Recent Holton High School graduate Brandon Lehnherr spent part of Thursday afternoon cleaning the last of the debris from the Holton Municipal Swimming Pool, where Lehnherr is in his third summer working at the pool. The pool is being managed by Judy Ireland this summer season, which began on Saturday with a free swim. Lehnherr and Holly Karn are assistant managers at the pool this season.

Noriega receives 20-year sentence

■ Judge: Stabbing victim ‘screaming for justice’

By Brian Sanders

Shortly before he was given a prison sentence of more than 20 years for the stabbing death of a Mayetta woman at his parents’ home, Wilson Noriega expressed remorse for the November 2015 incident that ended the life of Leann Sanchez.

“I lost someone who was real close to me — a childhood friend... I know I’m going to lose my family,” Noriega, 51, told Jackson County District Court Judge Norbert Marek on Thursday.

Marek, noting that no members of Noriega’s family were in court that afternoon to support him, looked past those words and the terms of a plea agreement, in which the main charge against Noriega was reduced from first-degree murder to voluntary manslaughter, and handed down an aggravated sentence that Marek said will have Noriega in prison “until he’s 75 years old.”

“Leann Sanchez and the citizens of Kansas are screaming for justice,” the judge said. “This is all I can give them.”

The plea agreement, accepted by Marek during an April 14 hearing, sought the low end of a sentencing range between 221 months (18 years and five months) and 247 months (20 years and seven months), as well as credit for more than 18 months Noriega has spent at the Jackson County Detention Center.

But on Thursday, Marek handed Noriega the upper end of the sentencing range for voluntary manslaughter — a level 3 person felony, according to Kansas law — and cut the credit for jail time to about four months, saying that whether the court had to hold to an agreement to a level 3 felony was “at the state’s discretion.”

Noriega had originally been

Wilson’s anti-texting essay wins state contest

The winners of the statewide “It Can Wait” essay contest, co-sponsored by AT&T, the Kansas Department of Transportation and the Kansas Press Association, include a Holton High School sophomore and a Hutchinson eighth grader.

Winners of $500 cash awards are Samantha Wilson, a sophomore from Holton, and Elisabeth Workman, a Prairie Hills Middle School student from Hutchinson.

The contest challenged students at middle schools and high schools in Kansas to write about the dangers of texting while driving.

In her essay, Wilson wrote about how her firefighter father has lectured her through the years: “Don’t ever make me be the one to cut you out of a smashed car.”

“As a firefighter’s daughter, this is a conversation I have with my dad not just once a year, but multiple times a year,” she wrote “Texting is an addiction; people are on their phones constantly regardless of where they are. Phones have the power to ruin relationships and destroy time with

Workman described how peer pressure can help curb the use of cell phones while driving: “When the younger generation makes the active decision to call texting and driving ‘uncool’ or a stupid decision, they won’t do it. When your peers tell you something is bad, you are inclined to believe that it is and you won’t do it.”

This was the second year for the essay contest. Wilson’s win-

Barnett proposes departmental changes

By Ali Holcomb

Under the direction of new Jackson County road and bridge administrator Dan Barnett (pictured), several changes have been proposed for the county department, it has been reported.

During a recent Jackson County Commission meeting, Barnett proposed changing the hours of the road and bridge department from five eight-hour days to four 10-hour days.

The road and bridge office currently closes at 3:30 p.m. each business day.

The commissioners told Barnett that they would still like to have someone available on Fridays to take care of issues that arise.

Barnett said he will study some options further before making a decision.

In the past, working hours have been altered in the summer months for the road and bridge crew. Employees worked four 10-hour days to increase productivity and same money.

Barnett also discussed tracking each of the county’s motor graders through GPS.

He stated that there are several options available for tracking and that four of the county’s 11 motor graders already have GPS capabilities.

The trackers on the current machines are part of the service plan and will be turned off in a year, it was reported.

The cost to track the other graders is $1,800 per unit for a GPS device and $100 per unit for a subscription through the dealerships.

Barnett said there is also a cellular real time tracking device that could be purchased for an estimated $30 plus a $30 per month fee.

No action was taken on the issue.

In other business, according to the approved minutes from May 15, the commission:

- * Heard a report from Mixie

Schafer, noxious weed and environmental services director. Schafer noted that the sprayer calibration event went well and she is considering a second event in the fall.

Schafer said she would like to remove the baskets located outside the recycling center gates. She said that the public is using them incorrectly and disregarding the signs that say not to leave certain items in the baskets.

She stated that after hours, some people intentionally dump off items that are not accepted during business hours. The commissioners said they would consider the matter further before taking any action.

HHS baseball team falls in state tourney opener

The Holton Wildcats baseball team competed Thursday, May 25, at the Kansas Class 4A-DII baseball tournament, falling to Holcomb by the score of 15-0.

It was the HHS baseball team’s first trip to the state tournament in the program’s 17-year history. The team ended the season with a record of 6-17.

In other 4A-DII first-round state tournament games played at Soden’s Field at Emporia, Rock Creek beat Clearwater 5-4, Baxter Springs beat Concordia 3-1 and Nickerson beat Iola 8-1.

Holcomb, a team that had scored an average of 12 runs per game this season so far, it was

Find Kids’ Ads in this edition!

Fifth-grade students at Holton Elementary School, Jackson Heights Elementary School and Royal Valley Middle School recently were given the opportunity to design advertisements for many area businesses.

Today’s Holton Recorder will be the first of two editions to feature their “Kids’ Ads” handiwork.

The first round of advertisements appear on pages 6 through 9 of this issue, with the remainder to be featured in Wednesday’s edition of The Recorder.

A total of 98 advertisements will be published that represent 31 area businesses, it was noted.

“Kids’ Ads” is a “Newspapers in Education” project that fifth-grade students are invited to participate in each year.

The Recorder would like to thank all local business owners who participated in the project.

The old Torrence barn, owned by Harold E. and Judy Thompson of rural Denison and shown here in 2007, was “demolished” by tornadic winds on Thursday, May 18, it was reported.

Historic Torrence barn falls to tornadic wind

By Ali Holcomb

A historic hay barn, owned by Harold E. and Judy Thompson of rural Denison, was “demolished” by tornadic winds on Thursday, May 18.

The white barn was known as the Torrence barn, since it was built by Joseph Torrence in 1914, and it was once considered the largest barn in Jackson County. The Thompson property is located one mile north and three miles east of Denison at 19845 Barber Rd.

“It happened around 8 p.m.,” Thompson said. “The wind lifted the roof, and the whole thing shifted 50 feet to the east.”

Thompson said there was no cattle or machinery in the barn during the incident.

“A huge amount of lumber was used to build it,” he said. “If you built that barn today, it’d cost you $300,000.”

Joseph Torrence began building the barn in 1910 and, once complete with a gabled roof, it measured 70-feet by 100-feet and was 45-feet high. It was built for a large cattle operation, and the barn had double loaded aisles with cattle mangers capable of feeding 100 to 150 cows at a time.

Considered a Midwest Prairie style barn, 12-foot by 12-foot pine posts were shipped from Arkansas on the railroad to Half Mound and then put on wagons to the ranch to construct the barn.

Noriega...

charged with first-degree murder and two other drug-related charges after the Nov. 21, 2015, stabbing death of Sanchez, which reportedly occurred at his parents' home on the Prairie Band Potawatomi Reservation. He pleaded not guilty to all charges in March of 2016, and on Thursday, he maintained that he was "not guilty of premeditated murder."

The April plea agreement saw Noriega entering a no-contest plea to the reduced charge of voluntary manslaughter, and the two drug-related charges were dismissed.

Defense attorney Donald Hoffman of Topeka said Thursday that criminal proceedings in Shawnee County that may have held up the Jackson County sentencing hearing were "resolved with this agreement." Marek, however, made the Jackson County sentence concurrent with any time Noriega may be facing in connection with the Shawnee County criminal proceeding.

"He will serve that sentence," the judge said. "And he will serve a sentence for Leann Sanchez that is commensurate with the crime committed."

Fallen barn...

The haymow — or storage area for the hay — was a split level, raised over the center bay with a hay hood at the north and south ends of the barn. Hay was thrown into the mangers through six chutes with double doors. There were stairs leading to the loft in each corner of the barn.

The barn sat on the Byers Ranch, which was established by Reed Byers. The white barn complex also consisted of a water tank, chicken coop, wash house, a red barn and a farmhouse.

Thompson began renting the land in 1945 and purchased it in 1948. He did row cropping and had up to 300 cattle at one time. Thompson continues to raise corn, soybean and beef cattle. Throughout time, the land had been divided between row cropping, hay and livestock.

In 2014, the Thompsons applied to have the barn and property included on the Kansas State Register of Historic Places.

In his application, Thompson said the farmstead represents the history of farming in northeast Kansas from the 1880s to the present.

"I would like to place the property on the register to recognize its historic and architectural importance and to protect the buildings and, by all means possible, ensure that they will continue to be maintained," Thompson wrote in the application.

The barn was one of the featured barns on the 2012 Jackson County Barn Tour.

TREATING PSYCHOSIS

Each year, about 1,000 adolescents and young adults in the United States experience a first psychotic episode. Approximately 3% of the U.S. population will experience psychosis at some point in their lives, which involves loss of contact with reality. Symptoms of bipolar disorder, schizophrenia, and even drug and alcohol abuse may include delusions, hallucinations, and confused and disturbed thoughts. "Cognitive behavioral therapy" (CBT), which focuses on changing the thinking and behavior that triggers such symptoms, may help produce long-term benefits for people suffering from psychosis. Research shows that CBT can trigger brain changes that lead to long-term recovery from psychosis. This is important news for those who have not been introduced to anything other than medication for treatment of psychosis.

P.S. Only one in ten individuals who suffer from psychosis and who could benefit from psychological therapies are offered them.

*Are you currently taking medication? Would you like to explore an alternative treatment? You need to call to see one of our experienced and compassionate counselors. We can determine if you are a good candidate for CBT, identify your personal triggers, and get you on the path to recovery. Please call our office for an appointment. ## Hausslers comment on 2017 golf season, state tournament

By Brian Sanders

Holton High School junior AJ Haussler has putted his way to the Class 4A state golf tournament for three straight years, and this year's tournament saw him battling adverse weather and course conditions, according to AJ and his father, HHS Assistant Head Coach Kurt Haussler.

Still, AJ said he was thankful for the experience.

"Although I didn't play my best, it was good to face some adversity and play in the rain," said AJ, who shot his way to a 45th-place finish at the state golf tournament, held Monday, May 22 at the Wamego Country Club.

Kurt acknowledged that the rainy weather and slick greens that day at Wamego "provided a challenging test for the entire 4A field." But despite the weather and course conditions, Kurt noted that his son still finished with his best score and placement yet at state competition.

"We are very proud of the way AJ continued to battle and give his best on every shot in challenging conditions," Kurt said. "It was a real test of patience and mental toughness, and we thought he did a great job in both areas."

AJ shot an 18-over-par 88 at the state tournament, which was beset by rain that caused an hour's delay in play for all 101 participating golfers, it was reported. His score was hampered by a ninth-hole challenge that saw him shooting eight on a par-four hole.

"While he may not have executed every shot the way he wanted, he did the things we ask our players to do by sticking to his game plan with decisions off the tee, playing smart golf in using good course management, and staying patient in dealing with heavy rain and a weather delay during the round," Kurt said.

The elder Haussler noted that his son's third straight appearance at the state tournament capped a good season for AJ, which saw him finishing sixth at the Clay Center regional tournament and scoring well at all other competitions that involved the Wildcat golfers.

"AJ had an excellent junior season, medaling in every event prior to the state tournament and providing leadership to a young and inexperienced varsity team this season," Kurt said.

AJ also took some pride in the way his junior season turned out and acknowledged the work of his father and Head Coach Don Swisher in helping him to improve through the season.

"Overall, it was my best season so far, and I hope I can have another good season next year," he said.

The team won two tournaments and placed in the top four in five of this year's nine tournaments, even in spite of the team's youth and relative inexperience, Kurt noted. Still, he added, the team was hampered due to spring weather that kept them from getting in a lot of early practice.

"We felt that we made improvements in some areas throughout the season but lacked consistency in our scores," Kurt said. "As the season progressed, I felt like we improved our decision-making and course management, but we lacked consistency in our ball-striking, chipping and putting."

Kurt also noted that with all but two players coming back next season — seniors Austin and Riley Shepley have graduated — there's still room for the team to grow.

"With hard work practicing and playing tournaments this summer, we believe we can be an improved team next season," Kurt said.

Swisher, who is retiring from coaching the Wildcat golf squad after 30 years, echoed Kurt's comment about the Wildcats staying active on the greens in the off-season.

"They have got to get out there and play during the summer," Swisher said. "That's the only way we're going to have a better golf team."

KANSAS LEGISLATURE

Never-ending budget shortfalls bad for state

The state of Kansas faces an estimated $900 million budget shortfall.

Gov. Sam Brownback is still in office but reports are still circulating that after this legislative session he may resign the position to take an ambassadorship in Rome in the President Donald Trump administration, as ambassador to the United Nations for food and agriculture.

The way Kansas state government is being operated these days - from budget crisis to budget crisis - is maddening and tiresome.

Kansans deserve better.

If Gov. Brownback resigns, he will end his second term as governor two years early.

In the meantime, state legislators (many of them still loyal to Gov. Brownback's taxation vision) stopped their work Thursday to take a four-day weekend and maybe have a picnic, I guess, but before they left the State Capitol building, they advanced a proposal to increase state aid to Kansas public schools, it was reported.

Two-thirds of the House of Representatives members approved a measure to increase state aid to public schools by $180 million in the new school term and to further increase state aid to public schools by another $100 million in the following school term, for a total package increase of $280 million.

The measure now moves to the Kansas Senate where state senators have already advanced their own bill to increase state aid to public schools by about $240 million over two years.

The Kansas Supreme Court, earlier this year, gave the State Legislature a June 30 deadline to complete work on a new public school funding formula, after it ruled the state's current formula both inadequate and unconstitutional.

The Legislature's will to agree on how much to increase state aid to public school is the first step.

The next step is showing the will to compromise on how to make the increase to state aid to public schools happen.

This 2017 session of the Kansas Legislature has lasted 101 days, so far, and has just nine days to go as the state budgeted the session for 110.

The cost to Kansas taxpayers to fund the State Legislature is about $45,000 for each day that it is in session.

For sure, this legislative session has not been a picnic for our state leaders.

The state's reserves have been depleted over the past six years, since the major tax exemptions of 2012 were enacted. The state has been in a never-ending state budget crisis since that year.

Efforts to turn this state into some things it is not have failed. Fairness in state taxation now requires state legislators to fully repeal those 2012 tax exemptions.

GRILLING? Don't forget the meat thermometer

By Cindy Williams
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent

Food and Nutrition, FNP

Kansas State University food scientist Karen Blakeslee says getting ready for the outdoor grilling season requires one important tool in addition to tongs, a spatula and oven mitts.

"Grab that meat thermometer, too," said Blakeslee, who is also coordinator of the university's Rapid Response Center, a source of information on food safety and other consumer topics.

"A thermometer is your best defense against any foodborne illness and checking for doneness," she said. "Don't rely on color, because it's really misleading. Internal temperature is the best way to check for doneness."

Blakeslee said digital, instant-read thermometers are the best type to use for grilling because the sensor is on the point of the thermometer.

"You will get a really quick read with those," she said. "They will give you a reading in about 10 seconds."

She added that depending on the type of meat you are grilling, there are three temperatures to remember:

- 165 degrees F - For any type of poultry, whether it's chicken or turkey, and regardless if it's ground or even whole.

- 160 degrees F - For any type of ground meat, including beef, pork or lamb.

- 145 degrees F - For steaks and chops, whether it is beef, pork or lamb. Try to insert the thermometer in from the side, not from the top. That will give you a better reading.

Blakeslee shared other tips to make sure your grilling experience is successful:

Cleaning The Grill

Caked-on grease or food can cause a fire. Brush and scrub the grates well. Some spray-on grill cleaners can be effective at removing residue.

Blakeslee also suggested taking the grate out and cleaning leftover grease and food particles from inside the grill. She also advised inspecting the cleaning brush.

"If you've got a brush where those little metal bristles are starting to come loose or break, it's time to throw it out and get a new one," she said. "Those may break off on the grate itself and if you don't see them, they could get stuck on your food, and you could ingest them."

In addition, check the propane tank to make sure it's full and ready to go, and that there are no cracks in the hoses.

Food Safety

Blakeslee cautioned against cross-contaminating foods.

"The main thing is if you're handling raw meat with tongs, don't use those same tongs that handled the raw meat with your cooked vegetables or meat," she said. "Wash your tongs in between handling raw and cooked foods. If you have an extra set, use a clean set instead."

Ham radio operating explained to seventh graders

The Jackson Amateur Radio Club (JARC) partnered and worked with the Hiawatha Amateur Radio Club Thursday afternoon, May 11, and talked with the seventh grade science classes at the Hiawatha Middle School about the ionosphere, introduced them to amateur radio and discussed how the properties of the ionosphere allow worldwide communication on the short wave bands.

Randall Noon, KC0CCR from Hiawatha, explained how the ionosphere is formed, how it refracts radio waves and how this effect is used to send radio waves around the world.

Richard Smith, WOQGS,

president of the Jackson Amateur Radio Club (JARC) of Holton, discussed how ham radio operators become licensed and the many ways in which ham radio operators communicate with each other. This includes communication by voice, by Morse Code, by texting, by television and by facsimile.

Jim Gerweck, KB0FVP from Falls City, who formerly was involved in Emergency Preparedness for Richardson County, Neb., then told the classes how ham radio operators provide emergency communications.

Because each ham radio station is independent, even when regular communications like landlines and cell phones are knocked out by storms or disasters, ham radio operators can provide emergency communications. There are currently about 738,000 licensed ham operators in the United States.

Smith explained how the astronauts on the International Space Station are all ham operators, and how it is possible for local ham operators to talk with them when the space station passes overhead.

To demonstrate how the local two-meter repeater works, calls were made from the classroom using small handheld radios to several local ham operators standing by including KC0RMJ, KC-0CIO both in Hiawatha, and KB0WOG in Falls City, Neb.

This summer on June 24 and June 25, local ham operators from both Jackson Amateur Radio Club and the Hiawatha Amateur Radio Club will gather at the south end of the Hiawatha Walmart to set up an emergency communication station.

They will exchange messages with about 35,000 other ham operators across North America, Central America and the Pacific for 24 hours to demonstrate their ability to provide emergency communications if needed. The public is welcome to observe.

Browns to celebrate 60th anniversary

Sixty years ago, Robert D. Brown and Marilyn K. Zeller were united in marriage at the First Congregational Church in Onaga on May 31, 1957. They have three children, Lezlee Heryford and her husband, the late Jeff Heryford, of Ber-ryton, Bryce Brown of Kansas City, Mo. and Lisa Zimmerman and her husband, Jay, of Liberty, Mo.; and four grandchildren, Lea and Samuel Heryford and Jason and Jacob Zimmerman. Robert and Marilyn reside at 400 Iowa Ave., Holton, where they have lived for 58 years. The family will celebrate the anniversary at the New Theatre Restaurant in Overland Park.

Allens to celebrate golden anniversary

Marty and Judy Allen of Highland will celebrate 50 years of marriage on June 10.

Marty Allen and Judy Nichols were married on June 10, 1967, at the First Christian Church in Soldier by Pastor Roger Thompson. Attendants were Beverly Evan, Janice Wanlass and Vickie Root, sisters of the bride, and Boyd Allen, the late Harvey Allen and the late Don Allen, brothers of the groom.

The groom is the son of Elton and Nora Helen Allen. The bride is the daughter of Jake and Viola Nichols.

The Allens started dating in 1963, while going to Soldier High School. Marty received a scholarship to play football, basketball and track at Highland Community College. He went on to Kansas State University to play football. Judy went on to work in Topeka at the Fidelity State Bank.

The couple has four children, Tammi Allen of Highland, Amy Linton and her husband, Corey, of Osage City, Marti Ann Leach and her husband, Aaron, of Highland, and Mark Allen of Highland. They also have eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

During their married life, Marty taught at Denison High School while Judy raised their daughter, Tammi. Marty was drafted after his first year of teaching and served in the Army in Seoul, Korea.

During Marty's service, Judy became a bookkeeper at a food supply company. Marty returned home 18 months later to take a position at Royal Valley, where they stayed until 1977.

The family of six packed up to move to Highland, where Marty took a coaching and teaching position at Highland Community College for the next 29 years.

Marty was the head football coach at Highland Community College for 29 years and the head girls basketball coach for eight years. He is semi-retired, and Judy is the nutritionist and cook of the Doniphan County Meals on Wheels and Law Enforcement Center.

Marty still coaches a summer league basketball team as well as the Doniphan West Middle School girls basketball team. He is also an assistant coach for the Doniphan West High School football team.

Judy loves to cook, play games and spend time with her grandchildren.

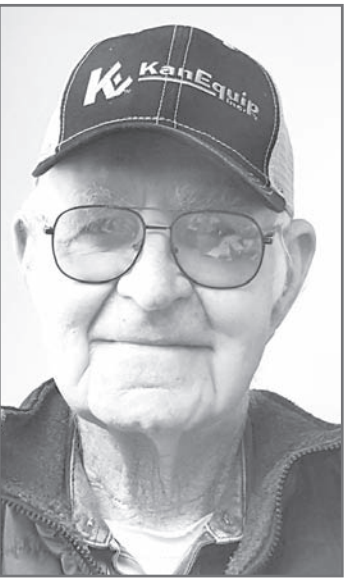

Marty and Judy are active members of the Highland Christian Church, where Marty is a board member. They both love to travel, which they get a lot of since they don't miss one of their grandchildren's games.

The couple's children will host a reception in their honor from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on June 10 at the Highland Community Building.

There will be a cupcake tower with a gold embellished cake topper, and the tables will be covered in gold satin cloths with cupcake towers as centerpieces. There will also be black screens covering the walls with gold-framed pictures hanging from floor to ceiling. A picture backdrop will be available for all guests to partake in for a photo opportunity to commemorate the celebration.

The couple requests no gifts.

SCHOOL NEWS

Daily races remembered at SHS

By Alena Pfrang
WHS Student Correspondent

Back in the 1960s, Sabetha High School used to have some of the fastest quarter-mile runners. The high school boys would literally race for food during lunch time. Of course, everyone received lunch, but it was a matter of speed as to whether one got second helpings or not.

This daily event occurred at the former Sabetha High School, which is now the Big Brothers Big Sisters (BIGGS) building on Main Street in Sabetha. David Pfrang, class of 1970, recently shared his story.

During this time, lunch was served at the elementary school in Sabetha. Therefore, students had to travel four blocks in order to eat. Back then, lunch wasn't just the time to eat; it was also the time to race.

Before lunch there was a study hall for the whole high school. As soon as the bell rang, the doors of the old high school burst open to reveal about three hundred students desperate to get their lunch.

To get to the cafeteria, some of the students would sprint a quarter of a mile down Oregon Street. Because the arrival of all of the students was overwhelming, lunch became hectic. There was always a teacher monitor giving out numbers to the students as they came in.

"I was always averaging positions nine through twelve on good days," Pfrang says looking back. The first ones to come were the first ones to be served any available second helpings.

Additionally, these high school boys would do anything to be the winner. Cheating was very common in these lunchtime races. During the study hall before lunch, the boys were already planning ahead as to what they could do to gain an advantage in the competition for food. Seeing as the study hall class was located on the second floor, being on the ground floor was definitely a great advantage.

"All the excuses used were like timing bathroom breaks, going to the library and going to your locker just so you could get down on the bottom floor so you can take off," Pfrang recalls. "People would get so desperate. One kid even jumped out of a window from the second floor. However, that kid never did it again."

Another way that the Sabetha High School boys gained the upper hand in the relay was by literally pushing and shoving each other into hedgerows surrounding the Oregon Street houses.

"One day, I got lucky and the bell rang just as I was by the front door," Pfrang said. "I beat everyone. I mean I was motivated to get down there as fast as I could because I was number one. Crossing that last street, I started to celebrate thinking 'I am the champion!' Then I go up to the teacher and he hands me the number three. I remember thinking, 'What the heck is this?' I found out the two kids in front of me had jumped in a car with somebody they knew. That's how they got down there so fast. That's the closest I ever came to being number one."

The desperate competitors didn't stop for the cars; the cars stopped for them. Since there were many intersections between the high school and the grade school, the male students would leap over cars or jump onto vehicle hoods and trunks to try and catch a free ride to the cafeteria.

The walk back from lunch was much more relaxed. After all, there was no hurry to get back to the school. The first ones to arrive at lunch were the last ones to arrive at the school because of the second helpings of food. On snowy days, there were snowball fights on the journey back to class. Pfrang remembers, "My class was the champion of snowball fights, mostly because there were more of us."

All in all, these ultimate races were unforgettable for Pfrang. From shoving other students into hedgerows and catching free rides on random vehicles to making up excuses to go downstairs, there was always that determination to get the first servings of food at lunch.

"At that time, we always had the top quarter-milers and distance runners in the league because we had to run for our food five days a week. Even if it rained or snowed, nothing stopped us from running down that street," Pfrang recalls. "Then the new Sabetha High School was built in 1970, ending the 'ultimate race.' It's just amazing how things have changed."

Spring concert held at Wetmore

By Jossie Shumaker
WHS Student Correspondent

On Tuesday, May 2, Wetmore School hosted its high school/middle school spring concert to a packed house.

First, the middle school band played "My Heart Will Go On," "Canterbury Overture" and "Power Rock." Then, the high school band took the stage playing "The Chronicles of Narnia," "Novena" and "Fun, Fun, Fun."

Seth Shumaker then played "Domination" solo on his guitar. Although the crowd was impressed, Shumaker felt his performance could use some improvement.

"With the time I put into the piece, you think I could've done better," he said.

The middle school choir was next and sang "September," "Yesterday" and "Meet Me In The Middle." Finally, the high school choir ended the night with "If Heaven Wasn't So Far Away," "Amie, That's My Job" and "Love Is An Open Door."

High school choir member Mariah Ramirez feels that the concert was a success.

"I think the concert went well and the crowd enjoyed the songs we sang," Ramirez said.

The choirs and the bands are under the direction of music teacher Seth Stiers.

Firefighter's Daughter
By Samantha Wilson

Dad, mom, Kaylee and I are all sitting in the living room messing around on our phones and computers. The clock chimes six times. Shortly after the tones, we hear additional tones from the scanner; Kaylee and I look at each other with widening eyes because we know there is a page about to be announced.

"We have a 10-49 at the intersection of Highway 75 and 266th road, car versus semi," a voice announces over the scanner.

My dad freezes, listening to see if he needs to go. My sister and I both get excited because this is a chance to go with our dad, but yet we know what could happen and what we could end up seeing if we go.

"Sam, come here and sit down."

"Ugh, okay."

"Don't ever make me be the one to cut you out of a smashed car."

"All right, love you."

"Love you too, dad."

As a firefighter's daughter, this is a conversation I have with my dad not just once a year, but multiple times a year. I do not just have this conversation only when a young teen dies – but all the time no matter the age of the person or the damage that was done at the scene. During my 16 years, I've seen many car accidents, people getting cut out of cars and people calling their loved ones with tragic news.

It is strange to think that a phone could cause this kind of damage. A phone is just metal, plastic and glass. How can these materials hurt anyone? Texting is an addiction; people are on their phones constantly regardless of where they are. Phones have the power to ruin relationships and destroy time with family and friends.

People might only check their phones at red lights, stop signs, while waiting for someone to turn, in construction zones and maybe even while in a drive-through. Surprisingly, checking phones in those areas is actually dangerous. The driver's foot could slip off the brake causing him or her to go forward into the other car if that person were not paying attention because of texting.

Some of my family members are construction workers. It is so important to pay attention to the road and not phones in construction work zones. I don't want to find out that my grandpa got hit by a driver who was on a phone. My dad doesn't want to get his father-in-law out from under a vehicle then help get the driver (who caused the wreck by texting) out of the vehicle while trying to hide his emotions.

Snapchats from boyfriends can wait. Facebook notifications from best friends can wait. The text or call from parents can wait; they would want you to wait. The skip on Spotify, Pandora or music app can wait. The retweet from Channing Tatum can wait. Everything can wait. Everyone can wait to see if you made it safely to your destination. If they can't wait, then they can't wait to put your life in danger.

Take the pledge to keep your mind on the road, not on your phone, at ItCanWait.com reported, took a 1-0 lead in the first inning versus Holton and then exploded for seven runs on six hits in the second inning when it sent 11 batters in a row to the plate.

In the bottom of the third inning, Holcomb scored four more runs on three hits when it sent eight batters to the plate.

In the fourth inning, Holcomb added four more runs on two hits, two walks, two hit-by-pitch batters and a fielder's choice when it sent seven batters to the plate.

The game was declared won by Holcomb by run-rule when the team scored its 15th run in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Holton freshman pitcher Cody Mulroy started the game for Holton and pitched into the third inning, when he was relieved by senior pitcher Brady Forrester with two runners on and no outs.

Forrester finished the third inning for the Wildcats and faced four batters in the bottom of the fourth inning. At that point, Forrester was relieved by senior Blaine Lester.

The Wildcats could not get their bats going in this game. The team went three-up and three-down in each of the four innings, sending just 12 batters total to the plate.

University of Kansas baseball recruit Conner VanCleave – a 6-7, 220-pound pitcher and first baseman for Holcomb, who entered the game with a top nationally ranked high school batting average of .823, had a dominant game on the mound and in the batter's box. VanCleave, as starting pitcher for Holcomb, pitched two innings, struck out four batters and got two other batters to ground out with 20 total pitches. At the plate, VanCleave batted 3 for 3 with a walk and 5 RBI and went to bat three times when his team had the bases loaded.

Science Center is open this weekend

By Mike Ford,
observatory director

Banner Creek Science Center and Observatory will be open to the public on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, May 26-28, beginning at 8 p.m., it has been reported.

Doors will open at 7:30 p.m. with a program beginning at 8 p.m. Entitled "Journey Into Darkness," the program talks about the upcoming total solar eclipse in northeast Kansas on Aug. 21, 2017.

If skies are clear, the observatory will be opened to view Jupiter and some of the nice springtime galaxies and star clusters.

Solar eclipse glasses will be available for sale for $2 per pair as well as eclipse maps.

Admission is free, but donations are always welcomed.

All sales of eclipse related items also help benefit Banner Creek Science Center and Observatory to help fund programs for the schools and communities.

Edna Berridge of Holton was one of many who visited Holton Cemetery on Thursday afternoon to decorate the graves of family members and friends who served in the military. Here, Berridge placed flowers at the grave of her father, Scott Berridge, who fought with the U.S. Army's Company B, 137th Infantry Regiment, 69th Brigade, 35th Division during World War I and earned a Purple Heart.

New developments in Ewing cases reported

New developments have arisen in the case of a Holton man who has been charged with sexual offenses against five different women and the possession of pornographic materials reportedly involving minors, it has been reported in Jackson County District Court.

In the latter case, Jacob Ewing, 22, recently charged with 13 counts of sexual exploitation of a child after a search of Ewing's cellular telephone and computer reportedly turned up as many images or videos of alleged child pornography, will face a preliminary hearing on those charges on July 27, it was reported.

The upcoming hearing was scheduled during a Thursday preliminary status hearing in district court. According to the new charges, Ewing allegedly viewed child pornography in October and November of 2014 and in January and July of 2015. Kansas law prohibits the promotion or possession of such images and videos where the subject being filmed is under the age of 18.

In his ruling allowing the pornographic material to be used as evidence. "This evidence is relevant and its probative value is not outweighed by the potential for undue prejudice."

Special prosecutor Jacqui Spradling, who alleged that Ewing watched violent pornographic videos for four hours a day, listed as possible evidence information from 10 such videos that Spradling said could be used as evidence against Ewing. Marek said seven of the videos were admissible as evidence in the recent ruling.

Ewing, who was acquitted of child sex charges in an April trial, will also face trials in August and October. He currently remains in custody at the Jackson County Detention Center.
