Chamber Hall of Fame

Knouft 'surprised' by HOF honor

By Brian Sanders

Ask many people in Holton what they think of when the name of Floye Knouft is mentioned, and they'll say, "The Dump."

But Knouft — one of the four 2020 Holton/Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Hall of Fame inductees — has come to be known for more than her work at the Hamburger Inn, the oldest continuously-operating restaurant in Holton's history, which she and her late husband Donald owned and operated for nearly a quarter of a century.

"Everybody's deserving of it," Knouft said of her Hall of Fame honor. "But I was real surprised when they called me."

Her many investments in the community, whether through her work at the Hamburger Inn or with various civic and church organizations, have earned her that honor, her son Mark said.

"I think the family was more excited about it than she was," Mark joked, prompting a few laughs from Floye as well.

A lifelong resident of Jackson County, Floye was born at home in the Buck's Grove community of western Jackson County, where she was raised.

"They had a school and a

church out there," she said. "The church is still operating."

After graduating from school, she taught in a one-room school for a few years before she met her husband, Donald, a Holton High School graduate who grew up on a farm between Circleville and Holton.

"We used to have community meetings," Floye said. "I think

County contributes $25K to new shelter

Fund-raising continues for building at Banner Reservoir in Dillner's honor

By Ali Holcomb

Funds continue to be raised for an enclosed community building at Banner Creek Reservoir, and the Jackson County Commission recently pledged the county's support for the project.

Members of Friends of Banner Creek are seeking a matching grant from the Kansas Land & Water Conservation Fund to build a 42-foot by 60-foot multipurpose building on the north side of the reservoir.

Deb Dillner, a member of the Friends of Banner Creek Reservoir board of directors, asked the commissioners on Monday for a letter of support from the county for the grant application.

The climate controlled multipurpose building is expected to include a kitchen with a refrigerator, oven and sink, bathrooms that will be accessible from inside and outside the building, a large meeting room and an area for storage.

The proposed location of the building is on the north side of the reservoir just south of the dump station, it was reported.

Once built, the building will be maintained by the county, and the county will collect the rental fees, according to Lu Griffiths, Banner Creek Reservoir director.

"It'll be good for the park," Griffiths said.

The commissioners agreed to write a letter of support for the project and have discussed allocating an estimated $25,000 in county funds for the project that would specifically be used for the construction of a storm shelter in the basement of the building, but no official action has been taken to allocate county funds. There is currently no such shelter at the reservoir.

"This building will be used a lot, but we want to sure that the money the county gives goes towards the storm shelter," Commissioner Janet Zwonitzer said. "We think it's a great project, and we support it."

Griffiths asked that the building include a walkout basement so it's handicap accessible.

So far, $37,000 in private funds have been raised for the project through multiple Memorial Day and Labor Day breakfasts, memorial walks and runs and other fund-raisers, Dillner said.

"Our community has been very supportive of the project," Dillner said.

Additional fund-raising opportunities are planned for 2020, including a special dinner and an event near Valentine's Day, Dillner said.

If awarded, the Kansas Land & Water Conservation Fund grant will double the funds raised by the FBC board so far, it

Christmas Store to open Friday

By Brian Sanders

This coming Friday, Dec. 13, 168 families, including 300 children and 90 senior citizens and disabled adults, will go to Holton First Baptist Church to participate in the Jackson County Ministerial Alliance's annual Christmas Store, according to event organizer Jennifer Ingels.

Plenty of donations of gift items, groceries, toiletries and other items have been donated toward this year's event, in which gifts and essential items are distributed to qualifying families and individuals who need a helping hand during the holiday season, Ingels said.

"We're only looking for funding now, if people still want to give," she added.

This year's Christmas Store has benefited greatly from a $2,500 donation from the United Way of Greater Topeka, Ingels said. UWGT made a similar donation for last year's Christmas Store, which served 320 children and 76 seniors and disabled adults, it was reported.

Local businesses and organizations that have so far made contributions to this year's Christmas Store include Wilson Tire, GNBank, The Williams Company, Bell Plumbing, Brahma Excavating, Complete Car Care, Denison State Bank, Mercer Funeral Home, Foster Ford, Holton Livestock Exchange, White Law Office, the Tourist Club and the Happy Hour Club.

The Ministerial Alliance has been involved with the Christmas Store since 1990, when the Salvation Army approached JCMSA for assistance with a

Everything Dems want to hang on Trump they've already done themselves

The impeachment proceedings against President Donald Trump, led by Democrats in the U.S. House of Representatives, have more to do with politics and Congressional corruption than anything President Trump did or didn't do.

The Democrats do not have a strong candidate to challenge President Trump, as evidenced by the recent Democrat candidates' TV debates.

In fact, one of the Democrat candidates claiming to be his party's front runner - former Vice President Joe Biden - is also, interesting enough, at the center of the impeachment proceedings against Trump.

The Congressional Democrats want to figuratively hang President Trump for asking the Ukrainian president to investigate whether Biden did anything wrong while he was the vice president.

But at the same time, the Congressional Democrats do not seem to grasp the fact that, in a news video, then VP Biden openly bragged that he had threatened to withhold $2 billion in foreign aid to Ukraine unless the Ukraine government fired a prosecutor who was investigating the Ukrainian energy company that his son (Hunter Biden) benefitted from with a board of director's position.

Earlier attempts by the Congressional Democrats to stop President Trump from having a successful first term of office failed miserably.

No evidence was ever found, for example, that Trump (prior to being elected president) ever seriously asked Russia president Vladimir Putin to investigate Democrat presidential candidate Hillary Clinton or that Trump colluded with Russia to meddle in the last presidential election.

On the other hand, there is plenty of evidence that's been discovered proving candidate

Clinton and the Democrats paid foreign operatives to interfere with the election.

Trump would not have been joking about Hillary's classified emails possibly being intercepted by our country's adversaries if it had not already been proven that Clinton had a private server in her residential basement to save all of her phone, text and email records and that private server was not secure - greatly increasing the likelihood that Clinton's classified emails were hacked by foreign agents.

Federal law states very clearly that allowing classified information to be stolen from a person's computer is a serious offense punishable with a prison sentence, and it does not matter whether a person intended to allow this to happen, or whether it was an accident. Yet Clinton has never been charged with any federal crimes.

It seems every time the Congressional Democrats lodge some complaint against Trump, their party's leaders turn out to be the real law breakers.

The real problem with Trump, Congressional Democrats are learning, is that the longer he stays in office the more problems he is making for them - and their shady ways of governing that tend to enrich them and their families.

So the Congressional Democrats want to impeach Trump or at least keep him so busy defending himself that he has no time to expose them for what they are - crooked.

Historians say there has never been an impeachment proceeding against a U.S. president that is so partisan and political.

Trump supporters are still not convinced that he did anything wrong. In fact, Democrat congresspeople leading these impeachment proceedings are looking more and more sophomoric every day. David Powls

Without compromise, govt. does not work

By Lee Hamilton

To me, it was a thunderclap. Years ago, when I was in Congress, we were in the midst of a tense, contentious debate. Members had gotten irritated, levying charges back and forth and tempers were rising.

It was starting to look like we might just go off the rails. Then one member stood up, asked for our attention, and said to us, "Let's remember: trust is the coin of the realm."

His statement at that moment hit me broadside: If we were to have any hope of progress, we had to have some faith in one another - even our opponents.

Apparently, other members of Congress came to that same realization. The debate got back on track with less acrimony and mean-spiritedness.

It was a lesson I've never forgotten. Our system rests on all sorts of values: open-mindedness, an informed citizenry, honesty, civility, competence. But at its heart, representative democracy is about how we resolve our differences in order to move the country forward, and if the parties lack trust, then it becomes hugely more difficult to do so. In many ways, trust is at the center of this democratic experiment.

A representative democracy rests on a straightforward premise: Because nothing gets done without others, whether in our communities or our Legislatures or in Congress, you have to have confidence in people and believe that they will do what they say they will do. Without that trust, you simply can't engage productively in negotiations, compromise, debate and all the mechanisms we use to resolve differences in our society.

As the country has grown bigger, more complex and more diverse in all sorts of ways, and as the changing media world has given us all our own echo chambers and undermined the shared sources of information on which we once relied, resolving conflict has become much tougher.

When we don't trust one another or don't trust one another's facts, reaching agreement and drafting laws becomes infinitely more difficult.

Governing becomes fraught with complexity, as efforts to implement and enforce laws, regulations and standards come under constant fire. The result is that often, cynicism, suspicion and lack of confidence in the system hamstringing our democracy.

To be sure, it's pretty much impossible to deal with people you don't know well without wondering about their integrity, honesty and motivations.

It's what you've got to work through when you're trying to resolve differences. Healthy skepticism about adversaries is natural and appropriate, but you can't let it override everything and bring progress to a screeching halt.

Both nationally and internationally, we manage this by striving to tie things down: by law, by regulation, by treaty and above all by verification. Nonetheless, some measure of trust is required. And when it's missing, well, I would argue that one reason our government no longer works as well as it once did and should now, is that our trust in one another has diminished.

So what can we do about this? In the end, I believe that building, or rebuilding, trust is both a human and a systems issue.

On the large scale, government has to be effective at meeting the needs of citizens, delivering the goods, services and protections that people expect.

But I also think it's vital that elected officials - especially of opposing parties - spend time with one another, learning to see one another as human beings who all, regardless of party, care deeply about the country.

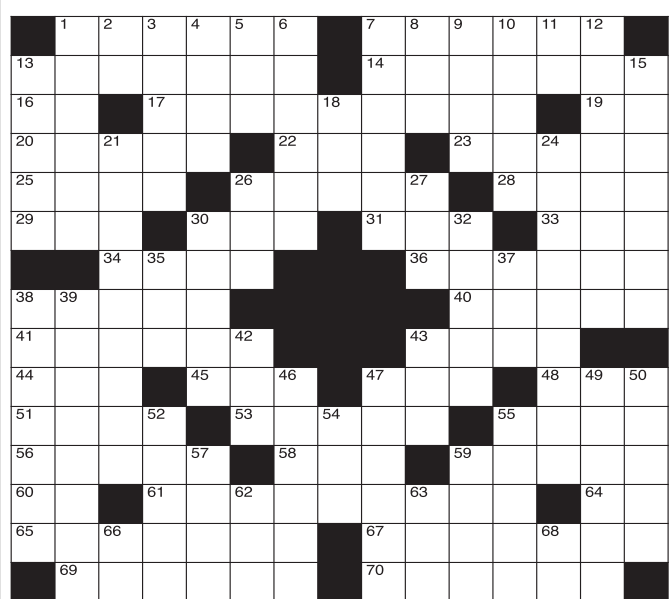

Similarly, the more ordinary people participate regularly in organizations, political parties and even ad hoc efforts to improve their communities and states, the more likely they are to learn the fundamental importance of trust.

In short, the more interaction you have with others, even with your adversaries, the more common ground you can find, and the more confidence you can have in them - and the more likely you can move forward.

The fact is: In a system that depends on negotiation, compromise and cooperation to achieve our goals, finding ways to build trust is essential. Without it, our democracy simply won't work.

LETTER

Dear editor,
I recently wrote a letter to U.S. Sen. Jerry Moran asking if he was going to respect the rule of law as written or choose to blindly follow his party as instructed.

He - probably his staff - wrote back staying with the GOP talking points of how the Democrats were endlessly picking on poor (President) Donald (Trump).

Has not our leader invited the picking with his constant misbehavior?
The worst part of Sen. Moran's response came where he stated that because of (House Speaker Nancy) Pelosi, nothing was getting done in Washington.

This is outrageous. This lie was also broadcast on one of the local TV news stations as a quote from Rep. Susan Wagle.

How many bills are collecting dust on (Senate Chair) Mitch McConnell's desk? Election security for one, background checks for two. Many more, I'm sure.

And, by the way, no Democrat wants to take away your guns. We just want to stop selling more of them.

Anyone who thinks they need an assault rifle apparently doesn't trust our police and military to protect us. Also, if you have ever witnessed first hand what these weapons do to a human body, you would want them banned, except for military use.

October unemployment hits historic low

Across Kansas, unemployment in October fell to the lowest statewide rate in four decades, while in Jackson County, the jobless rate took a slight dip from September to October.

Preliminary estimates reported recently by the Kansas Department of Labor (KDOL) and the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) show a seasonally adjusted unemployment rate of 3.1 percent in October. This was down from 3.2 percent in September and down from 3.3 percent in October 2018.

"Kansans can recognize two important milestones this month. The unemployment rate fell to 3.1 percent in October, the lowest rate in 40 years. April 1979 was the last month the unemployment rate was 3.1 percent," said Labor Secretary

Delia Garcia. "Additionally, October established a record high level in the number of Kansans working."

Seasonally adjusted job estimates indicate total Kansas nonfarm jobs decreased by 500 from September. Private sector jobs, a subset of total nonfarm jobs, decreased by 700 from the previous month.

"Total nonfarm jobs in Kansas have increased by 1.3 percent compared to last October. The state is continuing to show growth over the year, despite job declines over the month," said Labor Economist, Emilie Doerksen. "The largest losses were concentrated in the manufacturing industry, which was impacted by national strike activity."

Since October 2018, Kansas gained 18,100 seasonally adjusted total nonfarm jobs and 13,600 private sector jobs.

In Jackson County, 170 members of the county's 7,394-member work force filed for unemployment benefits during October, resulting in an unemployment rate of 2.3 percent. That was slightly less than September's 2.4 percent and well below the previous October's 2.7 percent.

Jackson County is also part of the Topeka metropolitan service area (MSA), which saw its unemployment rate inching upward, from 2.8 percent in September to 2.9 percent in October. The MSA's unemployment rate last October was 3.2 percent.

Other area counties and their unemployment rates for October, September and October of 2018 included:

- Atchison County: 5.2 percent in October, 5 percent in September and 3.9 percent in October 2018.
- Brown County: 2.6 percent in October, 2.6 percent in September and 2.6 percent in October 2018.

ber 2018.

- Doniphan County: 2.9 percent in October, 2.7 percent in September and 3 percent in October 2018.

- Jefferson County: 2.6 percent in October, 2.4 percent in September and 2.9 percent in October 2018.

- Marshall County: 2.3 percent in October, 2.3 percent in September and 2.1 percent in October 2018.

Christmas Store...

"Toy Store" that allowed qualifying parents to "shop" for two or three toys for each of their children and receive a food voucher that enabled families to purchase food for a Christmas dinner, it was reported.

After the Salvation Army requested that JCMA appoint a chairperson and subcommittees to head up the store, it was decided that JCMA would work in conjunction with NEK-CAP, which would serve as the "umbrella" organization for the event.

JCMA started a "Christmas Store" fund account at Denison State Bank in 2010, and in 2013, Jackson County Kid's Closet took over coat distribution that had previously been part of the event, it was reported.

Monetary donations may be sent to First Baptist Church, 404 Juniper Dr., Holton, KS 66436; or hand-delivered to Ingels at the U.S. Post Office in Holton.

Cleaning products

By Nancy C. Nelson

Family Life

What's the number one cleaning product we have in our homes?

According to American Cleaning Institute's 2019 American Cleaning Survey, 98 percent of households regularly stock cleaning products at home. That's great news because clean = happy and healthy.

Cleaning the surfaces in our homes and our possessions not only keeps them in good condition, but also removes dirt, germs, allergens, dust, mold and bacteria that can make us sick.

What's the number one product that is stocked in 83 percent of our homes? According to the survey, the answer is a toilet or bathroom cleaner (which makes sense since bathrooms are one of the most used rooms in the house).

Other things we usually have at home at all times are multi-purpose spray cleaners (77 percent), window cleaners (74 percent), multi-purpose surface wipes (62 percent), wood or furniture polish (49 percent) and carpet cleaners (45 percent). What other products do you have in your cleaning closet?

Laundry Solution:

When To Wash It

The sniff test may tell you if you wore enough deodorant but doesn't always let you know when you need to wash your clothes. What you do, the fabric type, the wear and the weather all play deciding factors.

The American Cleaning Institute offers tips to help determine if it's time to wash those bed sheets, jeans, shirts, socks and underwear.

Here's how often you should wash some of the more common items that need to be laundered:

- Jeans: After wearing them three times.
- Coats: Once or twice per season.
- Sheets: Wash once every two weeks.
- Towels: After every three to five normal uses.

There are a few exceptions. One is whites, which should be washed after each wear, as they are prone to discoloration.

Emerald ash borer's presence confirmed in Jackson County

The Kansas Department of Agriculture, along with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has confirmed the presence of emerald ash borer (EAB) in Jackson County, it was reported.

On Nov. 13, EAB adults and larvae were recovered from a girdled tree trap near Denison by KDA in cooperation with local citizens, USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service's Plant Protection and Quarantine (USDA-APHIS-PPQ) and the Kansas Forest Service. KDA sent the specimens to a laboratory with USDA-APHIS-PPQ, which confirmed KDA's findings on Nov. 22.

Emerald ash borer, a pest of ash trees native to Asia, was first discovered in North America near Detroit, Mich., in summer 2002. Since that time, the pest has killed millions of ash trees across the U.S. It was first identified in Kansas in 2012 and has been identified in several counties in northeast Kansas in the last seven years.

Trees become infested with EAB when adult beetles lay eggs on the bark, which hatch into larvae that bore tunnels into the tree. EAB appears to prefer trees under stress but is capable of killing perfectly healthy trees.

KDA encourages anyone in northeast Kansas to monitor their ash trees for signs of EAB, and to be vigilant in not transporting any wood or tree materials from ash trees out of your county, including firewood, nursery stock, green lumber and composted or un-composted chips.

If you have ash trees on your property and would like assistance in identifying pests or preventing them, please contact the Kansas Forest Service or your local arborist for information and advice.

After confirmation by KDA and USDA-APHIS-PPQ, Kansas will expand the EAB quarantine, currently in place in Atchison, Doniphan, Douglas, Jefferson, Johnson, Leavenworth, Shawnee and Wyandotte counties, to include Jackson County.

If you believe any of your ash trees may have the pest and you live outside the quarantine area, please notify KDA immediately at (785) 564-6698 or kda.ppw@ks.gov.

KDA is committed to serving Kansas farmers, ranchers and agribusinesses, and to protecting the state's natural resources. All Kansans will play an important role in monitoring for EAB. To learn the most current information on EAB in Kansas, visit agriculture.ks.gov/EAB. To learn more about EAB, visit www.emeraldashborer.info

Cardinal basketball teams off to good BB start

■ Wetmore to host Hanover on Friday

Wetmore High School's Cardinal basketball teams are off to a good 2-1 overall start after finishing in second place at the Blue Valley Preseason Tournament this past weekend at Randolph.

Both the Cardinal boys and girls racked up wins against Twin Valley League foes Linn and Onaga to start the tournament before falling in the final game to the host school, another Twin Valley League team.

On Thursday night, the tournament opened with the Cardinal boys battling Linn and coming out on top 56-48, led by Braden Henry with 19 points and Kael McQueen with 18. Trent Beier led the Bulldogs with 21 points.

The Cardinal girls also emerged victorious from a battle with Linn that evening, taking advantage of a 10-2 fourth quarter to win 36-30 on the strength of Alyssa Bloom's 14 points and 10 from Kinzie Strathman. Linn's Kaylee Oehmke led her team's scoring with 10 points.

Friday night saw the Cards sweeping Onaga, with the Wetmore boys more than doubling up the Buffaloes' score in a 49-24 win. Henry and McQueen led the scoring for the Cardinals with 13 points each, while Onaga's Ca. Meyers led his team with 12.

On the girls' side, Wetmore shut down Onaga in a low-scoring, 33-24 game that saw Osterhaus leading with 14 points, followed by Strathman with 11 for the Lady Cards. Onaga was led offensively by L. Krohn with eight points.

Both Cardinal teams took some good momentum into Saturday night's tournament final against Blue Valley, but

Cobra basketball teams fall at Winchester to Jeff County North

By Brian Sanders

Jackson Heights High School's Cobra varsity basketball teams opened their 2019-20 season with losses on the road against Jefferson County North, the Lady Cobras losing 62-53 and the Cobra boys losing 59-28 at Winchester.

Boys Head Coach Chris Brown said his team's game against the Chargers got off to a good start, with the Chargers only outscoring the Cobras by two points in the first frame.

After that, however, it was all JCN, with the Chargers outscoring Heights 13-7 in the second quarter and going on a 23-5 tear in the third.

"We had a bad stretch at the end of the second quarter and the start of the third quarter that cost us," Coach Brown said. "A combination of turnovers and poor shooting cost us."

Brown, however, is hopeful that the loss will not set the tone for the entire season.

"We knew we were a work in progress going into the game, and we're still focused on improving every day," he said. "We are mostly working on handling pressure and finding a way to take better shots."

Heights junior Dylan Thompson led the Cobras in scoring, picking up 11 points including one trey. Defensively, Brown cited the "solid" work of seniors Cable Wareham and Joel Kennedy, noting that the latter got into foul trouble and was limited on the defensive side that night.

The Chargers were led offensively by Ryan Feldkamp and Emmett Jobbins, each picking up 14 points on the way to the win, while Trent Fowler added 12.

The Lady Cobras' season-opening loss on Friday was attributed by Head Coach Dan Shupe to a number of factors.

"We got into foul trouble and went to a couple of rotations that we hadn't practiced much," Coach Shupe said of his team's 62-53 loss. "Plus, JCN was shooting the ball very well, at 50 percent from the field, so that made it difficult on our defensive end."

Cobra teams travel to Horton on Tuesday

The Lady Cobras got out to a 13-12 first-quarter lead, but that lead disappeared in the second quarter when the Lady Chargers went on a 21-5 tear, taking the lead to 33-18 at intermission.

In the second half, the Lady Cobras battled to catch up, outscoring JCN 24-14 in the final frame, but came up just short.

"The girls played with a lot of heart, considering the adversity we were in with the foul trouble and trying to work from behind," Shupe said.

Leading the way offensively for JHHS was senior Kylie Dohl, who posted 21 points, including two successful shots from behind the three-point line, and junior Amaya Marlatt added 14 points. Senior Jodi White aided the team defensively with four steals, while Marlatt picked up eight rebounds and Dohl grabbed seven.

Four Lady Chargers went double-digits in scoring, including Madison Vaught with 18, Josie Weishaar with 14, Kinsey Schneider with 13 and Downing with 11.

Up next for the Cobras is a Tuesday night road trip to Horton, which split its season opener with Valley Falls this past Friday — Horton's girls won 62-40, while the Valley Falls boys won 68-18. Shupe expects a tough battle from a Lady Charger team that returned most of last year's players, while Brown expects the Charger boys to play "intense defense" against his team.

GUEST COMMENTARY: Ohio No. 1 for bad science

By John R. Schrock
Ohio just took the Science Stupidity Award away from Idaho.

Back in February of 2015, Idaho representative Vito Barbieri was listening to nearly three hours of testimony on a state bill banning doctors from prescribing any abortion-inducing medication through a new telemedicine system. Barbieri gained worldwide infamy for his anatomical ignorance when he asked if a woman could just swallow a small camera so doctors could conduct a remote gynecological exam.

But that represented just one male legislator's ignorance. Ohio has now taken first place in science stupidity by their Legislature considering Ohio HB413, a bill requiring doctors to "re-implant an ectopic pregnancy" into a woman's uterus. A doctor who fails to do this would face charges of "abortion murder." Such a procedure does not exist in medical science and for good reason.

An ectopic pregnancy occurs when an egg is fertilized and implants outside of the body of the uterus. The Fallopian tubes are open-ended. A sperm usually fertilizes an egg and after three or four days of development while drifting down the Fallopian tubes, the embryo usually implants on the inside wall of the uterus.

But an embryo can implant earlier alongside the Fallopian tube or even attach to the outside of an intestine. Thus the term "ectopic" refers to any such outside-the-uterine-body implantation. The further from the uterine wall, the more dangerous the pregnancy. And the less chance of survival.

The uterus is a marvelous structure that provides the mother's portion of the placenta. It is lined with blood vessels that clamp off upon childbirth so the mother does not bleed to death. Implantations outside the uterus stimulate blood vessel growth from other tissues that do not have this ability to clamp off.

There is little chance of the fetus surviving without the special uterine placenta. And there is a very high risk of the mother bleeding to death if there is any tear.

And finally, by the time a mother discovers she is pregnant with an ectopic pregnancy, it is not possible to surgically remove this ectopic complex and get the uterine wall to form a normal placenta.

But this Ohio decision was not about science but political extremism, hoping to force a legal showdown in the Supreme Court. Writing laws counter to solid medical science is probably not the best way to win.

This widespread ignorance was common in the 1800s. That is what a young nurse named Margaret Sanger faced when she attended poor women who had too many children and not enough food to feed them.

Although Sanger (1879-1966) was well off, she had compassion for these women who knew that another baby meant more hunger for their family. There were almost no methods known to prevent pregnancy except abstinence. And Sanger worked under a male-doctor dominated healthcare system that would not allow advising married mothers to "just say no."

When Sanger wrote brochures — describing ways to prevent pregnancy and discussing gonorrhea and syphilis — and mailed them, the U.S. postal censor Anthony Comstock charged her with multiple counts of violating federal statutes for distributing "literature of illegal character." Her actions changed public opinion and that era of Comstockery and postal censorship soon ended.

Sanger was a proponent of birth control and founded what would become Planned Parenthood. She fought for decades to get contraceptives approved. And she was instrumental in getting funding for the research that led to the birth control pill.

In spite of being demonized by anti-abortion groups today, Sanger was opposed to abortions. She had seen far too many deaths in her early nursing work that were due to back street abortions. In "Woman and the New Race," Sanger wrote: "While there are cases where even the law recognizes an abortion as justifiable if recommended by a physician, I assert that the hundreds of thousands of abortions performed in America each year are a disgrace to civilization."

In her book "Family Limitation," Sanger wrote: "No one can doubt that there are times when an abortion is justifiable but they will become unnecessary when care is taken to prevent conception. This is the only cure for abortions." Simply, with good sex education and available contraception, Sanger believed there would be no unwanted pregnancies and therefore no need for abortion.

Sanger succeeded in making contraceptives legal and available. But we have failed to provide sex education, as is clearly seen by our continual production of anatomically-ignorant legislators.

Washburn plans new law school bldg.

Washburn University's Board of Regents has approved plans to design and build a new home for its law school on the campus at the corner of 21st Street and Washburn Avenue in Topeka, it has been reported.

The current building was built in 1968 and has been updated several times, including the addition of the law clinic. But a 2010 study indicated that the building either needed to be expanded and completely overhauled or should be replaced. The cost of the new facility — on a premier location at one corner of the campus — is estimated at $33 million.

"After that study, we did preliminary estimates and initial planning," Washburn University President Jerry Farley said. "But since that time, there have been significant changes in legal education which required an update to the project scope."

One of the major changes, according to Farley, is in requirements for law schools from the American Bar Association. For instance, law school libraries were once required to have paper versions of all of the electronic resources. Updating that requirement means that law libraries can be much more efficient and considerably smaller.

"All across the country, law school enrollments have declined," Farley said. "As a result, law school classes have been smaller in recent years, and we needed to adjust the size of the building to make sure it is the right size for our projected enrollment."

The original plan was based on an enrollment of about 450 students, he said. Projections of smaller class sizes along with the innovative Third Year Anywhere program means that the right size for the building will be in the 300-to-325-student range.

"There has also been a significant change in the way we teach law students," Farley said. "There is a much stronger focus on technology in the legal profession, and we need to have a facility designed to properly prepare our graduates."

Modern legal education also requires extensive interaction between students and faculty. Even with significant additions, the current building would not provide the necessary facilities found in modern legal buildings, Farley said. What's more, the cost of such renovations would equal or exceed the cost of a new building.

The new building will be funded by a combination of university resources and private fund-raising. The ultimate $13 million from fund-raising will be the largest amount for a single project in Washburn history, it was reported.

Work on the plans is expected to begin immediately. No date for completion of the project has been set at this point.

Once the new building has been completed and occupied, the existing law building will be able to house other university programs and offices, it was reported.

Carry out scheduled executions, AG says

The U.S. Department of Justice should be allowed to carry out the scheduled executions of five federal death row inmates who have exhausted their appeals, Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt told the U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday. One of the inmates faces a federal death sentence involving crimes in Kansas.

In a legal brief filed Tuesday, Dec. 3, Schmidt and 13 other state attorneys general backed the Justice Department's request to allow the executions to proceed.

The scheduled executions have been blocked by a lower federal court, which found that a new Federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP) protocol for lethal-injections, which replaced the former three-drug procedure with a single drug, likely exceeds BOP's authority under federal law.

The Justice Department has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to intervene, and the state attorneys general supporting the Department argue that the single-dose protocol has been successfully implemented by several states and has survived constitutional challenges.

They also argue that both the government and crime victims have an interest in the finality and carrying out of just and lawful criminal sentences that have been upheld by appellate courts.

U.S. Attorney General William Barr announced in July that the Justice Department would schedule executions of federal inmates who have exhausted all appeals and whose convictions and death sentences have been affirmed. Before the lower-court injunction, the first execution was scheduled to occur Dec. 9.

One of the five inmates scheduled for execution is Wesley Ira Purkey, 67, of Lansing. Purkey was scheduled to be executed on Dec. 13 after being convicted in federal court in 2003 of the 1998 kidnapping, rape and murder of a 16-year-old Missouri girl in his Lansing home.

He was found guilty of the federal crime by a jury in the Western District of Missouri after having previously pleaded guilty in Kansas state court to the murder of 80-year-old Mary Ruth Bales of Kansas City.

69th annual meeting of SAKW set for Jan. 21-22 at Topeka

The State Association of Kansas Watersheds (SAKW) 69th annual meeting will be held in the Topeka Capitol Plaza Hotel on Jan. 21-22, 2020. The theme for this year's meeting is "Celebrating A Progressive Year, Planning For A Brighter Future."

Barb Oltjen, president of SAKW from Robinson, will preside over the meeting that will bring together representatives from the 74 watershed districts in Kansas, many state and federal agencies, organizations and individuals.

The SAKW 69th annual meeting will start off with a keynote address from Secretary of the Kansas Department of Agriculture, Mike Beam. Beam will reflect on his first year in office and how production agriculture was impacted by flooding rains and water resource management challenges.

Registered attendees will be shuttled to the State Capital for a two-hour meet and greet session to include a catered box lunch for and with state legislators, it was reported.

The second day of the conference will begin with the second keynote address from Connie Owen, newly appointed chair of the Kansas Water Authority. Owen will address her view as to the many water issues confronting Kansas and what the future might hold for Kansas' water demands, challenges on how to address water storage depletion in federal reservoirs and the depletion of the Ogallala Aquifer out in western Kansas.

Activity reports from several agencies, Kansas Water Office, Kansas Department of Agriculture's Division of Water Resources and Conservation and the Natural Resources Conservation Service will be presented throughout the conference.

Representation by City of Manhattan employee Chad Bunger will cover the past, present and future flooding challenges surrounding Wildcat Creek as it cuts a path across the southwest section of Manhattan.

Trey Lam, executive director of the Oklahoma Conservation Commission, will give a perspective on how conservation programs are administered in that state.

A panel composed of Kevin (Gus) Gustafson, NRCS state engineer; Joe Scannell, U.S. Engineering Solutions from Hartford, Conn.; and Terry Medley, KDA/DWR, will discuss the implementation of a program called Dam Watch in Kansas.

Information on annual meeting registration, motel reservations, resolution listings and the complete meeting agenda can be found on the SAKW website at www.sakw.org. Additional questions about the annual meeting can be directed to Herbert R. Graves Jr., SAKW executive director, 785-922-6664 or by email at sakwwatersheds@sbcglobal.net

CHRISTMAS PET SAFETY TIPS

Christmas is a wonderful time of year – but not always for your pets! Here are some tips for keeping your pets out of danger.

FOOD TO AVOID GIVING YOUR PET

1. Alcoholic Beverages
2. Chocolate (highly toxic to pets)
3. Moldy or spoiled foods
4. Chicken or turkey bones (they can splinter)
5. Fatty foods (including meat, cheese and dairy)

PET HAZARDS AROUND THE CHRISTMAS TREE

1. Fallen Christmas tree needles are very sharp and can easily get stuck in your pet's paws or throat. Sweep tree needles up regularly or fence off your Christmas tree.
2. Cover electric cords so your pet can't chew on them and electrocute himself.
3. Try using fairy lights that don't flash as some pets get scared of flashing lights.
5. Tree decorations can cause a nasty accident or be fatal to your pet. Cats and young pets especially, will show great interest in hanging decorations. Try to use unbreakable ornaments and nothing too small. Avoid tinsel or ribbons as these are dangerous to the gastrointestinal tract if swallowed.

OTHER CHRISTMAS DANGERS TO PETS

1. Holly, mistletoe, lilies, poinsettia, amaryllis and yew trees are poisonous to pets and must be kept well out of reach.
2. Remember loud noises, such as Christmas crackers, balloons, and champagne bottles will panic your pet.
3. Some pets are not accustomed to lots of people in their space so consider putting your pets in another room or kennel when company comes for the holiday.
4. If traveling for the holiday make sure your pets have a collar with your information or their microchip number in case they become separated from your family while away from home.

Kientz Corner

By Beverly Ramey Newell

On Dec. 1, the first Sunday of Advent, the Pleasant Hill United Methodist Church congregation opened its worship service by singing "Let There Be Peace On Earth."

The lighting of the first Advent candle, "hope," was performed by Bruce, Kerry and Barrett Lovewell. The congregation sang the first verse of "Light The Advent Candle."

The Christmas Eve-Eve service will be held at 7 p.m. on Dec. 23. The Christmas Eve service will be held at 5 p.m. on Dec. 24. The children's bell choir will perform at this service.

The birthdays for Dec. 1 through Dec. 7 were Shawn Herrick, Dec. 3; D.J. Knight, Dec. 4; Lori Rea, Dec. 6; and Christine Farmer, Dec. 7.

The anniversaries for the week were Steve and Marlene Schilts, Dec. 1; and Jim and Jeanetta Boughn, Dec. 3.

The concerns were prayers for June Jepson, Brady Smith, Tina Briscoe and Karen Nicolay.

The children's story was given by Kevin McDowell. He asked the children if they knew what the symbols of the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts were. They said no. He told them the scouts help people.

Kevin then asked the children how they get ready for Christmas. Some of the answers were putting up Christmas decorations, putting up a Christmas tree, baking cookies, making candy and buying and wrapping gifts.

Jesus promised that He would come again. We must be ready. Let us help people and love them. Give them a hug. Let us be prepared for Jesus when He comes again.

Barbara Hanson read the scriptures, Isaiah 2:1-5 and Matthew 24:36-44.

The sermon, "Are We There Yet: Peace," was given by the Rev. Hyun-Jin Cho. The communion elements were served by Pastor Jin, Annie McDowell, Billie Winsor, Elaine Worden and Gary and Betty Domer.

The closing hymn was "Silent Night, Holy Night." Those assisting with the service were Barbara Hanson, liturgist; Mary Smith, organist; Joy Jepson and Deb Mannell, sound system; Daryl Jepson, acolyte; John Wilson, song leader; and John and Linda Reed, Gary Slimmer and Daryl Jepson, usher team.

■ Floye Knouft...

that's where I met him." Floye and Donald were married in a double ceremony on Nov. 27, 1942, at the old Evangelical United Brethren (now Evangelical United Methodist) Church and honeymooned in Kansas City over the weekend.

"I was still teaching at the time, so I had to be back on Monday," Floye said.

The Knoufts returned to farm life and raised two sons, Mickey and Mark. Starting in about 1951, Donald worked for Harold "Shorty" Kaul at the Hamburger Inn — which came to be known as "The Dump" — to supplement his farm income.

"He worked there for seven years on the night shift," Floye said of Donald. "It stayed open until midnight."

The Knoufts decided to purchase "The Dump" from Kaul in 1958, and for 23 years, they kept it a successful business. After a car accidentally ran into the old stone building, they decided to build a new restaurant with a drive-through window — long believed to be the first in northeast Kansas — in 1971.

"It was very successful," Floye said. "I opened up in the morning, and my husband had the last shift at night."

"The Dump," which had been open since the 1920s, had its run of regular customers, including Holton High School students who would come in after games and townspeople after community events for a milkshake or a piece of pie, and in many instances, the restaurant would remain open until midnight.

"We had a carload of men who worked the second shift at Goodyear in Topeka, and they left their cars there and drove together to work," Floye said. "We already had the counter set up for them when they got back to Holton. They always wanted our chili."

"They always cleaned out what was left over from the day," Mark added. "They got off at 11 p.m., and we were here for them when they got back to town at 11:30."

In 1981, the Knoufts sold the Hamburger Inn to Leon and Mary Hall.

"Somebody made an offer, and they were kind of at the age where it kind of worked," Mark said. "It just seemed like a good fit."

The Halls kept it going until April of 1998, when it was sold to someone who did not keep the restaurant going. That put Mickey, a longtime dishwasher at the restaurant, out of work.

"I felt really bad about that, because Mickey always washed the dishes, and I always figured after I was gone, we could just walk up the street and have a good meal," Floye said.

Through the years, the Knoufts continued to help out with events and parades on Holton's Town Square, and Floye kept herself busy with several community organizations, including Holton Business Women, a group in which she served various leadership roles.

"I was the president at one time," she said. "I always thought it was a really nice organization for the women in our business community."

Floye was also busy with such groups as the Holton Community Hospital Auxiliary, the Jackson County Historical Society and the Caramel Club, as well as with several organizations within the EUM Church, which kept her busy into her 90s, after Donald's death in 1985.

She was also a staunch supporter of businesses in her hometown, knowing the importance of keeping small businesses open, particularly on the Square.

"It was necessary for me because we didn't want to get out of town," she said. "And you know who you were supporting."

Floye also was noted for her support for the arts, noting that good arts programs are beneficial to communities such as Holton, and she has enjoyed attending Holton Community Theatre productions when she is able.

"It's just the good things in life," she said.

In her 90s, Floye continued her volunteering ways, going with ladies from her church to volunteer at Medicalodges Jackson County, where she enjoyed calling bingo, and she still donated supplies, desserts and salads for bake sales, funeral dinners and other community events.

That ended a couple of years ago, when Floye decided that she could no longer put the effort into those things. But as she approaches the century mark, she noted that her family has been a strong source of support for whatever she does.

"I had a good family that supported me," she said. "They've helped me out with a lot of the ills and problems that I've had."

In addition to Floye Knouft, Deb Dillner, Diane Gross and Esther Ideker will be inducted into the Chamber Hall of Fame this coming February.

armed stand-off with Jackson County officers at a residence north of Holton. Each of the five counts of attempted capital murder has since been amended to a lesser charge of aggravated assault on a law enforcement officer, according to an amended complaint recently filed against Bohnenkemper in district court.

Thursday's hearing also covered the case involving an alleged Nov. 6, 2018 incident at the Jackson County Detention Center, in which Bohnenkemper, who was being held on the charges from the September 2018 incident, "allegedly became combative" toward a Jackson County deputy, another corrections officer and a Jackson County EMS employee.

In that incident, in which a deputy reportedly used a Taser to bring Bohnenkemper under control, Bohnenkemper was charged with two counts of assault on a law enforcement officer and one count of assault.

A day after the November 2018 incident, Bohnenkemper was transferred to Larned State Hospital to undergo a competency evaluation to determine whether he would be fit to stand trial. He was returned to the Jackson County Detention Center this past summer and recently deemed fit to stand trial.

Judge Marek said the Jan. 23 arraignment hearing would cover both of the cases against Bohnenkemper, adding that following any pleas entered by Bohnenkemper at that time, the court "may have to split ways on the two cases at that point."

was reported. The grant application deadline is April 1, and Dillner said board members hope to raise additional funds before then.

The Friends of Banner Creek board is expected to be notified in September if it's been awarded the grant. If the FBC board receives the funding, Griffiths said that dirt work for the building could begin that fall.

The project began in 2012 as the Fritz Dillner Memorial Community Building, and members of the Dillner family merged with the Friends of Banner Creek Foundation to form the Friends of Banner Creek board in 2017 to continue to raise funds for the project.

The board of directors for Friends of Banner Creek include Dillner, Beth Nelson, Lana Dillner, Rob Ladner and Barb Dillner.
