County signs contract with DSJC

By Ali Holcomb

A contract between Jackson County and Developmental Services of Jackson County has been signed that will give individuals with disabilities an opportunity to work at the county's recycling center.

"We're really excited and think this will be a win-win for both the county and Developmental Services," Commission Chair Janet Zwonitzer said. "We've been working towards this for a couple of years, and we're glad that it finally worked out."
The contract was signed Monday after the terms had been discussed by both parties in recent DSJC clients will work at the recycling center, located at 700 E. Fourth St., from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays and 9 a.m. to noon on Thursdays at a rate of $8 an

On Tuesdays and Wednesdays, individuals will receive two 15minute breaks and will take a 30-minute unpaid lunch break. On Thursdays, individuals will have one 15-minute break.

DSJC will provide and pay its own support staff members to supervise and provide job coaching to their clients as they work, according to the contract. The support staff will complete an orientation process at the recycling center prior to allowing individuals with disabilities to begin working there.

After DSJC's clients are orientated to working at the recycling center, the goal is to have two DJSC clients and one support staff working at the center

It was noted that about 10 different individuals from DSJC will be working at the recycling

During severe winter weather, when collections at the recycling center slow, DSJC clients will not work at the center, it was reported.

According to the contract, DSJC is responsible for transporting individuals to and from the recycling center.

The county is expected to pay $9,984 a year for these services, it was reported. The individuals working at the center will not Since 2012, United Way has provided $27,000 to the Jackson County Christmas Bureau.

United Way of Greater Topeka is also hosting a Food Drive Challenge on Tuesday, Dec. 6, during the Holton and Royal Valley varsity basketball games at Royal Valley High School.

Students and families from each school are being asked to bring non-perishable food items to the game in support of their schools and the local community.

Donated items will be given to the Jackson County Christmas Bureau and the food pantry for Last year, the Jackson County

Christmas Bureau served 512 people. Among those were 67 disabled or senior adults and 236 children. As part of the event, income-eligible residents receive boxes of food and essential bags. They are also able to "shop" for free gifts for their families. Volunteers also provided free gift wrapping.

This year's event will be held on Friday, Dec. 16, at the First Baptist Church of Holton, 404 Juniper Dr.

Applications to be considered for the Christmas Store must be completed by Wednesday, Nov.

Holton B.O.E. discusses roof repairs at former fair building

By David Powls Before the old Jackson County Fair Building is painted next spring, some work on its roof will need to be completed, the Holton school board learned recently.

Holton USD 336 now owns the old fair building.

Mike Porter, maintenance director for the district, presented nine bids ranging from $18,750 to $81,301.59 from three different companies to seal and protect the metal roof on the fair build-

Porter said that when the roof was being power-washed recently, some coating failed and chipped off that was part of a roof restoration project several years ago.

The fair building was constructed in 1955, it was reported, and has the original galvanized metal roof. Porter said the roof probably will not leak much at its seams over the winter due to its slope, but a plan needs to be determined to seal and paint the roof or otherwise cover it.

Midwest Coating, Conklin Roofing Systems and ADS Distribution, Inc. submitted bids for the roof repair work. Proposals ranged from placing fiberboard over the existing roof followed by a thin membrane outer surface to a foam spray over the existing

Representatives from all three companies indicated that it was too late this year to do the work. The board has already approved a bid from Sterbenz Painting of Topeka to paint the old fair build-

A decision on the roof was tabled until a future meeting.

At its meeting, the school board also approved a motion to complete sensitivity training recommended by the Office of Civil Rights and to update district policy as recommended by the Office of Civil Rights.

The board learned that the district had been contacted by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Office of Civil Rights regarding two complaints filed against the district.

Superintendent Dennis Stones said hearings had been held and a settlement offer had been extended to the district.

Stones said the district needed to have its bus drivers complete required sensitivity training by Dec. 15 and to have the rest of school staff complete the same training by the end of the school

Stoll, Utz named to Chamber Hall of Fame

By Brian Sanders

When it comes to preserving the history of Jackson County for future generations, two names that get mentioned — and deservedly so — are Emily Jane Stoll and Margaret Utz, mainly because of the work they have put in with the Jackson County Historical Society. Stoll, a member of the historical society since its inception in 1979, has focused her efforts on preserving documents and stories that date back to the 1850s.

'There's 'history' history, there's myth history and there's tourist history," Stoll said. "We do the whole thing.

And Utz, who joined the historical society in the mid-1980s, has been one of the strongest supporters of the historical society's Roebke House Museum.

"My interest was keeping the house like the Roebkes had it, to display the different styles and the different things that women did for their pastimes like the hand crafts, the crocheting and the tatting, bobbin lace weaving and spinning," Utz said.

In February, Stoll and Utz will be inducted into the Holton/Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Hall of Fame for their efforts to preserve the county's history through countless volunteer hours of work and dedication to the Historical Society's cause. Both women said they were surprised by the honor but chose to look at it with a sense of humor.

"We both had the same reaction, I think — 'Why in the world do we deserve this?'" Stoll said. "It got me to thinking it was kind of like having a funeral, thinking about all the things people were going to say about us — well, hopefully they're going to be good things.' Bothwomencome from a farming background and have some teaching experience, sometimes in one-room schools that Utz said were "before the unified districts." Utz, a 1937 graduate of Effingham High School, only taught in county schools for four years, starting in 1938, before marrying a farmer and moving to a farm about seven miles east "Where I live now, I've lived there since 1945," Utz said. "We gave $5,000 for 160 acres. That was a pretty good bargain.

Stoll graduated from Holton High School in 1944 and immediately went to work teaching, balancing farming and raising children with class work with children in the Royal Valley and Jackson Heights school districts.

"I taught at Sunrise School just southeast of Holton, west of Denison, where my kids took over writing the news for the smaller communities in Jackson County," Stoll said. "The kids wrote about their parents and neighbors. It was good practice for them."

In later years, Utz went to work at the Jackson County Treasurer's office in the Jackson County Courthouse "for 16 years full-time, and then five years part-time after I retired," she said.

It was during Utz's time at the Courthouse that the Jackson County Historical Society began to take root. She said that former Chamber president Corinne Richard "planted the idea" for the historical society, and in 1979, the society had its first meeting, with Stoll among those present.

"We met at the Kansas State Bank," Stoll said. "And the dues were only a dollar a year... They figured for a dollar a year, people would join whether they

Juarez-Benito gets 43 months

By Brian Sanders

A Holton resident originally accused of attempted first-degree murder, rape and six other charges in connection with a February incident received a 43-month prison sentence in Jackson County District Court this morning.

who pleaded guilty in October to a charge of aggravated battery in exchange for having the other charges dismissed, heard the sentence passed down from District Court Judge Norbert Marek through an interpreter during the sentencing hearing.

Juarez-Benito's sentence was reduced by 289 days for time already served at the Jackson County Detention Center, meaning he will serve just short of three years in prison. Marek also noted that following the completion of the sentence, it is expected that Juarez-Benito, recognized as a native of Guatemala, will be deported.

Juarez-Benito had previously been charged with attempted first-degree murder, rape, ag-

Club leader Megan Montgomery thanked all the people that came and helped decorate for the achievement program and also those that got awards for the work they did on the their books. Megan congratulated Bridget Kucan for becoming an ambassador.

She also told about some of the club goals for the next 4-H year. After the meeting was over, she wanted to meet with the officers to discuss some club things.

For the program, Isaac Utz, vice-president, called members to share with the group. Kyler Kathrens showed how to make an after school snack. Bailey Kathrens told about the projects that she is going to take this year. Asher Larson gave a project talk on how to ready to a preschooler. Lexie Larson told how to decorate and how to use different tools to get different designs.

For the community service project in November, club members made essential bags for the Jackson County Christmas Store.

Club members adjourned the meeting and shared in refreshments provided by the Kathrens and Larson families.

Weekly Ag Report

By Matt Hines

Livestock futures finished the week without much action, but there was another solid gain for the week-over-week changes.

Cash feedlot trade last week saw heavy volume up to $110 live and $170 dressed which was $4 to $6 higher than the week previous. Beef sales were also in high demand this past week with prices mostly flat to lower.

Cattle on feed as of Nov. 1 was right in line with expectations at 99 percent vs. a year ago. October placements at 95 percent and marketings at 105 percent were also in line with pre-report estimates. The big downturn in placements came in the more-than-800-lb. class at 83 percent vs. a year ago.

For those unfamiliary with the terms, cattle on feed are steers and heifers being fed a ration of grain, silage, hay and/or protein supplement for slaughter market that are expected to produce a carcass that will grade at select or better. It excludes cattle being "backgrounded only" for later sale as feeders or later placement in another feedlot.

Placements are steers and heifers put into a feedlot, fed a ration which will produce a carcass that will grade select or better, and are intended for the slaughter market. Marketings are steers and heifers shipped out of feedlots to a slaughter market.

Compared to last week, steer and heifer calves sold $2 to $8 higher with instances of $10 to $15 higher throughout the country this week. Yearling steers and heifers sold steady to $5 higher when auctions had enough on offer to get a representative sample to trend.

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency on Friday afternoon said they've confirmed another five cases of bovine tuberculosis, bringing the total up to six confirmed cases. Three weeks ago, the first case was detected in Alberta, and as a result, more than 30 ranches were quarantined.

For the week, Friday Nov. 11, to Friday, Nov. 18, December live cattle were up $2.27, February was up $2.55, January feeder cattle were up $3.95, March was up $3.32, December lean hogs were up $.67 and February was down $.17. Boxed Beef, Choice was down $1.67 at $182.95, Select was down $.70 at $167.01 and Pork Carcass Cutout was down $1.10 at Cattle slaughter from Friday was estimated at 115,000 head, up 10,000 from the week previous and up 7,000 compared to a year ago. For the week, the total was 629,000 head, up 19,000 from the week previous and up 58,000 compared to a year ago.

Beef production for the week was estimated at 527.5 million pounds vs. 512.8 million the week previous and 483.5 million last year. Year-to-date slaughter is up 5.2 percent and beef production is up 5.3 percent.

Hog slaughter from Friday was estimated at 437,000 head, up 32,000 from the week previous and up 1,000 compared to a year ago. For the week, the total was 2,531,000 head, up 79,000 from the week previous and up 137,000 compared to a year ago.

Pork production was estimated at 534.3 million pounds, compared to 517 million the week previous and 510.8 million last year. Year-to-date slaughter is up 1.7 percent, but pork production is only up 1.1

Live cattle futures held gains to start the week, but feeders reversed lower while lean hogs finished with a strong triple-digit higher day.

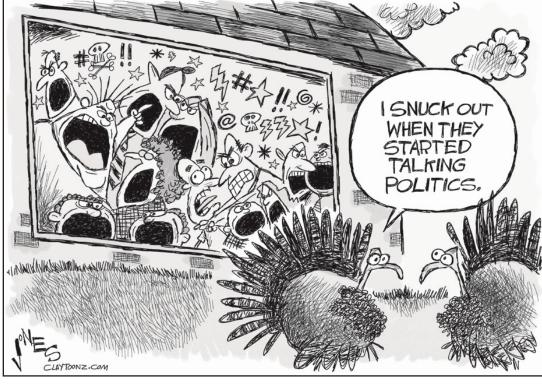

December live cattle surpassed the September high last week with the next level of resistance at $110, with support in the $105 to $103 area. The September high for January feeders was up at $127.50, now within striking distance, with support down at $120. December lean hogs pushed through the $48 and $49 resistance levels. The next is up near $50.50, with good support at $46.

Over in the grains, it was a green day last Friday after a steady overnight. Export shipments and sales remain impressive, but much of that increased demand is already built into USDA's current supply and demand estimates. The Decemberto-March corn spread is now into +7½ to +8 to the March end as the January-to-March soybean spread is trading out to $+8\frac{1}{2}$ to +9 to the March end.

Grains were all higher to start this week, led again by the soy complex, with support from the Chinese futures and palm oil higher Sunday night. Export inspections for the week ending Nov. 17 were lower for soybeans, compared to the previous week, yet still impressive at 98 million bushels (MBU).

All other grains were able to take advantage of the additional capacity available and were higher than the week previous, with corn at 34.5 MBU, wheat at 15.8 MBU and grain sorghum at 4.6 MBU.

How to safely make cookies

By Cindy Williams Meadowlark Extension District Agent Food & Nutrition, FNP

The holidays bring the joy of time with family and friends. One tradition is making cookies to share.

With cent recalls of contaminated flour, it is important to hancookie dough safely to not spoil holiday fun.

Many cookies are shaped with

Risks from eating raw eggs and now uncooked flour can increase your risk of getting a foodborne illness. Regardless of the brand or source of flour or eggs, the risk of foodborne illness is present when consumed

Clean the Fridge for the Holidays

While Nov. 15 was designed as "National Clean Your Fridge Day," this cleaning should happen often throughout the year.

Wipe up spills immediately, clean surfaces thoroughly with hot, soapy water, then rinse.

Once a week, make it a habit to throw out perishable foods that should no longer be eaten. Storage times for cooked leftovers are four days; raw poultry and ground meats, one to two

Upcoming programs will discuss deer, bees

By Jody G. Holthaus Meadowlark Extension District Agent

Livestock-Natural Resources I saw on the Internet that for each Christmas tree that goes before Thanksgiving, an elf reindeer! Now that's consequences.

Back in the good ole days, when office our was in the Courthouse,

I used to give the custodians trouble when the Christmas decorations would go up. It seemed that each year they did it earlier and earlier.

I especially liked to find the Christmas tree abandoned. I "might" have hidden the top from Cheryl and Teresa a time or two. I think the tradition caught on, and I wasn't the only one giving them trouble.

So this year when the Town Square was going to turn on the lights the second Friday of the month, I faced a real dilemma. We felt obligated to decorate our door and entrance. Of course I got an earful about being a hypocrite.

Post-election season, 'tis the season for that. too!

We have some exciting stuff coming up! We have planned a deer school with our KSU wildlife specialist, Charlie Lee. Charlie is going to talk about antler growth and deer nutrition. If you are into deer habitat, he will tell you how to grow the big bucks.

Then we will have a representative from Kansas Wildlife Parks and Tourism tell us about the deer population and the effects of their diseases.

They tell me there are a lot less deer; my nighttime sightings haven't decreased. Plus the bloodstains on the highway beg to differ, but I'll keep an open mind. That meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Dec. 14 at the Jefferson County fair building in Valley Falls. We had to reschedule from Nov. 30. I guess that was opening day of the rifle season or something. Secondly, we are having a basic bee keeping school. The interest in bee keeping is at an all-time high. We have Sharon Dobesh from the KSU entomology department coming to present this program. It will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Dec. 16 at the Northeast Kansas Heritage Complex in Holton (new fairgrounds). We would love to have new and experienced beekeepers to add to the discussion.

Both of these programs are free to anyone interested. There is no need to register, RSVP or

Some forage management systems explained

By David G. Hallauer Meadowlark Extension District Agent Crops & Soils/Horticulture

When we talk about precision ag, we ofthink variable rate about yield monitors, application other uses of technology to "fine-tune" crop production systems.

Forage management systems, on the other hand, typically get less attention to detail paid to Precision forage management doesn't have to include fancy technology or bells and whistles, however. In fact, the basis of the system is likely little more complex than a soil sample.

Why start with a soil sample? Because without it, one of the core foundations of your forage management system - soil fertility - is just a guess! How many other management decisions would you leave to a 'guess?!'

Composite samples are a great start. If you take an appropriate number of samples to keep variability low, you can actually come up with excellent and accurate data.

Monitoring soil test values over time adds yet another layer to composite sampling, allowing you to see how soil test levels are responding to your management over time. Just remember, there will likely be very high and very low levels in the field that get "averaged" out by composite sampling. If you want to make your approach a little more precision management minded, consider zone, or even grid, sampling.

Zone sampling is simply dividing fields into what we call management zones, sampling them separately so we can determine where high and low fertility levels might be.

With that data, you can start to determine whether differences are due to management efforts on your part, soil type differences or some other reason. Whether you choose to apply nutrients according to those differences is yet another step in the process, but you at least have the information on which to start making decisions. Grid sampling is most popular in very intensely managed cropping systems and may not be necessary (or economically viable) if yield from the field is fairly uniform. In cases where a composite sample shows low levels of nutrient availability, a grid or zone sampling protocol may further help define areas that are adequate in a given nutrient and which are very low and need to be addressed.

Grid (and zone) sampling can help fine-tune further what the composite sample is telling

What's the right forage nutrient management program for you? Start with what you are doing today and ask yourself if that approach is adequately addressing field variability – and helping you apply nutrients where they can do the most good. If you think you can do more – and economics allows for it! – it might be time to "step up" your forage management program to the next level of precision!

Dear editor,

Thank you for the pictures in The Holton Recorder and the video of the 2016 Veterans Day Parade. I do, however, have a suggestion.

It would be nice if all the veterans in the parade were shown in the pictures and the video.

Your camera captured only pictures and video from the Courthouse square side of the vehicles in the parade. I think it would be nice if you had someone taking pictures and video from both sides of the parade route so that all veterans had equal exposure.

Thank you again for honoring the veterans but it would be nice if all veterans received equal recognition. Delbert Boling

Potawatomi United Methodist

By Ilene Dick

Sunday, Nov. 20, was a nice fall day as the congregation celebrated the last Sunday after Pentecost at Potawatomi United Methodist Church.

Pastor Howard opened the service with words of the Psalmist, followed by prayer.

Announcements included an invitation from Mayetta Christian Church to the Thanksgiving service with a continental breakfast beginning at 8 a.m., followed by a short worship service; the Holton Christmas Parade of Lights at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 3, with invitation to churches and organizations to take part; and Linda Robinson of Mayetta is helping with a fund-raiser for Mayetta park improvements and additions (anyone wishing to purchase a poinsettia for this project for $10 each may call her, or give Ilene a call for more informa-

Added to the prayer list were the family of Marvin Murray, who is in Kansas Rehabilitation following a stroke; the family of John Johnson in his recent death in a drowning accident; Marilee Bernart-Shenk having a biopsy on Nov. 21; Marjean Shenk's friend, Elizabeth Bauerle, suffering from cancer; and for Darlene Rawlings for continued improvement with blood pressure problems. She returned home on Sunday, Nov. 20, after Betty Bowser was acolyte. Martha Roush was liturgist, reading from I Peter 4:10. Hymns were "Where He Leads Me," "Rock Of Ages" and "Jesus, Keep Me Near The Cross." Music was provided by Tina Pugh, Ilene Dick and Ann W.

LeAnna Meeks gave the special. In keeping with Thanksgiving, she shared two humorous short bits about the occasion. On a serious note, she read words of Ralph Waldo Emerson, a reminder of the importance of giving thanks.

Offertory ushers were Jim Shenk and Jim Meeks.

The sermon text was from Matthew 25:14-30, with the title "Maximizing Our Potential."

The value of the talents entrusted to the slaves in the scripture speaks of the necessity for faithful actions. The Father who is generous will supply our needs.

Our talents and potential are to be used so that we will become what we are created to be. God has given us the responsibility of spreading the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Fear of failure must not stop us. If full of faith, there is no room for fear. One would be willing to take a risk. Faith is

Next Sunday's message will be "Get Ready - Here Comes Jesus.'

Guests of Loren and Martha Roush on Saturday, Nov. 19 were their granddaughter, Alison Olson, of Valley Falls, and Loren's niece, Sharon Mayer, of Lawrence.

Kaden Swain enjoyed time with his grandparents, Judy and Donnie Thoman, after school on Tuesday, Nov. 15. He had fun fishing with Donnie, then enjoyed supper with them to celebrate his birthday.

On Saturday, Nov. 19, Judy Thoman spent the evening at Kassy Swain's home for supper and an enjoyable bonfire for warmth to again help Kaden celebrate his birthday, which was Nov. 17.

A family gathering for an early Thanksgiving dinner was held on Nov. 13 at the home of Marjean and Jim Shenk. Those in attendance were all of their Kansas children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, Jim's sister, Charlotte, Marjean's sisters, Maryalys and Linda; and Linda's husband, Larry.

Lily Hall enjoyed having a visit from family friend J.B. Fing and his wife, Lisa, and their sons, Ben and Bryan, on Saturday afternoon at her home. J.B. is a college friend of Lily's son, Terry.

Continued from Page 2 incident, he punched, kicked and choked her after an argument about a sick child. Sheriff's officers later came to the scene of the incident and found marks on her neck that were reportedly consistent with strangulation, and Juarez-Benito reportedly admitted to hitting the woman.

The woman also testified that Juarez-Benito had raped her several times between April 1 and Sept. 30 of 2015, noting that these incidents occurred after she rejected his requests for sex, some of which were made while she was pregnant.

Netawaka United Methodist

By Mary E. Edwards
Surely The Presence Of The Lord Is In This Place" recorded music played as Steve Banaka lighted the altar candles for worship services for Christ the King/Reign of Christ Sunday, Nov. 20, at Netawaka United Methodist Church.

Marilyn Banaka gave the welcome and announcements. Charge Conference will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Dec. 14 at Powhattan UMC.

Doris Oxandale had the joy of attending a family get-together to celebrate her aunt's 97th birthday. Darrell Williams is home from the hospital.

Prayers and sympathy are extended for friends and family of Floyd Schumaker, who died. Floyd was a good neighbor to folks at Vintage Park where he had lived for a while.

Marilyn led the responsive call to worship, The Canticle of Zechariah and the scripture lesson, Luke 1:68-79. The hymn of praise was "Come Ye Thankful People, Come." Other songs were "Sweet Hour Of Prayer" and "Crown Him With Many Crowns."

Pastor Young Won led the reading of the congregational prayer. After silent meditation and reflection were the pastoral prayer and the Lord's Prayer.

The offering was collected by Steve Banaka, and the Doxology was sung. The scripture reading was Luke 23:38-43.

Pastor Young's sermon was 'The Reign Of Christ." The people of Israel were under the rule of the Roman Empire when Jesus was born. People were suffering and wanted a change. They were hopeful when they heard Jesus was going to save them, imagining He would be someone like David, their hero from long ago, and defeat the Romans.

The Israelites were disappointed that Jesus seemed weak and even died on the cross. They were hopeless and helpless again. In the 21st century, we do not have many kings, but we have many leaders. There are presidents, CEOs, chairmen and church leaders of many kinds. Some are better leaders than others, but none are perfect.

Jesus was a smart leader who was persecuted by the Romans. He seemed weak, but He was strong to face death on the cross and remains our Lord. We live under the reign of Christ, and He cares for our lives today, our Eternal Lord.

How is our harvest this year? All our blessings, the good things which come to us, are our harvest, and we thank God.

RVMS wrestlers compete Nov. 17 against Holton, Mill Creek, Rock Creek

By Michael Powls

The Royal Valley Middle School wrestling team was put to the test on Thursday, Nov. 17 against Holton, Mill Creek and host Rock Creek.

RVMS wrestling coach Jason Puderbaugh said at every turn his team was out-hustled, out-wrestled, and ultimately out-scored.

"For our kids, it was a wake up call on where we were as a team, how our fundamentals stacked up against fiercer competition, and the importance of hammering the basics," coach Puderbaugh

"We struggled all night to defend half nelsons, to secure clean takedowns, and overall just to maintain good position," the coach said. "Some of our problems on the night were matchups as some of our kids, in order to get matches, were paired up with kids that had a greater amount of wrestling experience. But that still is no excuse for getting dominated the way we did.' "We need to continue to work hard at practice to learn how to be more aggressive, how to maintain good position and execute the techniques that are being shown and drilled everyday in practice," the coach said. Those with wins on the evening were Ruben Tinajero, Bryar Barnett, Conner Collins, Trevor Matthews and Noah Schnacker.

RVMS had four wrestlers who went the evening without a single win going 0-1 or 0-2 for the night. Conner Collins and Noah

Schnacker both went undefeated for the evening, he The standout wrestler again went to Conner Collins going

Circleville High basketball team remembers championship season

Several members of the 1954 Circleville High School championship girls basketball team met this fall at Annie's Restaurant in Topeka for lunch to reminisce.

Ilah Rose Brown Askren surprised the group by bringing the trophy the team won at the end of the 1954 season.

The team, the Circleville Bomberettes, had the best record in the Nemaha Jackson League that year, 11-1. The liam, and Francis Stanley was the high school principal.

Other teams in the league included Delia, Mayetta, Goff, Hoyt, Soldier, Whiting, Net-awaka, Effingham and Deni-

Wind blowing from the east coupled with the spreading of some very good chicken manure just east of Holton probably was the unintended cause of a heavy stench that hung over the city late Sunday and all day Monday, it has been reported. At any rate, local residents got a strong reminder for a while that we live in an agricultural community.

During the Holton City Commission's regular meeting on Monday, Holton City Manager Kerwin McKee reported that city hall had received a lot of inquiries from residents about the odor.

McKee said officials at the Banner Creek LLC plant initially had told him some of the smell might be attributed to "the change in the weather" on the air purification unit at the plant.

However, many Holton residents reported noticing the smell late Sunday, and Banner Creek LLC officials noted the plant was not running at that time. The latter was confirmed this morning by a spokesperson for Banner Creek LLC, who added that it was unlikely that the smell originated at the plant.

It was reported this morning that a local farmer had spread a large amount of chicken manure banks. City Clerk Teresa Riley on a field east of the city sometime during the weekend, and McKee noted today that a wind from the east likely helped to spread the scent of the manure into the city overnight Sunday.

McKee said city staffers "had a lot of people call" about the odor that wafted through Holton late Sunday and continued to blanket the city well into the next day. The odor had apparently dissipated early Tuesday with some help from rain moving through the area, McKee later said.

In other business on Monday, McKee asked commissioners for suggestions of Holton residents in need during the holiday season to receive disbursements from the Sitzler Fund for assistance with utility bills.

The city manages the Sitzler Fund, established by the estate of Holton resident Louise Sitzler in 1912 to provide financial help to those less fortunate during the Christmas season. Those who will receive utility assistance are nominated by members of the city commission, it was reported.

Interest generated by the fund comes from its checking and money market accounts and certificates of deposit at Holton said it is not currently known how much will be disbursed from the fund this year, although the city has distributed anywhere from $3,000 to $3,500 in previous years, it was reported.

■ Met with seven members of the Americorps team currently staying in Holton through Dec. 16. Team leader Ashley White said the team will assist in serving the Community Thanksgiving Dinner on Thursday, and White and other team members said they were enjoying their stay in Holton so far.

■ Approved the appointment of former Street Superintendent Rex Cameron to a position on the Holton Planning Commission, replacing Pam Heckerson.

■ Were reminded that Elkhorn Lake in Rafters Park is currently under advisory for the presence of blue-green algae and that the public pump station is closed. McKee said two possible explanations for the presence of the algae were the recent warm weather and the amount of nutrients in the lake. He also noted that a representative of the Kansas Department of Wildlife. Parks and Tourism suggested "letting nature take its course" in removing the algae.

■ Discussed possible Christmas gifts and an upcoming Christmas dinner for city employees.

■ Learned from McKee that a representative of the Kansas Municipal Energy Agency would be in attendance at the commission's next meeting, set for Monday, Dec. 5, to discuss the sale of wind energy to the city.

■ Were informed that a firedamaged residential structure located at the intersection of Fourth Street and Idaho Avenue would be demolished by Brahma Excavation of Holton in early December. McKee said another house in the 500 block of Ohio Avenue has been scheduled for demolition at about the same time.

■ Adjourned the meeting at approximately 7:30 p.m. All commissioners were present.

The Holton City Commission regularly meets at 7 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of each month at Holton City Hall. To be placed on the agenda of an upcoming meeting, contact City Hall at 364-2721.

The Circleville Senior Executives met at the Holton meal site on Nov. 17 to enjoy the delicious turkey and dressing Thanksgiving dinner. They had a short business meeting following the meal.

Three November birthdays were recognized: Ken Wykert, Thersa Wade and Dixie Man-

A motion was made to pay the bills. No other business was conducted.

Evelyn Allen of Silver Haired Legislature and her husband, David Allen, conducted a lively song titled "Battle Hymn Of Aging" to the tune of "Battle Hymn Of The Republic." This was enjoyed by all participants.

Evelyn gave an update on the SHL meeting that she attended in Topeka on Oct. 4-6. She is the Jackson County delegate to the organization. There was a large crowd at the center for the Thanksgiving dinner. There were 17 in attendance from the Circleville Senior Executives.

For the Dec. 5 meeting, they are going to Soldier Senior Citizen's for the "Spectacular Christmas Music" performed by Jackson Heights High School students. The Circleville Executives group is invited.

There will be various soups on the menu, and the Circleville Senior Executives are to bring desserts, chips, relish plate or something suitable to go with a menu of various kinds of soup. They always look forward to the December Christmas meeting. On Thursday, Nov. 17, several of the Circleville Christian Church members got together and got the new bell tower put in place. It holds the bell from the old Christian church that is no longer standing. Thanks goes out to all who helped, I know that was a big job and it looks

I attended the Foster Ford grand re-opening on Saturday, Nov. 19, held at the dealership in Holton. There were a lot of people who came to see the newly remodeled business and enjoy lunch and visiting. On Saturday, Nov. 19, Judy Olson headed south to Wichita to join in the fun of celebrating at a baby shower for her first great-grandchild. The first of February, Christian and Anthony Condit will be the happy and proud parents of a baby boy, which they have already named

The party was held in the youth center of the Countryside Christian Church on Rock Road. Family and friends enjoyed a snack buffet complete with sea foam punch topped with rubber duckies. After Baby Bingo and Guess the Mess in the Diaper (melted candy bars!), many wonderful presents were opened.

Then Judy attended a musical at Campus High called "Once Upon A Mattress" in which her granddaughter, Hope, who is a senior this year, had a part singing and dancing throughout the play. It was a wonderful old fairy tale set to music with a delightful twist. They all did a marvelous job and took extra bows with a special line up of seniors telling how many productions they have been a part of and what their plans are for the following year.

Barbara Hutchinson and her sister, Marsha Morris, attended church in Aliceville at the St. John Lutheran Church on Sunday, Nov. 20. They met Barbara's daughter, Georgia Flood, at Emporia and rode together. Nathan Brown, son of Luke and Kerri Lynne Brown from the Kansas City area, was there too. This was Luke Brown's last Sunday there as pastor before moving to Ellsworth. They all ate lunch at LeRoy Pizza Hut.

were interested or not! But it did work out pretty well, because we had members from everywhere."

In the early days of the historical society, members would take turns holding meetings in Jackson County's outlying communities, Stoll said.

"Somebody in that town would give the history of the town, and it was always very interesting," she

Not long after the society's formation, its members recorded its first major gift — the Louis Roebke house at 216 New York Ave. Soon after that, the society was allowed to take over the former Bennett building on the southwest corner of Holton's Town Square made and how they were made, and use it for a museum.

When Utz joined the historical society in the 1980s, following her retirement from the Jackson County Treasurer's office, the Roebke House was being maintained mostly by Doris Drechsler, and Utz would eventually find herself immersed in creating and maintaining displays there.

'I like fabrics and styles, and just everything that's connected to the Roebke House," Utz said. "I liked doing research about these different styles and clothes, and when people would donate these old-fashioned dresses, I would study the periods when they were

After Drechsler's death, Utz vowed to keep the Roebke House Museum up and running, which she did with the help of Vera Hinnen and others. Meanwhile, Stoll continued to work at the museum on the Square, preserving documents and artifacts of what she referred to as the three different kinds of history.

"I like to specialize in 'history' history. If I don't find it in at least three places, I treat it as myth history. Then there's tourist history — I think our barn tours have all three of those," Stoll said.

But whether it's the clothes at the Roebke House or the documents and other items at the museum on the Square, both women agree that it's important to preserve the county's history.

"I felt like having the historical society was a way to teach kids patriotism and to impress patriotism and love of country on the general public, especially the children," Utz said. "It's important to teach them what has been done to make this county the way it is.

Stones also said the district needed to add a paragraph to its district policy to not discriminate against the Boy Scouts organization.

He also said there was no admission of guilt by the district in any way and also no monetary settlement. He added that the complaints against the district had nothing to do against the Boy Scouts either.
