos late. Strube assisted on one of Bree Williams’ kills towards the end and that seemed to tip the scales in the Cobras’ favor for good as it was part of a six-point run that led to the team’s largest lead, 22-13, of the night before taking the final set 25-16.

“That’s what happens when we have so many girls that we can keep them fresh and switch them in and out, where everybody is good enough to play,” Mick said.

Jackson Heights still has some kinks to work out, as evidenced by the Seabury match, and will readdress those issues in practice, but Mick said it was good to see her players stay mentally strong and end the night on a positive note.

The Cobras (3-1) will now get ready for a big challenge in league play as the team travels to Valley Falls to face the Dragons and the Rams of Pleasant Ridge in a pair of matches starting at 5 p.m. on Tuesday.

Lady Wildcats continue to roll in league opener at Riverside

After getting pushed in its season-opener on the road, Thursday night’s first league matches, by comparison, were smooth sailing for the Holton volleyball team.

While the Wildcats may not have gotten the chance to push the intensity as much as coach Janelle Noel would have liked, the team still took care of business on the way to a sweep of Riverside to start Big Seven League competition.

In the first match of the evening, Noel noted here team didn’t get that many chances to go on the offensive, but the Wildcats took care of what they could control on the way to a 25-10 and 25-8 victory.

“Our serving was pretty solid and that really helped. They had a hard time reacting on serve/receive,” Noel said.

The second match proved to be a team effort as everybody pitched in a little something to help Holton close out strong. Hayley Thompson had another stellar performance, while Noel noted the front row as a whole excelled and gave the Cyclones fits on Thursday.

“When we have Mac(kenzie Moore), Hayley and Lauren (Leavendusky) at the net, we’re just a big hitting line and blocking line,” Noel said.

Sure enough, Moore and Leavendusky also got in on the action offensively a number of times, while the back row as a group got a lot of touches to set them up. Noel noted some younger players even got the chance to contribute, as freshman Reagan Baum came in at the end of the final match and she closed it out with two kills to deliver a win (25-9 and 25-10) and the series sweep.

“Everybody was talking. Everybody was moving. We were mixing it up with our hitters. They passed the ball to everybody the minute it was up in the air. The girls did a good job communicating, so that helped,” Noel said.

Communication was especially key against Riverside, as Holton’s opponent mixed it up on offense and kept the Wildcats on their toes. The defense proved ready for the challenge, though, and the offense fed off of that as Noel has told her players if they start with good passes, then the rest will fall in place.

Everything has fallen into place for the Wildcats so far, as all three teams (varsity, JV, freshman) are currently undefeated on the season. It is an exciting spot to be in and Noel said she hopes her players can keep that excitement going the rest of the fall.

“It’s just a great positive to start the season right and hopefully we ride it clear out to the end and keep up the momentum and the intensity as we go,” Noel said.

Holton (4-0) will now get ready for its home opener next week. The Wildcats will welcome in the Tigers of ACCHS for another league series starting at 5 p.m. on Tuesday.

Alumni begin college competition

Just like their high school counterparts, some collegiate athletes from Jackson County have been getting back into the swing of competition this past week.

Several community college and NAIA football teams kicked the season off last weekend. Former Wildcat Bryce Barnett took the field with the Benedictine College Ravens.

The 25th-ranked Ravens opened at home with a 24-14 victory over Evangel University and Barnett, one of the defensive captains this fall, finished with four tackles in the game.

Fellow Heart of America Conference member Baker also kicked off the football season this past Saturday. The 15th-ranked Wildcats had a stout challenge in week one as they opened the season on the road at sixth-ranked Grand View University.

Baker features Holton grads galore on the roster and two in particular helped the team pull through for a 20-15 victory, as Tanner Clark helped set the tone up front on the offensive line, while Cameron Karn saw his first action since transferring from Emporia State and recorded one tackle in the game.

A couple of other teams with area alumni fell on some hard luck to start the season as Dylan Wheeler (HHS) and the Highland Community College football squad fell 36-28 to Garden City Community College, while Southwestern College dropped its opener to Wayland Baptist University by a score of 42-5. Former Panther Craig Thurber now suits up for the Moundbuilders.

On the volleyball court, some former Wildcats and Panthers are making their mark, starting in the Heart of America Conference in the NAIA.

Holton alumni Christa Hill and Keri Tanking have both seen significant court time for the Ottawa Braves, who currently boast a perfect 6-0 record. Hill and Tanking have pitched in where needed and contributed in the team’s most recent win over Southwestern College (25-16, 25-16 and 25-12).

Hill had nine assists and three digs in the match, while Tanking added another dig and six kills on the offensive end. Tanking has 30 kills and 15 digs so far this season, while Hill has added 11 digs and 14 assists.

Another former Wildcat is on the roster at fellow HOA school Benedictine College, as Hanah Suarez has joined the Ravens. So far, Benedictine is 1-2 this fall with a marathon 25-17, 35-37, 25-15 and 25-21 win over Stephens College to open the season.

Out west at Barton County Community College, recent RVHS graduate Hannah Beam is already making her mark on the volleyball court. Currently, the Cougars (5-3) are on a five-game winning streak and Beam has had a hand in that.

Beam had one kill, one block and one dig in the team’s most recent win over Dodge City Community College, but that pales in comparison to her eight kills (and one dig and block) in a recent win over Sterling College JV.

Several more alumni took the field in NCAA Division II competition on Thursday, with HHS grads Jaxon Wright and Adam Luthi representing Pittsburg State University and Washburn University, respectively. Meanwhile, RVHS alum Michael Houghtaling took the gridiron once again with Missouri Western University.

More collegiate athletes from the Jackson County community are poised to get their seasons started as well this weekend and it is likely to be another busy and successful fall for the former Cobras, Panthers and Wildcats.

To help keep track of those numerous athletes, please let us know if your son or daughter (or grandson or granddaughter, etc.) is participating in a collegiate sport this fall by sending an e-mail to holtonrecorder@embarqmail.com with details and links about his or her exploits. You may also contact Kelly at (785) 364-3141 to report your news.

The Holton Recorder is happy to help keep track of our local college athletes and thanks you for your help and support.

Big 12 teams looking to make their mark in college football landscape

By Kelly Breckunitch

Three of the four teams selected to the inaugural College Football Playoff last season went into the postseason with at least one blemish on their record, just like Big 12 co-champions Baylor and TCU.

As most fans in the Midwest know, though, the Bears and Horned Frogs were left out of the mix in favor of Oregon, Alabama and eventual national champion Ohio State.

Baylor and TCU seemingly did everything right as both teams lost relatively early in the season and were peaking towards the stretch run in December. The Horned Frogs were especially strong late, topping 40 points in four of their last five contests, including a 42-3 dismantling of ninth-ranked Ole Miss in the Peach Bowl.

So, to quote comedian Jerry Seinfeld, what's the deal with the Big 12? The conference has 10 teams, no championship game and seems to have been placed at the bottom of the hierarchy among the newly aligned power conferences.

Look, even with a playoff now in place, there's always going to be somebody left out in the cold. There's just no way around it, but can you imagine the match-up that never-was between the 2014 Oregon and TCU squads? It's enough to make football fans salivate.

It's never good to dwell on the past, so let's look to the future and predict just what it's going to take for each Big 12 team to get some love again and gain national recognition and a spot at the playoff table.

After the way TCU ended last season, the good news is they are already on the radar as an early favorite for one of those four playoff spots (and to challenge the Buckeyes' reign as champions).

The Horned Frogs will certainly be feeling the love this fall, and the pressure. As the favorites to win the Big 12 and with Heisman candidate Trevone Boykin back under center, TCU may be feeling rosy right now, but the team will certainly have a target on its back through conference play.

If TCU is already feeling the love, then Oklahoma is the team everybody is warming up to this fall.

While the Sooners are normally a national fixture under head coach Bob Stoops, OU hasn't made an appearance in a national championship game since 2008 and it has been five years since the team claimed a Big 12 title outright.

Given the offensive weapons the Sooners have this fall, OU could quickly thrust itself onto the national stage if Samaje Perine can build off a freshman campaign that saw him rack up 1,713 rushing yards (including an NCCA single-game record of 427 yards in one contest) and 21 touchdowns.

With Texas Tech transfer Baker Mayfield looking to lead a remodeled Sooner offense, the hype is building and if OU even comes close to delivering, then they may likely put themselves in playoff contention as well.

Baylor has a chance to earn back its national recognition as well, but the Bears have a little more rebuilding to do than the current Big 12 darlings residing in Fort Worth.

The Bears will have to replace two-year starter Bryce Petty at quarterback, but do have at least one potent offensive weapon returning in the form of running back Shock Linwood who finished with 1,252 rushing yards and 16 touchdowns in 2014 on the way to first team All-Conference honors.

Another player garnering much attention early on will likely be the physical specimen that is defensive end Shawn Oakman (6' 9", 275 lbs.), so Baylor clearly has some stars who could shine brightly on a national stage. What's left to be seen is if those stars align to help Baylor put together another (nationally) awe-inspiring campaign.

While there are certainly flashier teams in the conference, there may be no more hard-nosed group than the Wildcats at Kansas State.

That's fine for head coach Bill Snyder, who is a star in his own right in that he continues to guide the Wildcats to prolonged and somehow (still) unexpected success.

Kansas State may have a musical chair situation at quarterback early on, but the Wildcats have a veteran group on the offensive line to make the job easier for whoever takes the mantle in place of Jake Waters.

On defense, Kansas State will have a lot more holes to fill, but don't be surprised to see some familiar faces and local talent earning national attention if another Cinderella story starts to unfold in Manhattan.

Another potential under-the-radar threat could be Texas, who has fallen out of favor quickly in the Big 12 conference. The Longhorns will have their chance to make a national splash right away, though, as the team opens the season against Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind.

If Texas can keep it fairly close they may open some eyes and get people to forget that they're currently struggling to win the recruiting war in their own state and questions continue to fly on the topic of whether or not Charlie Strong can succeed in Austin.

With Kliff Kingsbury at the helm, Texas Tech did have a lot of attention two seasons ago when the Red Raiders started 7-0 under the leadership of the former quarterback who played in the glory days of Mike Leach's air raid offense.

Tech lost its next five games, though, and while it rebounded with a win over Arizona State in the Holiday Bowl that was one of just four wins for TTU in the last 18 games.

This season, the Red Raiders return plenty of senior starters with experience, so it could be a boom or bust year for the team and when Texas Tech goes boom, heads tend to turn.

For Oklahoma State, it may take another rant from head coach Mike Gundy to get the spotlight, or at least fire up his team, as the Cowboys will have some rebuilding to do in 2015.

Meanwhile, if West Virginia wants to be significant on a widespread scale, than the Mountaineers will need to start winning some of the shootouts they are routinely involved in each season.

Iowa State's path to national relevance will be even tougher, as they now seem to be an also-ran in the conference conversation. It wasn't so long ago that the Cyclones played spoiler to Oklahoma State's national championship bid and if they did so again this season to say, TCU, it wouldn't go unnoticed.

No team has more work to do, though, than Kansas as the Jayhawks have become the cellar dweller of the Big 12. With David Beatty and Clint Bowen reuniting after collaborating on the staff of KU's last bowl eligible team, perhaps magic is in the air once again. It will take a lot, but even a .500 record would potentially get Kansas back on the radar.

There are some realistic opportunities for greatness and some other chances for struggling teams to make a little noise, but any way you look at it, every Big 12 team could be making headlines in 2015.

Participants in the Chris Schuetz Memorial 5K (shown above) line up for the start of the race. A total of 165 people, it was reported, turned out for the run/walk in memory of the Holton native.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

KANZA Mental Health & Guidance Center
TEENAGE BULLYING AND DEPRESSION

Al Bales, LCSW

As evidence continues to accumulate that bullying is not an acceptable "right of passage" for children and teenagers, new research links teenage bullying and depression. The large study examined the link between bullying by peers in teenage years and depression in early adulthood. Researchers found that young teens who were frequently bullied were more than twice as likely to suffer depression for more than two years by the time they reached adulthood than their non-bullied peers. This effect proved to be true for both males and females. The bullying took the form of name-calling and having belongings taken away by bullies. Because most teens never report these behaviors to adults, parents should look for signs that their children are being bullied.

P.S. Being bullied in childhood has been linked to greater risk of obesity, strokes, and heart attacks later in life.

Of course, bullying is just one possible root of depression. Many people become depressed for many reasons. Sometimes, people can become depressed for no reason at all. If you are dealing with bullying or with depression for any reason, please call our office to make an appointment. Our experienced counselors can help you deal with your depression, no matter what the root cause.

Memorial run draws big crowd in Holton

LifeCare Fitness Center recently concluded its competitive summer season with a 5K run in memory of Holton native Chris Schuetz.

The race took part in town and more than 160 people turned out to be a part of the run/walk, which saw proceeds donated to the Holton Parks and Recreation department.

Athletes came from all over the state, from Olathe to Andover, to compete in the memorial run. One participant even made the long trek from Arizona just for the event.

When all was said and done, Holton's Michael Carlson clocked the fastest overall time in the 5K race, while Gardner's Kristi Frase was the top female runner in the event. Full results for the competitive race are listed by age group below.

Spalding hired to replace Hamlin as elderly services director

By Ali Holcomb

Amanda Spalding of Holton has been hired to serve as the county's elderly services director, as current director Cheryl Hamlin is set to retire at the end of the year.

During a recent Jackson County Commission meeting, the commissioners agreed to hire Spalding, who is currently employed in the elderly service department, as the new director at a rate of $16.75 an hour.

In June, Hamlin submitted a retirement notice to the commissioners, and at that time, she asked the commissioners to hire her replacement by September in order for her to train that person.

Hamlin has worked for the county for 36 years, when she started in July 1979.

A more detailed profile on both women is being scheduled for a future edition of The Holton Recorder.

In other business, according to the unapproved minutes from Aug. 24, the commission:

* Met in executive session for five minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

* Heard a weekly report from Eric Fritz and Earl Bahret, road and bridge co-supervisors. Commissioner Bill Elmer asked about the condition of 110th Road west of U.S. Highway 75, and Fritz stated that semis have been hauling hay on the road, which is putting a lot of pressure on the road and causing it to fracture.

* Learned that Bob Ehrhart with Ehrhart Excavating has offered to use an excavator to locate a fiber optic cable on 134th and S Roads. The cable needs to be located in order for the county to replace a tube on the south side of the intersection. A 15-inch tube is being replaced with an 18-inch tube.

* Met in executive session with Bahret and Fritz for 10 minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

* Learned that Fritz would like the commissioners to view 254th Road between Q.4 and T Road. Later in the meeting, the commissioners viewed the road.

Chairwoman Janet Zwonitzer also asked if there was any extra asphalt to put down behind the sheriff's office.

* Met with Verlin Wichman to discuss historical photos of the county.

* Met with resident Mike Kennedy to discuss his daughter's attempt to obtain a building permit through the county. Kennedy was upset that when his daughter was in the process of moving a trailer on the land, she was told the property was on tribal land and would have to go through the Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation to obtain the permit.

Later in the meeting, the commissioners met with County Counselor Alex Morrissey to how building permits are issued on tribal land within the county.

* Heard a weekly report from John Kennedy, Banner Creek Reservoir manager, who noted that revenue at the reservoir park from Aug. 16 – 22 totaled $2,349.41.

Kennedy presented a quote from Haug Construction Inc. for $825 to run a waterline to a shelter house.

* Learned from Kennedy that he visited with staff and toured Tuttle Creek State Park recently, visiting the archery range, campgrounds and cabins. He noted that it took the park less than two years to pay off the cost of constructing the cabins. He said that there aren't any grants available for cabins.

* Received a quote for a shower tower to be installed on the north side of the swim beach at a cost of $2,540 from Most Dependable Fountains Inc. of Tennessee. The project was tabled and no action was taken on the quote.

* Discussed setting up a meeting this winter to discuss fees for the reservoir and the possibility of offering different rates for residents and non-residents.

* Met with Mary Ann Riederer, business consultant at Washburn University KSBDC. Riederer updated the commissioners on business seminars that will be held in Sabetha and Hiawatha.

* Received a request from Mayetta Fire District members to appoint Damian Brackenbury to the fire board. Commissioner Rob Ladner made a motion to accept Brackenbury's appointment, and Zwonitzer seconded the motion. Commissioner Elmer did not vote in favor of the motion because the commissioners previously requested that fire boards submit more than one name when a board position needs to be filled.

* Discussed whether the right-of-way on Sixth Street in Hoyt should be closed. The street is located outside the city limits to the east of town and is maintained by the county. Commissioner Elmer said he thinks there is a waterline in the road easement.

* Met in executive session with Morrissey and County Clerk Kathy Mick for 15 minutes to discuss a matter of attorney/client privilege. No action was taken back in open session.

* Met in executives session for 15 minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

* Adjourned the meeting at 4:34 p.m. All three commissioners were present.

County Commissioners deny request to maintain road in rural subdivision

By Ali Holcomb
In light of recent requests for the county to maintain some additional roads, the Jackson County Commissioners and the road and bridge co-supervisors have agreed that the county is not financially able to add more roads to the county's maintenance program at this time.

During a recent county commission meeting, the commissioners discussed a request by several county residents for the county to take over the maintenance of Prairie Drive, which is located on the Green Acres subdivision south of Holton. The subdivision is located south of 214th Road and just west of Q Road on old U.S. Highway 75.

The commissioners and Eric Fritz and Earl Bahret, road and bridge department co-supervisors, agreed that the county cannot show favoritism to specific areas of the county.

It was questioned by Jackson County Clerk Kathy Mick if there are any stipulations in the county's subdivision regulations that states whether the county will maintain these roads once they are brought to county standards.

The commissioners reviewed a copy of the regulations regarding minimum standards for roads, streets and alleys within the unincorporated areas of the county.

The regulations state that any new road must be made to a standard equal to or greater than the existing county road that it connects to, which means Prairie Drive would have to be chip-and-sealed before the county would consider taking over the maintenance of the road, it was reported. Prairie Drive connects to Q Road (the old U.S. Highway 75), which is chip-and-sealed.

Fritz estimated that to chip-and-seal Prairie Drive would cost $45,000 for the materials and an additional $50,000 for machinery just in the first year.

For the second and third years, it would be $25,000 for materials and $25,000 for machinery and labor each year. Fritz said the cost estimates do not include building the road base.

According to the regulation, "only after completion of all improvements and to the approval of the Jackson County road and bridge supervisor may the road be accepted into the maintenance system of the Jackson County Road and Bridge Department."

The commissioners agreed that the county couldn't take over the maintenance of Prairie Drive, denying the request by the property owners.

In other business, according to the unapproved minutes from Aug. 10, the commission:

- * Heard a weekly report from Fritz and Bahret. Fritz said that rock is not being hauled at this time.

The commissioners agreed to transfer $150,000 back to the county general budget from the road and bridge budget.

On June 29, the commissioners agreed to transfer $184,000 to the road and bridge rock budget from county general because it appeared that the rock line item was in the red.

It was determined that there was a glitch in the computer program that didn't clear the June encumbrances, causing the reports to show the rock fund in the red.

The encumbrances have been corrected and there is a balance of $107,000 for rock for the rest of the year. The road crews will resume hauling rock to spots that need it.

- * Learned from Fritz that there is excess chip rock leftover from chip-and-sealing E Road north of Delia. The rock will be used next year for the second coat of chip and seal.

Commissioner Rob Ladner asked the men if they had decided to purchase a traffic counter. Bahret said he has done some more research and found another company to try but is having trouble getting the company to let the county borrow a counter for a test run.

- * Met with Ron Karns who asked whether the county received any Federal Emergency Management Agency funding for recent flooding. The commissioners said the county has been approved for some funds, but the amount has not been finalized.

- * Met with Cindy Hower from Kellerman's Insurance to discuss the process of bidding property and liability insurance for the county. The Kansas County Association Multi-Line Pool (KCAMP) also wants to submit a quote to the county.

The commissioners agreed to set a bid date for 10 a.m. to Nov. 2 for insurance quotes. The county currently has insurance through Kellerman's and that policy is set to expire at the end of the year.

- * Met in executive session for 15 minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

- * Heard a weekly report from John Kennedy, Banner Creek Reservoir director, who reported that revenues at the lake for the past weekend totaled $2,822.

Kennedy reported that staff members would like to create a volunteer advisory board that would help with marketing, development and funding for the lake, as well as be a liaison to the public.

Each county commissioner could appoint two citizens from the county to the board to serve a two-year term. No decision was made.

- * Learned from Kennedy that more lifejackets are needed at the reservoir. The majority of the current lifejackets are for smaller children.

- * Met in executive session with Kennedy for 10 minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

- * Met with Jackson County Appraiser Larry Reynolds and Zoning Administrator Jason Claycamp to discuss the former Jackson County Fairgrounds.

Reynolds reported that the property has been tax exempt since the early 1970s, and if it is still being used for fair activities, it can remain exempt. The property, however, needs to be placed back on the tax roll if the land is no longer being used for tax-exempt activities, he said.

- * Learned from Dan Robinson, noxious weed director and solid waste manager, that a wheel on the noxious weed sprayer that is rented to county residents recently went flat and separated from the rim.

Robinson said that he, personally, had two extra wheels that he put on the sprayer so that the road and bridge department would not have to retrieve the tire, repair it and then put it back on the sprayer.

Robinson asked if the county would want to purchase the extra tires from him at a total cost of $150. The commissioners agreed.

- * Entered into a five-year contract with Giant Communications for a new phone system for the Courthouse, Banner Creek Reservoir, the recycling center, senior citizens center, road and bridge shop and yard. The cost of the contract is $3,404.41 per year.

- * Left their chambers to view several road concerns in the county, including U and 206th Roads, the bridge at 278th and T.4 Roads and a steep incline at 206th Road and Kansas Highway 16.

- * Met in executive session with County Attorney Shawna Miller for five minutes to discuss a personnel matter. No action was taken back in open session.

- * Signed a payroll increase for Jackson County Sheriff's Deputy Brittany Clarke.

- * Adjourned the meeting at 4:34 p.m. Commissioner Janet Zwonitzer was absent from the meeting.

Master Trooper Gregory Askren

Circleville native to retire from KHP duty

A Circleville native who has served with the Kansas Highway Patrol for more than a quarter of a century will be stepping down later this month, KHP Superintendent Col. Mark Bruce announced Wednesday. Master Trooper Gregory Askren (pictured) will be retiring from the Kansas Highway Patrol after serving the state and citizens of Kansas for 27 years, Bruce said. Askren's last day on the job will be Monday, Sept. 14.

Askren began his career with KHP on June 18, 1988, as a member of KHP Class 24. His first duty station was Elkhart in Morton County. He transferred to Concordia in Cloud County in June of 1992 and was promoted to Master Trooper on June 24, 2001.

A graduate of Jackson Heights High School, Askren earned an associate's degree from Barton County Community College and served as a part-time officer with the Hugoton Police Department and with the Brown County Sheriff Reserve before joining the KHP. He is also a member of the Concordia Lions Club, serves on the Rural Conservation and Development board and is on the Cloud County Community College Board of Trustees.

Askren and his wife of 34 years, Jackie, raise registered quarter horses. They have three sons, Tyrel and wife Shancee of Maple Hill, Brice of Concordia and Kyle and wife Pam of Colby, along with a grandson, Elijah.

The annual meeting is hosted by a different county each year, it was reported.

* Heard an update on rock hauled to Douglas Township from Eric Fritz and Earl Bahret, road and bridge co-supervisors. The men reported that 8,612 tons of rock, including 574 truckloads, had been hauled to that area so far this year. It was noted that 500 tons of rock had been hauled on V4 Road and 122 tons of rock had been hauled on U4 Road.

* Learned from Terry Mick, bridge and special project manager, that a pipe, estimated at $5,084, is needed to repair a bridge wall by Delia. A pipe also needs to be ordered for the bridge at A.4 and 152nd Roads. This pipe should be paid for with Federal Emergency Management Agency funds, Mick said.

Mick also noted that he talked with Randy LaBrique and Hardy Eteeyan with the Prairie Band Potawatomi Tribe concerning replacing a cement box at 156th and Q.4 Roads with a tube. The commissioners agreed that a verbal agreement for the project is fine.

Mick will also get dirt half a mile west of this bridge on 150th and Q Roads.
