By Brian Sanders
 Five years have passed since the formation of a non-profit group dedicated to making Soldier a stronger community, but its core members remain committed to its flagship project, the restoration of the old Soldier Rural High School gym.
 “We thought, here’s this old building that could be used as a community asset, or as a place for kids to play and for families to gather,” Community CORE leader Luke Schreiber said. “It’s kind of a rallying point for working together as a community toward something.”
 Since the formation of Community CORE, the group has also undertaken other projects that benefit northern and western Jackson County — including the Jackson County Bookmobile and a children’s lunch project — but restoring the gym remains a priority.
 The group has rallied community members together to clean out the old gym and its surrounding grounds, where Schreiber said “35 to 40 trees” were removed and “four semi-loads of trash and junk and treasures” were taken away. The group has also raised funds to repair the gym’s roof.

 “Community CORE was created on the idea that people are created to live in a community, and so the projects we undertake are meant to allow people space to live, work, play and grow,” Schreiber said. “We see this project as something that covers all four of those things.”
 The gym building, reportedly built in the 1930s as a WPA project funded by the Roosevelt administration, also housed lunchrooms, storage for a school bus and a coal room, Schreiber said.
 “The old coal room still had about six inches of coal in the coal bin,” he said. “We used some of it to fuel a forge this past summer.”
 Inside, the gym floor was covered wall-to-wall with junk that had been accumulated over the years by its two previous owners, he said. Volunteers came in and cleaned all of it out.

Nancy Noble (right) of Mayetta began coming to the Netawaka Fitness Center after a complicated hip fracture. When she saw improvement, Noble and her husband Gary became fitness center members. “We’ve met a lot of nice people here, all working at staying healthy,” she said. The fitness center was recently approved for the SilverSneakers program, it was reported.

It wasn’t easy, but it was worth it.
 That’s how Scott Steffes, general manager of the Netawaka Fitness Center, feels about getting the Center approved for the SilverSneakers program.
 “I tried to get this program accepted at my previous fitness centers to no avail,” Steffes said. “There is a rigid list of requirements. But now, after a couple months of back and forth, our facility here in Netawaka met all of the stipulations and was fully approved.” “I’m pretty proud of this achievement,” he added. “This

PBP breaks ground for Behavioral Health Center

Ground has been broken for a new Behavioral Health Center building scheduled for construction on the Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation Reservation, it has been reported.
 The new structure will be located adjacent to the current Prairie Band Health Center facility located at 11400 158th Rd. on the reservation. The new building will house the behavioral health programs currently provided by the Potawatomi Health Center and will house approximately six full-time staff, it was reported.

Construction is scheduled to begin soon with anticipated completion by mid-summer. The construction cost of the project will total about $2 million. The bulk of the funding for the project is through a loan with the USDA (United States Department of Agriculture), along with funding from IHS (Indian Health Service) and a small portion being contributed by the Potawatomi Health Center surplus.
 Sabatini and Associates, Inc. of Lawrence are the architects for the new one-story building, which will be approximately 5,800-square feet. Two special features of the property will include a room designed specifically for group therapy and a crisis room.

 Sabatini and Associates, Inc. also designed the Potawatomi Tribal Court located to the east of the Health Center complex.
 The idea for a new space for the behavioral health program began about three years ago. Two considerations heavily motivated the project.
 The first was a critical lack of space for the behavioral health program, which is currently located in the east wing of the health center. The other significant consideration was providing people who utilized behavioral health services with a sense of confidentiality.

 Since then, the groundwork has been laid to make it a reality. Along with plans to establish a new building, behavioral health program administrators have spent the last couple of years focusing on increasing their commitment to care through acquiring certifications, increasing

150 Years of The Holton Recorder Fledgling competitors had short lifespans

The following is the second of several articles detailing the history of The Holton Recorder as we celebrate its 150th year serving Holton and Jackson County.
 In the winter of 1859-60, when the town was less than four years old, Holton had its first newspaper.
 This was The Cricket, a handwritten sheet produced by T. G. Watters and Geo L. Hamm. The Cricket was copied by hand, and the few copies passed from hand to hand through the town.
 The project must have been laborious, and it was short-lived. After two months The Cricket gave up, and the town was without a newspaper for some years.
 An early historical article in The Holton Express some years later said The Cricket was issued in an attempt to secure the contract for the county printing. When this did not materialize, the publishers lost interest.
 The first printed newspaper in Holton was The News, which was started by A. W. Moore. At one time or another during its life it was called The Jackson County News and The Holton News.
 Moore came here from Atchison. The printing press was one which had been used in an abortive newspaper venture at Grasshopper Falls, as Valley Falls was then called.
 Moore published a four-page paper, two pages of which were “ready” or “patent” print, and two pages of which were set in type and printed locally. This was a common expedient for small newspapers on the frontier more than 150 years ago.

The News was born and had died before the founding of the Kansas State Historical Society and its collection of Kansas newspapers. There is no copy of The News in the Historical Society collection. If any copies of the paper are extant, they are not known of locally. The only knowledge we have of The News and its publisher, Mr. Moore, we glean from the columns of The Holton Express, which competed with The News for more than a year.
 Relations between the two papers and their publishers were such that The Express and its editor, Frank Root, cannot be regarded as unbiased witnesses.
 Moore was a Republican and ran a Republican newspaper. He apparently made a bad choice in some factual fight, and may have done other things not acceptable in the community, as both public officials and a number of businessmen, after he had been in Holton only a few years, did what they could to encourage the establishment of a competitive Republican newspaper.
 During the time The News was published here, local Democrats encouraged the establishment of two Democrat papers. These ventures were launched before

Jackson County District Court

McKinney asks for new attorney

By Brian Sanders

Whether a Jackson County man accused of sexual crimes involving a child will get new legal representation in Jackson County District Court has been "taken under advisement," District Court Judge Norbert Marek said Thursday.

Marek also ordered a second mental health evaluation for Alva B. McKinney, 38, to be conducted at Larned State Hospital after an earlier evaluation conducted locally by KANZA Mental Health recommended further evaluation.

The order also followed comments made by McKinney about being "assaulted and harassed" at the Jackson County Detention Center, where he has been held on $50,000 bond. He is charged with aggravated indecent liberties with a child and indecent solicitation of a child in connection with an alleged incident involving a 12-year-old girl that reportedly occurred this past August.

"If the evaluation agrees with you, you wouldn't be any worse for the wear," Marek told McKinney. "At least you'll be at Larned, rather than at the county jail."

McKinney requested a continuance of Thursday's preliminary status hearing, noting that he wanted to dismiss his defense attorney, James Heathman of Topeka, after stating that Heathman had been "not helpful" to him and that he was mentally able to defend himself.

"He has continued to give me excuses as to why he's failed to give me an adequate defense," McKinney said.

Heathman countered by saying he was paid by McKinney's mother to represent the defendant in the case and that McKinney "refused to hear anything that wasn't good news" in regard to this particular case.

Marek said he would take McKinney's request for a new attorney under advisement after Assistant Jackson County Attorney Brian Yearout suggested that McKinney's request stemmed from having "no trust of anyone in the court system" and that the issue would likely repeat itself if Heathman were dismissed.

Yearout also requested that Heathman remain on the case for McKinney until the mental health evaluation at Larned is completed. Marek agreed with Yearout and reminded McKinney that the existing legal system is "the only system we have," sending him back to the detention center to await transportation to Larned.

"I hope things turn out as you want them," Marek told McKinney.

The Wetmore High School Scholars Bowl Team, coached by math teacher Thelma Strathman, did well in the round robin tournament.

Junior Alena Pfrang and sophomores Joel Hutfles, Mariah Ramirez, Alyssa Montgomery and Ally Davis actively took part in the Scholars Bowl Meet, while the rest of the team - John Michael Lamberson, Kevin Shumaker, Savannah Bryant, Michael Hemenway and Lindsay Barnett - participated as student helpers during the meet.

At the end, Wetmore ended up in third place, winning five rounds and losing two. Competitor Joel Hutfles was happy with the team's win.

"Finally getting awarded a medal feels satisfying knowing that we competed with the best of them," Hutfles said.

Axtell had five wins and two losses as well. However, Axtell beat Wetmore in one of the rounds, resulting in Axtell receiving second place. Blue Valley lead with six wins and one loss to clinch first place.

"I was pleased with our third place finish," Strathman said. "The students have been working hard and it's nice to see them get recognized for their efforts."

Royal Valley USD 337: Aubrie Russell (fifth grade), Jared Nisscot Lewis (sixth grade), Kyle Miller (seventh grade) and Elizabeth Sutton (eighth grade).

Once the event starts, students will take turns spelling words provided to them. Those who correctly spell their words will advance to the next round of competition. Those providing incorrect spellings will be eliminated.

The spelling bee will begin with a practice round in order to help the students get accustomed to the competition's format, audience and microphones. Students may ask for spelling word definitions, alternate pronunciations and the language of origin for their words, as well as have the word used in a sentence.

Each of the three school districts is supplying a judge for the event, and judges will include

Michael Kimberlin, Connie Baldrige and Darlene Irwin.

The winner of the Jackson County Spelling Bee will compete at the regional bee set for later this year.

The winner of that event will earn an all-expense paid trip to the Scripps National Spelling Bee in Washington D.C. next summer.

The spelling bee is open to the public and is free of charge to attend.

Some more early history of The Holton Recorder told the establishment of the State Historical Society in 1875 and there are no known copies preserved. From comments in The Express in later years, it appears that Moore did not welcome the new arrivals and threatened to run them out of business. What part he may have had in their failure we do not know, but both were short-lived.

The first of these ventures was backed by a Democrat stock company. The editor was a man named Williams. All that is known is that the paper published a few issues and closed up shop. This apparently was in 1869.

In 1870 J. W. Fox started The Jackson County Leader, also a Democrat paper. This paper also lasted less than a year. No copies are known to have survived, and an article in The Express several years later relates that after the paper had ceased publication, the press was disposed of "south of the Kansas River."

During the next few years, Fox is mentioned from time to time in both The Express and The Recorder in local news items. He moved to Topeka upon leaving Holton and took a job in the state printing plant.

On April 12, 1872, Frank Root published the first issue of The Holton Express. This marks the beginning of the period of newspaper history here for which bound files are still available for study.

Root was an experienced newspaperman and a first class printer. Originally from Pennsylvania, he had worked with an Atchison paper and had been publishing a weekly paper at Seneca for several years before moving to Holton. The Express did not use patent insides and offered the reader four pages weekly of home set and printed news. Even by current standards, The Express was a creditable printing job.

Root was quite evidently actively encouraged to come here by a part of the community which was at odds with Moore of The News. Good advertising support came to The Express from the first issue, and almost immediately the paper became the official city and county newspaper.

This new publishing venture was not welcomed with open arms by the proprietor of The News. Root, after a year of that successful operation, noted that upon his arrival, Moore had given him only 13 weeks to survive. He was still going strong.

This competition, if not profitable to the principals, must have been exciting and entertaining for the rest of the community. In an 1872 issue of The Express, Root made this reply to some political assault from The News. "We care nothing about what this Shang High, onion-eyed, white livered, office seeking legal and real estate editor of the two-faced Chicago concern (a reference to The News' ready print pages) says about us or anyone else. He is too low, mean, cowardly, and contemptibly sneaking for us to waste anymore of our space on at this time. We shall perhaps have occasion, before the campaign closes, to show up the true character of this sneaking and hydra-headed villain."

It is unfortunate we do not have the files of The News available to see what provoked this colorful retort.

Moore, however, had not read the signs correctly. Root lasted longer than the 13 weeks Moore had given him, but the days of The News were numbered. On Jan. 30, 1874, The Express carried the story that it had purchased the business and subscription list of The News and would consolidate the two papers. Statements in that issue by both Moore and Root expressed the opinion, which would be echoed time and time again for many years by Holton editors, that the town would not decently support two newspapers.

Beginning with the Feb. 6 issue, Root continued with the paper called The Holton Express and Jackson County News. The new paper reported that Moore was leaving for Dodge City, where he would begin publication of a paper called The Ford County Messenger.

Root continued with The Express without competition until March 2, 1875, when the first issue of The Recorder published by J. W. Shiner and Ed. C. Laithe appeared. A week later, Laithe took his leave, and Moses Milton Beck, whose project the establishment of The Recorder had been, took Laithe's place as Shiner's partner.

It took but a month for Root to see the advantages of seeking greener pastures, and on March 26 in the last issue of The Express, Root took his leave, announcing the sale of his paper to Beck and Shiner.

On March 30, The Recorder changed its name to The Holton Recorder and Express. This name was carried on the flag by Beck and Shiner until Jan. 4, 1877, when the "Express" was dropped, and the name became The Holton Recorder again.

Beck and Shiner enjoyed two years of undisputed possession of the field. Still trying for a party organ, the Democrats were ready for another paper. On April 20, 1877, The Holton Argus presented its first issue to the community. The editor was J. C. Lillie, who established his office on the west side of the Square. The Recorder, like The News, was half home print, half ready print. Lillie boasted that The Argus was all home print.

The files of The Argus are in the State Historical Society. While the paper may have been entirely printed in Holton, much of its content was of the same general character as ready print. This news may have been printed at home, but it originated elsewhere.

Lillie plunged almost immediately into political controversy with M. M. Beck, who was always more or less deeply involved in local Republican affairs. This built up to a challenge to The Recorder's hold on the county printing contacts, a cherished plum for pioneer newspapers. When the county commissioners voted to continue doing business with The Recorder, Lillie was vociferous in his protest and charge that politics, rather than merit, had carried the day. This, of course, The Recorder stoutly denied.

Whatever may have transpired, Lillie lost heart and discontinued publication with his issue of Oct. 24, 1877.

For The Recorder, however, a more formidable competitor loomed on the horizon. On Jan. 8, 1878, W. W. Sargent and Thomas A. Fairchild launched The Holton Signal. Fairchild was an attorney and a son of one of Holton's earliest families, his parents having come to Holton in 1856. He alternated between the law and journalism, leaving the direction of The Signal to Sargent and succeeding editors when editors were available. From time to time, however, he took over editorial direction when needed.

In its 73-year career, The Signal was variously named The Holton Signal, The Holton Weekly Signal and The Jackson County Signal. Editors and publishers of The Signal included, besides Fairchild and Sargent, George E. Holbein, Elizabeth Sargent, W. D. Kuh, J. F. Jarrell, S. T. Osterhold, Harry E. Ross and Paul Guess.

The Signal was sold in 1948 by Sam Osterhold, who had been publisher three times, to Paul Guess. Guess sold The Signal on Sept. 1, 1951 to The Recorder, which absorbed it.

On June 28, 1890, The Recorder and The Signal were joined in the Holton field by The Independent Tribune, published by A. P. Shaw and C. V. Hamm. This paper was a continuation of the Soldier City Tribune established Jan. 26, 1888 by Shaw at Soldier. While in Soldier, The Independent Tribune had been a Republican newspaper devoted to challenging the influence of the Republicans of Holton in county politics.

Upon the move to Holton, however, Shaw and Hamm espoused the cause of the Populist party, which was showing great strength that year, and became the official Populist paper for the county.

In August 1891, Hamm bought the interest of his partner and discontinued publication until March 10, 1893, when he put on a new type "dress" and began publication as The Tribune. The paper continued Populist in politics during Hamm's ownership.

On March 15, 1895, J. Irwin Gabel and John C. Brown bought the paper and began publication as a Republican paper with Gabel as editor. In 1897, T. C. McConnell bought an interest, the plant was enlarged and new equipment purchased. The Tribune moved into the space of the northwest corner of the Square.

From Sept. 1, 1884, to Dec. 21, 1887, G. D. Baker and A. E. Baker published The Jackson County Federal here.

In 1895, The Recorder, The Signal and The Tribune were all competing for the favor of the community, but the end was not yet. On Dec. 19 of that year, A. A. King and Fred O. Ayers began the publication of The Kansas Sunflower. Through a nine-year life, The Sunflower ran through 13 changes of management. Most of these reorganizations involved Ayers and J. S. Orr. In 1904, the name of the paper was changed to The Holton Sunflower-Sunbeam. It published its last issue on Aug. 17, 1904, following which its plant and business were purchased by The Recorder.

Another merger was only a year away. On July 28, 1905, The Tribune published its last issue. The paper was purchased by The Recorder, which began publication on Aug. 3, 1905 as The Recorder-Tribune. This title was continued for two and a half years until Jan. 2, 1908, when the "Tribune" was dropped and the name, The Holton Recorder, which has continued since unchanged, was resumed.

One of the final developments in The Recorder's chronicle came in 1971. In 1954, Delber and Betty Braum had purchased The Soldier Clipper from Ivan Rudy and moved it to Holton, changing the name to The Jackson County Clipper. In 1971, the Braums decided to retire from newspaper work and offered The Clipper to The Recorder, which purchased and absorbed it on July 1 of that year.

To complete the chronology of The Recorder to this date, it should be noted that twice in the past 150 years, Holton has had a daily newspaper, once for two days and once for four. In 1873, Frank Root made his Express a daily for covering the Jackson County Fair. The special Fair papers were printed on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, 1873. This venture brought approving comments from neighboring papers, including The Atchison Champion.

From March 19 to March 23, 1886, The Recorder for four days was issued as a daily. It then subsided back to a weekly schedule, which was followed until 1937 when it became a semi-weekly.

—Reprinted from The Holton Recorder, Monday, March 3, 1975

Moses Milton (M.M.) Beck, shown above, was a captain of artillery in the Union army during the Civil War, after which he was a farmer, merchant, and druggist.

In March 1875, he bought into a new publication called The Holton Recorder, and became sole owner of the paper in 1881.

According to the March 1931 issue of The Jayhawker journalism magazine, "without previous experience he learned the details of the business and acquired a facility for writing."

In 1896, Beck sold one-third interest in the paper to his son Will. In August, 1905, the Becks together purchased The Holton Tribune and merged the papers. Beck continued his connection with The Recorder as editor, owner, or contributor until his death in February, 1931, at age 92.

Beck was recognized as the dean of Kansas newspaper men by important Kansas newspaper editors who followed in his footsteps such as William Allen White of Emporia.

The Jayhawker called him, "A loyal Kansan since 1869, a fighter for principle in those earlier days and a kindly philosopher in the mellowing autumn of his life."

"He has truly been one of the builders of Kansas and his life and work has been an aspiration to many a young newspaper man."

M.M. Beck was inducted into the Kansas Newspaper Hall of Fame in 1934.

In 1950, after spending his early career in public relations for several large oil companies, John Chandler, shown at right, was looking for a town in which to raise his family and run a newspaper.

Liking what he saw of Holton, he made Recorder publisher Will Beck an offer that was accepted. He became publisher later that year, a position he held until his death on October 16, 1982.

Said Chandler, "I was making very good money then - but owning my own newspaper had always been my dream, and I realized if I didn't move into that field very soon, I probably would never make the change."

In introducing Chandler, Beck wrote, "I apprehend the new owner will instill much new life and a fresher outlook in the paper, bringing to it...a determination to become established as a permanent member of our community."

Chandler certainly fulfilled Beck's expectations. He was twice elected state senator, and returned home every weekend during those six years to tend to The Recorder.

Chandler was inducted into the Kansas Newspaper Hall of Fame in 1985.

The "Being Mortal" project started in February last year

More than 40,000 people across all 50 states and the District of Columbia are taking steps to do something most adults avoid until it's too late: discuss the kind of care they want when faced with serious illness and death, it has been reported.

The "Being Mortal" project began in Feb. 2016 and Jackson County Caring Community Council (JCCCC) joined more than 650 organizations to engage their local communities in 771 "Being Mortal" events.

Ninety-six percent of participants decided on the person they want to make their healthcare decisions if they are not able, thought about their end-of-life care preferences and communicated those wishes to a loved one.

The Jackson County event sponsored by the JCCCC task force was held on Aug. 25, 2016 at Evangel United Methodist Family Life Center and included viewing the PBS FRONTLINE film, "Being Mortal," followed by a panel of local healthcare professionals leading a group discussion with those present.

Atul Gawande, MD, based the Emmy nominated film on the best selling book of the same name. The book and DVD are available at the Beck-Bookman Library in Holton. The "Being Mortal" project is changing lives by encouraging conversations and actions at end of life. This project was made possible by a grant from the Hospice Foundation of America and the John & Wauna Harman Foundation.

JH Cobras handle Horton Chargers

■ Thunder Classic starts tomorrow

By Brian Sanders

The Jackson Heights High School boys varsity basketball team overcame a seemingly sluggish start to Friday night's match against Horton, taking full control of the court in a 41-27 win.

Friday's win put the Cobras in a three-way tie with Horton and Maur Hill for second place in the Northeast Kansas League, all three teams having 6-2 league and overall season records at present. Head Coach Chris Brown said the win was well-deserved after last Tuesday's loss to NEK League leader Jefferson County North.

"This was a total must-win game for us, particularly as far as league standings and having the potential to win the league in the second half of the season," Brown said. "If we'd have lost that one, it would have been a huge uphill climb for the rest of the season."

The Chargers came out of the locker room ready to make things tough for the Cobras, going on a 10-2 run in the first four minutes of the game. Brown attributed the run to Horton having "a lot more energy" than Jackson Heights at that point.

"They got a few baskets, and they were really excited," he said. "They certainly came out a lot more ready to play than we did."

Fortunately for the Cobras, the defense came alive late in the quarter and enabled the offense to go on a 9-6 run to finish the first quarter. From there, it was all Cobra defense, holding the Chargers to only one field goal in each of the next three quarters.

"We were able to change the course of things over the next three quarters," Brown said. "We understood that we needed to start getting the stops and the rebounds. Once that happened, slowly but surely, the offense came along."

After knotting the score at 20 going into intermission, the Cobras charged their way through the third quarter before exploding offensively in the fourth. Senior Wyatt Olberding led the way, picking up seven in the fourth quarter and 24 points on the night.

Olberding was joined by senior Mason Thomas in double-digit scoring with 10 points, and the two of them were joined by junior Brady Holliday in leading the defensive charge.

"Mason and Brady both did a really good job of guarding, and then in the fourth quarter, Wyatt really started getting into it," Brown said.

The Cobras will next head to Nemaha Central High School on Tuesday for the opening round of the 2017 Thunder Classic Basketball Tournament, with fifth-seeded Jackson Heights taking on fourth-seeded Silver Lake at 5 p.m.

"In our area, I think it's probably the toughest mid-season tournament," Brown said. "We're expecting to go up there and have a tough game every night, and we're hoping to come out on the winning side."

Horton hands loss to Lady Cobras

By Brian Sanders

Friday the 13th was not the Jackson Heights Lady Cobras' lucky day, with the team taking a 50-32 loss at the hands of the Horton Lady Chargers.

Head Coach Dan Shupe said that while his team, now at 3-5 for the season, came out and played their best for Friday's home game, the Lady Chargers, whose Northeast Kansas League record improved to 6-2 with the win, were "just stronger than we are."

"Horton's a good team, and you've got to give them credit," Shupe said. "They're excellent ball handlers, and they've got some kids who can make some outside perimeter shots. They're one of the top teams in our league."

The Lady Chargers jumped out to a commanding 17-5 first quarter lead on the strength of a series of three-pointers from junior Kaitlyn McAfee and senior Abby Ross. The Cobras found it hard to keep up, Shupe noted.

"They just completely took us out of our offense at half-court. It's something that we're going to have to work on," he said.

The Lady Cobras did, however, outscore the Lady Chargers 11-10 in the fourth quarter, mainly on the strength of freshman Kylie Dohl making several free throws.

"Kylie's been taking more responsibility on her shoulders," Shupe said. "That's asking a lot for somebody that young, but when you're one of the best players on the team, you've got to step up."

Dohl led the Lady Cobras in scoring with 10 points, eight of which came at the charity stripe.

The Lady Cobras will next travel to St. Marys for a non-league game this Friday.

The RV boys had a tight first half against Nemaha Central before the Thunder pulled away for the win 52-35. Nemaha Central and Holton are tied for first in the Big Seven League with 7-1 records.

"We had some missed opportunities, but I was happy with their effort," said RV coach Keith Pelton. "It just came down to execution."

In the first quarter, the Thunder had 13 points over RV's 8 points, but the Panthers added 11 in the second quarter and were down just 20-19 at the half.

The Thunder exploded out of locker room with 20 points and were able to limit the Panthers to nine points.

"I told them before the game that it was going to be a game of runs and that we needed to try to limit their opportunities," Pelton said.

Nemaha Central added 12 in the fourth quarter, including four free throws. The Panthers answered backed with seven points, including a three-pointer from Ian Lee.

"We made some good strides on Thursday as a team," Pelton said. "We were all on the same page, and I was proud of them for working together through some things."

Masen Spoonhunter led the Panthers with 12 points.

The Lady Panthers had four players in double figures and were led by Lexi Baker, who had 14 points.

In a make-up game against the Nemaha Central Thunder on Thursday, the Lady Panthers were defeated 44-26. The Thunder, along with the Holton Lady Wildcats, are leading the Big Seven League this season with 7-1 records.

"We knew going in that Nemaha is a really talented group," said RV coach Corey Katzer. "They are big across the board, and they were able to isolate us in the post position."

The Lady Thunder came out quick and scored 13 points and held the Lady Panthers to just two points in the first quarter. In the second quarter, Nemaha Central added six points, leading 19-6 at the half.

"In the first half, defensively, I thought we were fantastic," Katzer said. "I couldn't ask for anything more."

The Thunder took a commanding lead in the first half by speeding up the pace of the game.

"We've learned over the last few games that we have to be a very patient and efficient offensive team, and the one thing that hurts us is when we get sped up," Katzer said. "We have a tendency to just make one or two passes and then put up a shot up."

The Panthers added 20 points in the second half but allowed the Thunder an additional 25 points as well.

"We were able to regroup at the half, and we're able to play with them," Katzer said.

The Holton boys improved to 7-2 overall and 7-1 in the Big Seven League with a 43-42 victory at Hiawatha on Friday.

Hiawatha dropped to 3-5 overall and 3-5 in the Big Seven.

HHS head coach Ryan Noel said he was pleased with the Wildcats' effort in the game.

"I thought we played better against their zone," coach Noel said. "Ball movement was key, as was our rebounding effort in the second half."

Holton led 10-8 after the first quarter and trailed 23-21 at halftime. The Wildcats then went on to outscore the Redhawks 13-8 in the third quarter and withstood a strong fourth quarter by the Redhawks.

our subs and their performance. Bryson Patch was solid offensively and Mason Strader worked hard defensively."

Holton made 14 of 36 field goals for 38.9 percent in the game to 20 of 42 for Hiawatha.

Focus on your health for the New Year

By Cindy Williams
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent
Food & Nutrition, FNP

Beginning the new year means weight loss resolutions for many people. Colorado State University estimates that 50 million Americans go on a diet each year. However, they also estimated that only five percent of Americans are able to keep the weight off after dieting.

That disappointing fact, if you didn't know that already, gives us even more of a reason to ditch the diets and aim for a healthy lifestyle instead!

Just say "no" to fad diets. Fad diets are diets that want you to lose weight quickly, often reducing a large amount of your daily calories and restricting foods and even entire food groups, which leaves our body lacking nutrients, such as electrolytes, calcium, iron and magnesium.

A couple of months ago, the American Heart Association presented a study that suggested that yo-yo dieting may increase the risk of coronary heart disease, as well as sudden cardiac death in post-menopausal women. The University of Colorado also showed that 35 percent of people who start dieting occasionally become addicted to dieting.

Ask yourself the following questions to spot a fad diet: Does this diet completely eliminate foods? Does it promise quick, amazing results? Do you have to buy certain foods or products?

Don't be fooled by fad diets. They don't work in the long run! Focus on the positives instead.

It is important to focus on our health and make small changes that will last throughout the years. Instead of restricting foods and categorizing foods into "good" or "bad," focus on eating more healthful foods like fruits and vegetables and whole grains.

Small shifts in your daily eating habits can improve your health over the long run, and small steps every day can make a difference in working towards a healthy eating pattern that works for you.

You can make some easy changes to cut back on the calories you eat by reducing the number of caloric beverages you drink (such as soda and juice); adding fruits and vegetables to your meals and snacks; switching out refined carbohydrates for whole grains, like whole grain bread and brown rice; choosing leaner meats; and being mindful of your portion sizes.

Here's to a healthier, happier new year by making some small changes to lead a healthier lifestyle in 2017.

Are you planting trees? Start them off right!

By David Hallauer
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent
Crops & Soils/Horticulture

The right tree in the right spot is typically the focus of most tree planting programs. Finding what works for our intended purpose and then making sure we have it located appropriately is an important part of the planting's success, and cannot be ignored! What often does get overlooked, however, are some of the finer details we need to pay heed to after planting!

We always think about watering. That's important! We might give some attention to wildlife damage if deer or rabbits are issues. That's also important.

What about weed and grass control? Any cause for concern? Research says definitely!

Three K-State researchers at the John C. Pair Horticultural Center wanted to take a look at the effect of grass control (or lack thereof!) on newly planted trees. This study was designed to look at landscape trees, but the same effect can be had on windbreak plantings as well.

Their study included five treatments on pecan and redbud and three species of grasses: bare soil maintained with herbicides, area under tree mulched three inches deep and grass (tall fescue, bermudagrass or Kentucky bluegrass) allowed to grow under the tree.

All trees were fertilized according to recommendations and watered as necessary during the growing season. Trees were monitored and information collected on diameter at six inches above ground, weight of aboveground portions of the tree, leaf area and leaf weight.

The results were clear-cut, showing no differences in any measure between the mulched and bare soil treatments for either tree species. When compared to treatments where the turf grasses were allowed to grow, all measures showed significant growth increases if lawn grasses were controlled around the tree.

Tree diameter was compromised if any grass was allowed to grow with cool season grasses reducing diameters by almost half as compared to treatments where grass was controlled. Top growth weight, leaf area and leaf weight were all significantly greater when grass was controlled as well.

The obvious conclusion: control grasses under a newly transplanted trees to get the best possible growth! If herbicides don't leave the look you want or you don't want to risk damage to trees, give strong consideration to mulch or even weed barrier fabric. However you do it, make sure grasses are controlled to a minimum of three feet from the trunk of the tree.

Circleville Christian Church

By Jeannie Arnold

Jay and Carol Buehler served as greeters at the door for Cowboy Church at Circleville Christian Church on Jan. 8. Blair Wagner gave the welcome and announcements and the opening prayer. Music was provided by the praise team of Gary Bell, Dale and Ilah Rose Askren, David Allen, Sandra Hurt and Paul and Sue Davault.

Spencer Askren was visiting and gave an update on his mission work at Central Arkansas University. He is with a student mobilization team that brings college students to Christ.

Paul Davault used text from Jeremiah 29:11 as he gave the communion meditation. Communion servers were Donnie Askren, Mike Cochren, Jeremy Kennedy and John Ray. The prayer for the offering was given by David Allen. Joyce Cochren provided the lovely piano music as communion was served and the offering was received.

Brody Bliss used text from Genesis 12:10-20 as he gave the morning sermon, titled "From The Mountaintop To The Valley." His message followed the life of Abram and his trials. His message told that God uses trials to test our sincerity because the original creation of perfection must be restored.

We fail at trials because we do not fully trust in God and because of our own fear. Fear is created by forgetfulness, forgetting that God is in control. We deceive ourselves into thinking that we are good but we need to be patient in all situations. We need to trust God when we are on the mountaintops and also in the valleys.

We can choose God or choose our own way. Think before you choose because bad choices affect more people than just yourself.

The service closed by singing "Happy Trails To You."

Royal Valley eighth-grade student Emma McKinsey (left) was surprised last week with a $2,000 scholarship after winning a contest through the Kansas State Treasurer's Office Learning Quest program. The contest asked students to write about a person they look up to, and Emma wrote about her grandmother, Linda Wood (right). Emma entered the creative side of the contest, and she handmade a quilt to represent her grandmother, who taught her how to quilt. Emma put superheros on the quilt and wrote an essay to explain why each one represented her grandmother. She won first place in the creative category of the contest and the school also received $1,000. She is the daughter of Josh and Jamie McKinsey of Mayetta. Submitted photo

Circleville News

By Jeannie Arnold

Arcele Fraley was a visitor at our house on Monday morning, Jan. 2. Arcele and Carole traveled from Colorado to spend Christmas with Arcele's girls and families, then to Topeka, where they stayed with friends. Carole was visiting friends in Topeka and Arcele made a trip to the Holton area to visit with friends, and the plan was to play golf, but the weather didn't cooperate for that - it started raining.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Patricia Wichman, who died on Jan. 6. Local family members include her son, Kevin, and his wife, Sandy Wichman; daughter, Amy Spiker, and her husband, Jared; granddaughter, Jodi, and her husband, Dan Shupe; and grandson, Austin, and his wife, Samantha Wichman, all of Circleville.

Barbara and Dennis Hutchinson hosted their Morris family Christmas dinner on Saturday, Jan. 7, with a soup lunch. Several of the group also brought food items to go with the lunch. Guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Tim Morris from Holton, Marsha Morris from Topeka, Pastor Luke and Kerri Lynne Brown from Ellsworth and Georgia Flood from Wichita. They also celebrated Barbara's birthday. The family celebration was scheduled for Dec. 17, but was postponed because of inclement weather.

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hutchinson on Sunday, Jan. 8, were Denise Morarity and Kylie Moore from Hoyt and Doug Hutchinson from Mission. They enjoyed the get-together, but were sorry that Kylie had injured her foot in the Royal Valley High School basketball game on Friday and was on crutches.

Bodenhausen places in state corn yield contest

Chris Bodenhausen of Muscotah recently won third place in the Irrigated division of the 2016 National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) Corn Yield Contest in Kansas, it was reported. Bodenhausen won with Pioneer brand P1197AM, which yielded 271.8610 bushels per acre.

Bodenhausen earned one of the 199 state titles won by growers planting Pioneer brand products. Growers planting Pioneer brand products led the contest, winning 58 percent of the 343 state titles awarded this year.

The NCGA Corn Yield Contest is an annual U.S. competition among corn growers with the goal of capitalizing on the high genetic yield potential of today's corn hybrids. Growers compete in six corn production classes: two for non-irrigated, two for no-till/strip till non-irrigated, one for no-till/strip till irrigated and one for irrigated acres.

"Our 2016 NCGA winners demonstrate the value of our continued investment in germplasm and trait packages, coupled with the unmatched team of local Pioneer professionals. They are with customers throughout the year to help them achieve maximum productivity," said Steve Reno, DuPont Pioneer vice president, regional director - U.S. and Canada.

2S Land and Cattle Receives 2016 Kansas Leopold Conservation Award

Sand County Foundation, the Kansas Association of Conservation Districts (KACD) and the Ranchland Trust of Kansas (RTK) are proud to announce 2S Land and Cattle as the recipient of the 2016 Kansas Leopold Conservation Award, which honors Kansas landowner achievement in voluntary stewardship and management of natural resources, it was reported.

Owned and managed by Randy and Nicole Small, 2S Land and Cattle is a sixth generation cattle ranch and crop farm in the Verdigris River Basin near the southeastern corner of Kansas.

The Smalls work alongside their family, including their two young sons who have a budding interest in the family business and have even taken on the responsibility of planting their own crops.

The Smalls have long been considered leaders in relay cropping, which occurs when a second crop is planted into the first crop before harvest. Lespedeza is grown into their wheat crop and sold as seed to other producers, and red clover has been seeded to provide an emergency source of hay during dry years.

Rotational grazing occurs in two to three pasture rotations, and their stocking rates are dependent on the quality and type of pasture. The Smalls have purchased and leased several overgrazed pastures over the years, regenerating and building the native grass biodiversity over time with light grazing, patch burning and limited herbicide treatments.

These efforts have paid off in productivity, often allowing the pastures to be stocked at heavier rates than neighboring paddocks.

Given in honor of renowned conservationist Aldo Leopold, the Leopold Conservation Award recognizes extraordinary achievement in voluntary conservation. It inspires other landowners through these examples and provides a visible forum where farmers, ranchers and other private landowners are recognized as conservation leaders.

In his influential 1949 book, "A Sand County Almanac," Leopold called for an ethical relationship between people and the land they own and manage, which he called "an evolutionary possibility and an ecological necessity."

The $10,000 award and a crystal depicting Aldo Leopold was presented to the Smalls at the Kansas Association of Conservation Districts Annual Convention in Wichita on Nov. 21.

"The Kansas Association of Conservation Districts is proud to recognize the Smalls for their outstanding land stewardship," said Jim Krueger, KACD executive director. "The Smalls are incredibly deserving of this award. Their commitment to land health demonstrates how you can be successful in agriculture while conserving Kansas' natural resources."

"The Smalls are an extraordinary family that represents the best of voluntary conservation of our natural resources," said Bill Eastman, RTK chair of the board. "They do an incredible job balancing their love of the land and respect for wildlife with their farm and ranch needs."

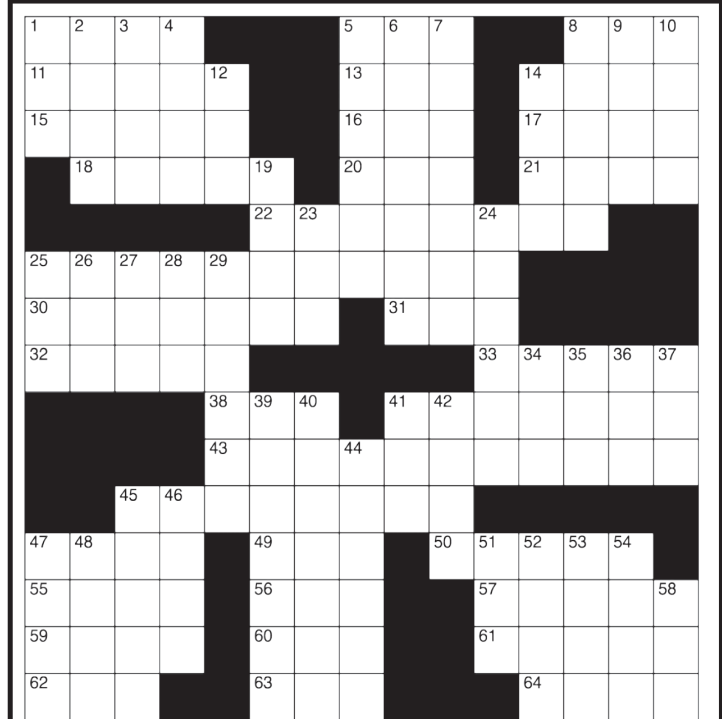

The Leopold Conservation Award Program in Kansas is made possible thanks to the generous support of Clean Line Energy Partners, USDA NRCS Kansas, Ducks Unlimited, ITC Great Plains, Westar Energy, Kansas State Forestry and Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks and Tourism.

Gardener's Corner

One step, one moment at a time

By Sandra M. Siebert

This July mark 10 years that we've been in our country home on the hill. Over those 10 years, we've planted dozens of fruit trees (more than what actually stand right now, but that's another story), many berry bushes and brambles, hundreds of perennial flowers and herbs and thousands of annual vegetable plants.

planting vegetables.

I began my vegetable-growing career on this place by tilling up a small area next to the giant pile of dirt, and planting garlic. Then I started moving dirt, one shovelful at a time, from a giant pile created with dirt from the pond excavation at the bottom of the hill. Each day one I took my shovel and started on the pile of dirt. After so many wheelbarrow loads, one raised bed was complete. It took four years, or five, to complete the growing areas that now exist — one wheelbarrow load, one planting hole, one seed at a time. Sometimes I would look at the size of a project and despair. But each day I went out and started again, with one small task. I imagine I have walked 1,000 miles during those few years, moving from house to garden, and back and forth through the garden.

A journey of 1,000 miles.

If you are just starting your gardening experience and are daunted by looking at the whole process and all you need to know. Just begin. Plant that first seed. Set out that first cabbage plant. Begin small, one step, and keep going. You don't need to know everything now. I still don't know everything.

Verse 64 also contains other meaningful lines, such as, "the small is easily scattered." That is not a warning to take care when handling tiny carrot seeds, but to act while things are small. This reminds me of paths full of weeds in last year's garden.

If I had "scattered" the weeds when they were small — pulled them as they appeared — I would not have had parts of the paths nearly blocked by six-foot tall weeds and mats of crabgrass. "Act before things exist; manage them before there is disorder," the Tao Te Ching advises. If I had done that, I could have saved myself the work of clearing the paths.

But sometimes ancient wisdom is difficult to follow.

I try to act before disorder arises. As I walk down the garden paths, I keep a sharp eye out for any weeds popping up (they just keep coming, even now).

I did that last year, too. At least I started the season that way. As I walked down the paths, I bent to pull every weed I saw. But then I was stooping every step to pull not just one, but several weeds. It became discouraging. After stooping a dozen times before I was halfway through the garden, I would stop pulling weeds. I just ignored them as best I could, until they started blocking my way.

The thing is I don't need to read the Tao Te Ching to learn these lessons. I just need to pay attention to what the garden teaches. The Tao Te Ching says to "do without striving," to allow all to "find their own nature." Of course I know this. I plant the seed, water it, keep it free of weeds, but I cannot force it to grow. Instead I must sit back and wait for it to grow, according to its own nature.

And I might as well go off and do something else because my fretting and fussing won't make it grow any faster and might actually do it damage. Vegetables that I keep under row cover are hidden from me, so I can't keep good track of their progress, or lack of it, without the effort of lifting the cover. So I am often amazed when I finally look at them and find robust plants that grew just fine while I all but ignored them.

No one makes a 1,000-mile journey in a single leap; no one reaches their destination until they begin. Big things are accomplished through small tasks. "A tree that fills a man's embrace grows from a seedling."

The garden teaches me all of this and more. I just need to listen.

How to create consistency in order to enhance brain development

By Nancy C. Nelson
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent
Family Life

We had a nice surprise at Christmas time — a visit from our grandson, who was born in September, oh, and his parents.

Being a first time grandparent has sparked my interest in the K-State Research & Extension publication series "Building Baby's Brain."

Besides the KSRE logo, you will see a University of Georgia Extension logo on these, as they were authored by Diane Bales and adapted in Kansas. The fact sheets are available at Extension offices and also can be found online. One of the topics is creating consistency.

The developing brain thrives on repetition. When a baby experiences the same things over and over, the pathways of connections in her brain become stronger and more complex.

One of the best ways to provide repetition for the developing brain is to create consistency in the child's world. When a child has experiences in a positive and predictable environment, her brain becomes wired to relate to others, regulate behavior and learn.

When a child experiences consistent care, she feels more secure because her basic needs are being met, and she has more energy to explore and learn.

What is consistency? Children develop emotional security when their world is nurturing, consistent and predictable. As children experience the same routines over and over, the brain strengthens connections that will lead to trust and secure attachments.

Children who live in consistent environment also learn to regulate their own emotions and behavior better, because they know that to expect of the world around them.

Consistency may include any or all of the following components:

- Predictability. Doing things in predictable ways builds a baby's trust of adults. It is important to give infants the security that comes from meeting her needs when she is hungry, sleepy or in the mood to play.
- Routines. Keeping the same general routine every day helps make the child's world feel stable and predictable. Doing certain things in the same order at about the same time every day helps strengthen brain connections and builds the baby's confidence because she knows what to expect in a situation. Even though young children cannot tell time, they remember the order in which things occur.

- Keep the child environment in order. Order helps a child know what to expect, which helps him feel secure and in control. He knows this toothbrush will be in the cup by the sink. He can find the blocks in the building center. He learns where to put things when he is finished with them so he can find them again later. Keeping the environment organized can reduce frustration and stress for children as well as adults.

- Setting and enforcing rules. Rules help children learn acceptable and unacceptable behavior, practice self-control and strengthen brain connections that will enable good decision-making as children grow. Rules need to be appropriate to the child's age, and adults need to enforce rules consistently.

staff, receiving accreditation and updating the records system.

In 2015, the PBP behavioral health program became state certified as an alcohol and drug recovery program. This distinction means the court system has to honor the request of Native Americans to receive treatment at the Prairie Band Health Center through the behavioral health program.

Prior to this, the state could deny these requests and force patients to seek treatment elsewhere creating an unnecessary financial burden.

The behavioral health program now works extensively with the local court systems (Prairie Band and Jackson County) to provide services required by legal obligations.

In addition to receiving certification, the program added a specialized staff position. Since 2015, the program has included access to a psychiatric nurse practitioner. This position is a benefit to those clients requiring psychiatric medications. Previously, if clients required medication, they had to be referred off-site to receive a prescription.

Another initiative undertaken in 2015 by the PBP behavioral health program was signing a five-year agreement with Washburn University to serve as an internship placement site for master's level addiction professionals.

Mendy Thompson, a current staff member of the behavioral health program, is completing her master's degree through Washburn and will be the first intern to participate under this agreement in 2017.

Recently, the National American Indian & Alaska Native Addiction Technology Transfer Center Network funded by SAMHSA (Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration) reached out to partner with the PBP behavioral health program and offer support to Native Americans working in an Indian Health Clinic to obtain their addiction counseling license.

Dawn Masqua, a licensed master social worker, was the first PBP employee to meet the criteria and make use of this offer. Masqua has now obtained a master addiction counseling temporary license and will take the exam to receive her permanent license in the near future.

Masqua has since been offered a full-time position with the behavioral health program and will serve as a behavioral health therapist. She will provide addiction counseling, outpatient group therapy, individual behavioral health counseling and mental health, alcohol and drug evaluations and assessments.

With the addition of Masqua, the PBP behavioral health program now consists of three dually licensed providers who can treat both mental health and provide alcohol and drug addiction counseling, an addictions counselor and the psychiatric nurse practitioner.

Three of the providers have also obtained anger management certification adding another service available to clients. All services provided are available to any Native Americans with behavioral health needs.

Further positive contributions to the behavioral health program have included upgrading the records system to the Indian Health Service Electronic Behavioral Health Record System, passing the auditing process of the state of Kansas and receiving accreditation under the Potawatomi Health Center by the Joint Commission.

The Joint Commission accreditation process ensures that the program is delivering the highest standards of care. Between the internal organizational upgrades and the new physical structure, the PBP behavioral health program is on track to provide a broad range of quality services to the local community.

"We told people, either it's going in the trash or you can take it home," Schreiber said. "There were some people who could do anything with old buckets or rusty sinks. We didn't find anything really amazing, though."

The group hauled "four or five loads" of scrap metal out of the gym, he said, noting that the money they got for the metal "just barely covered the landfill charge."

The volunteer group then set out to raise funds to aid the restoration of the building, and through donations and community pancake feeds, the group raised about $20,000 to repair the roof, Schreiber said.

They also worked with Soldier city government to apply for grant funds, and even though their first try to obtain Community Development Block Grant funds for the restoration project was not a success, Schreiber said the group was undeterred in its efforts. Future attempts at getting grants for the project were more successful, he noted.

"We just received word two weeks ago that we received a grant for $5,000," he said. "That gets us about a third of the way to buying the windows."

Once the windows are taken care of, Schreiber said the next part of the gym building to be taken care of will be the floors, including replacing the gym sub-floor and decking and removing the cement floors in the locker rooms and beneath the stage.

For more information about Community CORE or making donations toward the gym restoration project, visit the group's Web site at liveworkplaygrow.com or call Schreiber at 364-0779.

companies are rewarding their clients for staying healthy.

For seniors who have policies that qualify them, each of their visits to the Netawaka Fitness Center is paid for in full when they present their SilverSneakers card or number.

Those unfamiliar with the program can check with their insurance company to see if they qualify, or check SilverSneakers.com for details.

Steffes says this "seniors free" program is having a dramatic effect on the number of them using the facility each day.

"Our center is becoming a destination, a friendly gathering place for them. It gives them a chance to break up their day by taking a short drive here," he said. "I can tell it's not solely for the exercise — such as using the walking lanes around our full-size basketball court, or enjoying our 8,000-square-foot heated pool — they're making new friends here who have new, interesting things to talk about. It's nice to observe."

Joe Romans of Hoyt echoes that sentiment.

"I'm a retired soldier, and at age 66, it's more important than ever to stay in shape," Romans said. "The Netawaka Fitness Center is a full service facility — to me, it's the king of the hill in fitness centers. I make the drive from Hoyt because it's worth it."

Romans admitted that he and others come for the conversation as much as the exercise. It gets them out of the house, and they have a wide choice of activities, from walking to using the treadmills or seated steppers, or just having coffee with new friends.

Nancy Noble of Mayetta said she feels the same.

"Here at the center, we found a community of people working together to stay healthy," Noble said. "We especially like the 86-degree temperature in the pool. It's very therapeutic."

Members note the facility is well maintained, the staff is friendly, and with the SilverSneakers program in place, many of the seniors can do all this at no charge.

Steffes elaborated on the wide choice of things to do.

"Beside the heated pool and full-size court with walking lanes around it, we have a state-of-the-art weight room, cardio equipment, treadmills, upright and recumbent bikes, rowing machines, locker rooms and showers," he said. "We offer classes in water aerobics, yoga, low impact training and more. We also have a Kids' Zone with a bounce house and other things for young ones to do while their parents work out."

The Netawaka Fitness Center is a non-profit facility, resulting in affordable membership rates. Limited-time day passes are available for $5 and family passes for $15. A visual tour of the fitness center is available at www.netawakafc.com
