

Face mask policies left up to local school boards

By Ali Holcomb
The decision whether, and when, students should wear face masks in local public schools has been left up to each school district after the Jackson County Commissioners approved a resolution on Monday, and each district will continue to follow the governor's executive order but will allow for modifications in their mask policies, as needed, as the school year progresses.

Each district board of education met Monday evening for its regular meeting and agreed to follow the governor's executive order regarding masks and other health and safety precautions as districts prepare to reopen school buildings in the next two weeks.

Those policies are outlined in The Holton Recorder's Back To Education section included in today's edition.

Kansas Gov. Laura Kelly issued executive order No. 20-59 recently that outlines "mitigation procedures" schools must follow, including wearing face masks, social distancing, using hand sanitizer and checking temperatures before entering school buildings.

To complicate matters, the state Legislature earlier this year voted to give county commissions and county health departments the authority to opt out of governor's orders.

The Jackson County Commissioners and Angie Reith, Jackson County local health officer, "strongly recommend" that schools adopt and follow the governor's executive order, but added that those decisions should be left up to each district school board.

"My personal recommendation is that we follow the executive order. If we can help prevent the spread to one student or teacher, we need to follow it," Reith said. "But this resolution gives schools a chance to opt out if they choose to do so."

Adrienne Walsh, Jackson Heights superintendent, and Aaric David, Royal Valley superintendent, both attended the commission meeting Monday to discuss the resolution.

Walsh said that there is conflicting information regarding the executive order. The executive order says that masks have to be worn at all times regardless of the distance between students and staff members, but other guidelines from the Kansas Department of Education say masks don't have to be worn if people are six feet apart.

Holton reopening plan OK'd

By David Powls
The "school reopening plan" that was presented to the Holton school board at its July 27 meeting was unanimously approved by the board 6-0 here Monday evening at its meeting held at the middle school library.

As presented, the reopening plan requires all students, teachers and staff to wear face-masks at school and on school buses. The plan also calls for everyone to have their temperatures checked at the school entrances, for everyone to wash and sanitize hands several times during the day, for social distancing to take place as much as possible and for other health safety precautions to take place to stop the possible spread of COVID-19.

The reopening plan also lists the types of learning that will be offered this fall in the district - on-site and remote - lists special daily record-keeping required for remote learners to document 6 hours and 35 minutes of learning each day and attempts to cover all the various scenarios that might occur this year due to COVID-19.

Holton Superintendent Bob Davies met with the superintendents of Royal Valley and Jackson Heights schools to develop a unified approach to school openings due to COVID-19. A story on Page 2 of the special Back To Education special section included with this edition shares more details about this countywide approach to reopening schools.

Earlier this week, the Jackson County Commission, along with Angie Reith, county health department director, declared that each school board in the county could set its own health safety requirements instead of being required to follow Gov. Laura Kelly's executive order for the state that required everyone to wear facemasks in schools. The State Legislature earlier this year voted to give local governments that authority.

"We want to be able to say that we did everything we could, if there is a problem (with COVID-19)," said school board member Shelby Patch, summing up the Holton board's general consensus.

In other business, the school board:

Nighswongers return to manage Sonic Drive-In

By Brian Sanders
In the late 1990s, Pete and Kristin Nighswonger spent five years managing the Sonic Drive-In along U.S. Highway 75 in Holton. "We thought we'd go to a bigger city, go out and see the world," Pete said. The Nighswongers left in 2000 when they took off to manage a Sonic in the Kansas City area.

Now, after two decades, including 18 years in the Orlando, Fla. area, the Nighswongers are back in the town they've always regarded as "home."

"You get older, you realize that seeing the world isn't everything in life," said Pete, who returned with Kristin to the Sonic in Holton this past May. It's a welcome return for Pete, a native of Fort Scott who's been working for Sonic since 1982, and Kristin, who started working for Sonic in her hometown of Osawatimie in 1988. The two met at the Osawatimie Sonic, which was Pete's first post with the company.

Since then, Pete said, he's been to several states to open and manage Sonic Drive-Ins, including California, Florida, Illinois, Nebraska and Missouri. They originally came to Holton in 1995, and during that first five-year stint here, they installed the sand volleyball court at the back of the restaurant.

"We went from here to Kansas City," Pete said of their departure in 2000. "We were there for two years."

Their next stop was in Orlando, where they spent the next 18 years.

"The older you get, the heat just gets to you, and it was constantly 95 degrees down there," Pete said. "We sold the stores down there, and we thought, you know, it's time to go home."

The Nighswongers returned to Kansas earlier this year, coming back to Holton in mid-May when the opportunity to return to Sonic became available.

"We thought, 'let's go home,'" Pete said. "We love Holton. Some nights, we'll sit out on our patio, and compared to Florida, it's just peace and quiet. You hear kids laughing and dogs barking."

RV board OKs reopening plans

By Ali Holcomb
School reopening plans for Royal Valley were approved during the board of education's meeting Monday night, as well as several other actions, as the district prepares for its first day of classes on Aug. 24.

With board approval, the district will continue to follow Gov. Laura Kelly's executive order for guidance regarding the use of face masks, hand sanitizer, temperature checks and social distancing to begin the school year.

During the Jackson County Commission meeting on Monday, the commissioners passed a resolution that doesn't require the local school boards to follow the executive order.

The commissioners and Angie Reith, public health nurse, still strongly recommend the use of masks in schools, they said.

The board and Davis agreed to approve the district's reopening plan as presented at the last meeting with additional wording that allows Davis and the board to modify the plan in the best interest of educating RV students. "If we need to make changes two or three weeks down the road for a particular area, class or grade level, then we would have the authority to change our plans and make those necessary adjustments," Davis said.

Davis recommended starting the school year following the executive order regulations as closely as possible.

"It's easier to start strict and then let up than it is to become stricter with our policies," he said.

The board also approved a new remote learner handbook for district students and parents.

"This is something we can hand to parents of remote learners to let them know of the expectations, policies and procedures," Davis said.

The handbook includes information on how to contact teachers and what to do if a family has issues with technology.

"There's no excuse not to participate in school," Davis said. "Just because you are a remote learner doesn't mean you don't have to participate."

Information on how to submit daily logs is also outlined in the handbook. The district is offering several options for remote learners to submit daily logs of time spent on school work.

"In the first two weeks of school, with 125 remote learners, we'll have 1,250 daily learning logs to account for and review to make sure each student has six and a half hours," Davis said. "We're going to try to handle this with existing staff, but we might need to add a position to take care of this. Or we may be able to use an in-house person whose responsibilities can be shifted."

In other business, the board:

* Approved consent items, including the agenda, the minutes from July 13 and 27, the treasurer's report and warrants. The board also accepted the resignations of Randeel Seelbach as an eighth-grade English teacher and Nick Ehrhart as a RVMS football coach.

Delinquent tax list published

By Ali Holcomb
The Jackson County Delinquent Tax List for 2019 is published on pages 9 and 10 in this edition of The Holton Recorder and contains the names of Jackson County property owners with balances past due on real estate taxes. The tax payments were due earlier this year. The list will be published in three consecutive editions of The Recorder.

The first half of the taxes were due last December, and the second half were due in May.

The total amount of taxes past due in the county is $269,350, according to Jackson County Treasurer Linda Gerhardt.

This is a decrease of $97,650 from last year's total of $367,000.

Two years ago, a total of $336,659 in back taxes was sought.

Those who pay their past due tax bill now will also pay a 10 percent interest penalty on the amount due, plus a publishing fee of $16, it was reported.

The interest penalty amount due will increase a little each day that the tax bill goes unpaid, it was reported.

As property owners pay their back taxes and penalty fees, their names will be blanked out from the published delinquent tax list.

Taxpayers with questions about their tax bills should call the county treasurer's office at 364-3791.

Jackson Heights B.O.E. approves face mask policy on 5-2 vote

By Brian Sanders
Following the Jackson County Commission's order on Monday to leave requirements for face masks up to individual county school districts, the Jackson Heights USD 335 Board of Education approved, on a split vote, a plan to require district students to wear masks most of the time they're on district property - for now.

During the Jackson Heights board's regular meeting on Monday, board members approved a "face covering policy" recommended by Superintendent Adrienne Walsh on a 5-2 vote, with the board to review how well the policy is working at its Monday, Sept. 14 meeting for possible further action, then on a monthly basis after that.

The policy as recommended by Walsh requires students at the elementary and high schools to wear face masks to help prevent the possible spread of COVID-19 (coronavirus), with a few exceptions as to when masks are not needed, including where "social distancing" of at least six feet between students is possible.

Board member Ed Rostetter made a motion to approve the policy but revisited it after nine weeks, but changed that to four weeks on a suggestion from board president Dr. David Allen. The only board members to vote against the motion were Neal Keeler, who supported a more "optional" mask policy, and Melinda Wareham.

According to the policy as recommended by Walsh, all students would be required to wear masks when in their school's commons or gym area prior to 8 a.m., in classrooms where social distancing is not possible and in restrooms and offices. Masks are not needed during meal times, during physical education classes or while in

Nebraska man dies in Thursday accident

By Brian Sanders

A head-on collision between a passenger car and a semitrailer early Thursday, Aug. 6 on U.S. Highway 75 north of Holton left a Nebraska man dead and two others injured, according to Jackson County Tim Morse and the Kansas Highway Patrol.

Mohammad Mohsin S. Alnosif, 24, of Omaha, Neb., was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, which occurred at 1:40 a.m. Thursday along U.S. 75 about half a mile south of 278th Road, about five miles north of Holton. The accident resulted in the highway's closure between 254th and 286th roads for about seven hours.

According to Morse and the KHP, Alnosif was driving a 2019 Ford Fiesta north on U.S. 75 when, for an unknown reason, the Fiesta crossed the center line into the southbound lane and collided with a 2021 Kenworth semitrailer driven south on U.S. 75 by William H. Barfield, 38, of Killeen, Texas.

The Fiesta came to a stop on the east shoulder of the highway, it was reported, and Alnosif was ejected about 20 yards from the vehicle into the east ditch. The Kenworth came to a stop in the middle of the southbound lane.

According to the KHP report, Alnosif was not wearing a safety restraint at the time of the accident. Barfield and a passenger in the Kenworth, Randy J. Solomon, 66, of Albuquerque, N.M., were both wearing seat belts, it was noted.

Barfield and Solomon were taken to an area hospital for evaluation of "suspected serious injury," according to the KHP report.

The accident, which Morse said is under investigation, was the fourth this year on Jackson County roads to result in a fatality.

Henry offers holistic approach to wellness

By Ali Holcomb

As a therapeutic masseuse and certified doula, Malori Henry has a passion for helping others and their well-being any way she can.

"I always try to keep things positive and uplifting in here," Henry said of her business, Benevolence Total Wellness. "I never wear matching socks. It's quirky, and it can drive people nuts, but it always starts a conversation. It's an icebreaker and makes people laugh."

Henry has operated Benevolence Total Wellness in Holton for three and a half years, this past year at 107 W. Fourth St. on the south side of the Square alongside Dr. James Keen of Keen Chiropractic.

A native of Nemaha County, Henry graduated from Centralia High School and began pursuing a nursing degree before switching her focus to massage therapy.

"I love the aspect of helping people. But as I worked through nursing school, I also wanted to help people more holistically," she said. "I loved the idea of owning my own business. Nurses do great work, but I wanted more flexibility and offer more of a holistic, natural approach to my clients."

She graduated from the massage program at Bellus Academy in Manhattan and has worked in Holton since January 2017.

Henry and her husband, Andy, a native of Wetmore, have one son and live north of Soldier.

Henry had worked in offices on the east and north sides of the Square when she was approached by Dr. Keen last summer about "teaming up" on the south side at his recently renovated office. She moved her practice into the building last September.

"I focus on pain management," she said. "I'll see anybody from newborns to hospice massages for end of life or comfort care. That's special and rewarding. Each time someone comes in, it's customized. They tell me what's going on with their body, and I really make a specialized massage for each person."

Henry is board certified and is required to take at least 24 hours of continuing education each year to keep her therapeutic massage license.

"I'm continuing to learn new approaches, which helps me have a full toolbox of different things I can use," she said. "I love learning and expanding my knowledge."

She offers deep tissue and sports massages, body wraps, hot stone therapy, Swedish massage, massages to relieve allergy and headaches and more. She also has an infrared sauna for her clients to use.

"It can go up to 140 degrees and helps with blood flow," she said. "It's good for people with arthritis and achy joints and muscles or those who just want to sweat it all out."

Henry is also a certified doula, which allows her to teach childbirth education classes and serve as a childbirth coach for expectant mothers.

"A doula supports the mother from when they find out they are pregnant all the way through labor," she said. "I answer a lot of questions and do postpartum care, like bringing the mom a meal and taking care of the baby so she can rest."

Henry will also work with infants on developing strong muscles and offer natural solutions for issues they may have with sleeping or colic.

"Everyone in Holton has been kind and receptive," Henry said. "I've been busy, and it's such a blessing. I've been able to expand and grow and offer classes and get new equipment because of the support I have."

Henry is available by appointment only from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and her services range from 15 minutes to 90 minutes. For more information about Benevolence Total Wellness, call (785) 294-2725 or visit <https://benevolencetotalwellness.massagetherapy.com>

ABOUT COVID-19...

Just suck it up and follow the orders

And so we will start the new school term with traditional in-school class attendance with an abundance of social distancing, hand-cleaning and facemask wearing, along with remote learning over the Internet at home.

Our school administrators, teachers and staff are doing their best to get everything ready and everyone comfortable for the start of the new school term, but there looks to be a never-ending list of things to do and a myriad of new health safety protocols to put in place.

There has never been a more challenging time to be teachers and students. And when we say good luck to all the teachers and students this year in the "Back To Education" special section that accompanies this edition, we really mean it.

It looks like the schools are doing a good job of separating politics from science in their reopening planning regarding COVID-19.

It's OK for community members to disagree on what to do about COVID-19 because we all have different priorities and different risk tolerances, but when it comes to schools decisions have to be based on the best information available.

Dr. Jeff Dorsett of Osawatomie, a member of the Osawatomie school board and a personal friend, recently made some comments about COVID-19 at one of his recent board meetings as he and his fellow board members were developing reopening plans for the Osawatomie district.

Among Dr. Dorsett's comments were the following:

*All areas are increasing in cases and are projected to continue to increase unless there is a change in public health habits, voluntary or by policy mandate.

*The death rate for COVID-19 is 2.7 deaths for every 1,000 cases.

*If Miami County did nothing, you could presume that about 70 percent of the people would get the virus over the next two years, Dorsett said. It's a new virus. It's very contagious.

*The virus is so contagious that every person who gets it could spread it to 2.5 other people on average.

*One way to slow the virus is to wear a mask, and it can be any type of mask, Dorsett said.

*Children don't get as ill because their immune systems are different, he said. Every infection is new to a kid whereas adults respond to an antibody, Dorsett said. Unfortunately, since this is a new virus, nobody started out this year with any antibody against COVID-19. Evidence shows asymptomatic children can carry and spread the virus.

*Deaths due to COVID-19 are not being overstated. In the summer, about 7,500 Americans die per day and in the winter about 8,000 Americans die per day, so it's very predictable from year to year, Dorsett said. Since COVID-19, about 10,000 people are dying per day, so 2,000 to 2,500 per day probably can be attributed to COVID-19.

*People don't like being told what to do but they do it all the time anyway, such as when you put on your seatbelt when you get into a vehicle.

*Dorsett suggested people do all the things that health experts are saying to do. He added that getting a flu shot this fall is also a good idea to boost your general immune system.

*The pandemic sucks. So we should all take a deep breath, outside preferably. Give others some grace, especially a friend who disagrees with us. And suck it up, Dorsett said.

It was interesting to read about my doctor friend's comments, so there you go. Suck it up.

75th anniversary of atomic bombings studied

By Victor Davis Hanson

This month marks the 75th anniversary of the dropping of two atomic bombs on Japan, at Hiroshima on Aug. 6 and Nagasaki on Aug. 9.

Each year, Americans argue about our supposed moral shortcomings for being the only nation to have used an atomic weapon in war.

But what were the alternatives that President Harry Truman faced had he not dropped the bombs that precipitated Japan's agreement to surrender?

*Truman could have allowed Japan's wounded military government to stop the killing and stay in power.

But the Japanese had already killed more than 10 million Chinese civilians since 1931, and perhaps another 4 million to 5 million Pacific Islanders, southeast Asians and members of the Allied Forces since 1940.

A mere armistice rather than unconditional surrender would have meant the Pacific War had been fought in vain. Japan's fascist government likely would have regrouped in a few years to try it again on more favorable terms.

*Truman could have postponed the use of the new bombs and invaded Japan over the ensuing year. The planned assault was scheduled to begin on the island of Kyushu in November 1945, and in early 1946 would have expanded to the main island of Honshu. Yet Japan had millions of soldiers at home with fortifications, planes and artillery, waiting for the assault.

*The U.S. could have held off on using the bomb, postponed the invasion and simply kept firebombing Japan with its huge fleet of B-29 bombers. The planes soon would have been reinforced with thousands more American and British bombers freed from the end of World War II in Europe.

The napalming of Tokyo had already taken about 100,000 lives. With huge new Allied bomber fleets of 5,000 or more planes based on nearby Okinawa, the Japanese death toll would have soared to near a million.

*The U.S. might have played rope-a-dope, stood down and let the Soviet Red Army overrun China, Korea and Japan itself in the same fashion that the Russians months earlier had absorbed eastern Germany, the Balkans and Eastern Europe.

But the Soviet occupation of North Korea alone only led to more war in 1950. Had the Soviets grabbed more Japanese-occupied territory, more communist totalitarianism and conflict likely would have ensued, with no chance of a free and democratic postwar Japan.

*Truman could have dropped a demonstration bomb or two in Tokyo Bay to warn the Japanese government of their country's certain destruction if it continued the war.

But there was no guarantee that the novel weapons, especially the untested plutonium bomb, would work. A dud bomb or an unimpressive detonation at sea might have only emboldened the Japanese to continue the war.

There were likely only three bombs ready in August. It was not clear when more would be available. So real worries arose that the Japanese might be unimpressed, ignore the warning and ride out the future attacks in hopes there were few additional bombs left.

In the cruel logic of existential war, demonstrating rather than using a new weapon can convey to autocratic belligerents hesitancy seen as weakness to be manipulated rather than as magnanimity to be reciprocated.

By August 1945, six years after the start of World War II in Europe, about 70 million had died, including some 10 million killed by the Japanese military.

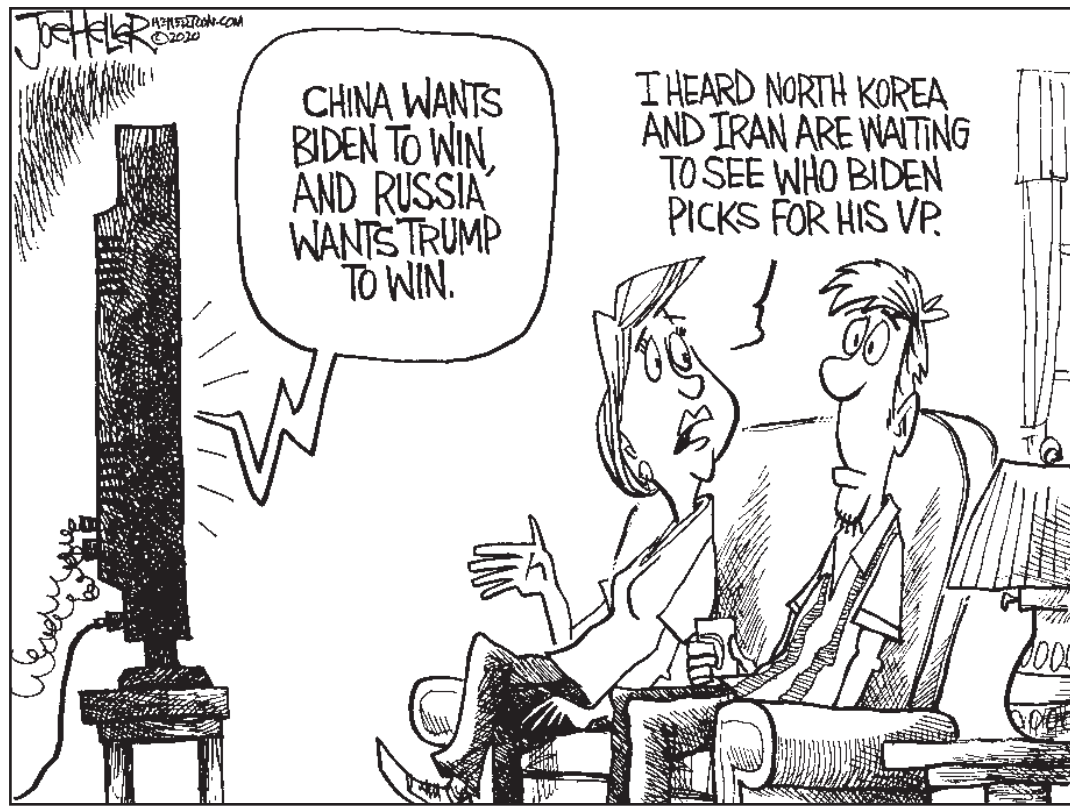

Millions more starved throughout Asia and China due to the destruction and famine unleashed by Japan - a brutal military empowered by millions of skilled civilian industrial workers.

To Americans and most of the world 75 years ago, each day in early August 1945 that the Japanese war machine continued its work meant that thousands of Asian civilians and Allied soldiers would die.

In the terrible arithmetic of World War II, the idea that such a nightmare might end in a day or two was seen as saving millions of lives rather than gratuitously incinerating tens of thousands.

It was in that bleak context that President Truman dropped the two bombs - opting for a terrible choice among even worse alternatives.

PLAINS FOLK: What happened to baby?

By Jim Hoy

Not long ago I re-watched a 1988 movie, "A Cry In The Dark," in which Meryl Streep got an Oscar nomination for her portrayal of Lindy Chamberlain, a woman who went camping in the middle of winter with her husband Michael (played by Sam Neill), her six- and four-year-old sons (Aidan and Reagan) and Azaria, her nine-week old daughter.

The Chamberlains left their home in Mt. Isa, Queensland, on Aug. 16 in their yellow Holden Torana hatchback to spend a few days in the center of Australia at Uluru (then called Ayers Rock) in the Northern Territory.

The next day the Chamberlains, and other visitors to the state park, explored the massive sandstone rock (at nearly six miles in circumference and rising more than 1,100 feet, it's the world's largest monolith).

While Michael and the two boys climbed on the rock, Lindy and the baby went to a formation called the Fertility Cave.

That evening after eating, they relaxed at the campground with Greg and Sally Lowe, another couple with a young baby. A little later Lindy took her own baby to their tent where Reagan was asleep, placed the also-sleeping Azaria in her bassinet, then rejoined the others.

Hearing a noise from the direction of their tent, Lindy hurried back to check on Azaria. In the flickering campfire light, she saw a dingo (Australia's version of a wild coyote-like dog) heading into the bush.

When she looked into the tent, Azaria was gone and there were drops of blood on the tent floor and dingo tracks just outside.

"My God, my God, the dingo's got my baby!" she cried. Grabbing torches (Aussie for flashlights), some 300 campers and park rangers began searching, but it was dark and brushy.

The only clue found that night was a depression where it looked like a dingo might have laid down something it was carrying, leaving an impression in the sand that resembled some sort of knitted weave.

Over the next few days no clues were turned up, but about a week later a wildflower photographer walking along an animal path through dense vegetation chanced upon some torn baby clothes, including a nappy (diaper). Azaria's body was not nearby, nor was it ever found.

Over the next few months the investigation continued, with both Michael and Lindy undergoing separate interviews with authorities. In December a formal inquest was held, where evidence was presented by one official suggesting that human action was involved in the baby's disappearance. The baby clothes, for instance, seemed to have been removed by human hands and deliberately placed on the ground, not left by an animal.

The magistrate, Denis Barritt, determined that Azaria was indeed killed by a dingo and that neither of the parents was involved in the baby's death. However, he also stated his belief that "the body of Azaria was taken from the possession of the dingo and disposed of by a person or persons name unknown."

Rumors flew. Many people believed that dingoes would not attack humans, others claiming instances where they had. That both Michael and Lindy tended not to show the "right kind" of emotion in their television news appearances led much of the public to doubt their story about the dingo.

Also, Michael was the pastor of a Seventh Day Adventist congregation in Mt. Isa, a denomination not well known Down Under. Many thought it a cult and rumors even linked it to the Jonestown incident of only a couple of years earlier.

Not only that, but Lindy had once taken Azaria in for a routine checkup to the doctor dressed in a black onesie and booties. Was baby Azaria the victim of some sort of ritual of human sacrifice? Stay tuned.

GOV. KELLY: We can't take farmers for granted

By Gov. Laura Kelly

Kansans have shown incredible resilience and compassion during this pandemic. We have sacrificed normal routines and celebrations to protect each other - businesses have struggled, workers have been laid off and more than 300 of our friends and neighbors have died because of COVID-19.

Kansans across the state have stepped up to confront the new challenges we are facing, and none more so than our agriculture community.

In the midst of the worst public health crisis we've seen in a century, our agriculture workers have successfully maintained the food supply chain and are still proudly feeding our state, our nation and the world.

Recently, I had the chance to visit Brookover Feed Yards in Garden City. Not only did I leave with more knowledge on their day-to-day operations, but I was reminded of the strength and grit of the people who live and work in our rural communities. They are smart, humble and incredibly hardworking. They have overcome struggles and challenges, they work long hours and they are always ready to help a friend or neighbor in need.

Like all agricultural businesses, Brookover was not immune to the hardships and strain caused by COVID-19.

No matter how many head of cattle are healthy, fed and available, if nearby meatpacking plants are processing fewer cattle, Brookover and feed yards like it cannot sell their product.

Fortunately, here in Kansas, we have taken steps to safely keep our meatpacking plants open. Production may have slowed, but we made sure our supply chain could continue, and feed yards could still provide packers with quality product.

Brookover Feed Yards has been in the Brookover family since 1951. They work hard, use commonsense and do what it takes to make sure the cattle get fed twice a day, every day, so they can go on to a packing plant, a grocery store and, eventually, your dinner table.

After all the challenges they've faced, they wake up each day with a renewed commitment to their mission - and I admire their tenacity.

Farmers, ranchers, meat processing plant workers and so many other members of the agricultural community adapted quickly and did what was necessary to keep food on the tables of Kansas families.

When people take their weekly trip to the grocery store or visit their favorite restaurant, many may not consider the immense amount of work behind each product - nor do they truly consider what the "food supply chain" means. But in times of crisis, we see it more clearly.

Every link of that chain is critical to keeping food on our plates. Links like the milk haulers who deliver milk from dairies to processing plants, or the milling companies who mill wheat into flour so we can bake bread at home.

Links like the workers in meat processing plants who put in long hours to supply us with quality protein products, or the greenhouse growers who make sure we have fresh vegetables year-round.

Links like the grocery store workers who restock the shelves in the middle of the night, and the Kansas wheat farmer who, despite the seemingly overwhelming challenges, still wakes up each morning to work

LETTER

Dear editor,
Black lives matter. White lives matter. Cops' lives matter... and, in God's world, all lives matter, including the unborn.

We teach our children that we are "one nation undivided," but the foundation of our country is being destroyed more and more quickly. The Democrats support maniacal civil unrest, pit us against one another and divide our country. They allow our statues to be torn down, the flag to be dishonored and our freedoms trampled.

On the other hand, President Donald Trump tries to unite our country. He gave a beautiful patriotic speech at Mt. Rushmore on the Fourth of July, and the media discredited him and tried deliberately to ruin it. They will not report anything good about Trump.

Back to "Black Lives Matter." We don't need the Marxist funded organization Black Lives Matter, Inc. This group is a violent and controlling group and is not about civil rights. We must stand up and courageously say, "We deserve a lot better than this!"

If God doesn't intervene this November election, the Democrats will get in by hook or crook. They hate this country, so if you love this country, vote Trump!

Biden picks Harris as running mate

Presumptive Democratic presidential nominee and former vice president Joe Biden has announced that Sen. Kamala Harris (D-Calif., pictured) will be his running mate in the upcoming November election, it was reported yesterday.

Biden and Harris were scheduled to make their first appearance as running mates today in Wilmington, Del., days before Biden is scheduled to formally accept his party's nomination for president during the Democratic National Convention, to be conducted for the most part as a "virtual convention" due to COVID-19 (coronavirus).

Harris, 55, is the first Black woman and the first Asian-American to appear on a major-party presidential ticket. She is the third woman to be announced as a vice presidential candidate, after Democrat Geraldine Ferraro in 1984 and Republican Sarah Palin in 2008.

Biden's announcement of Harris as his running mate reportedly came after a selection process that had drawn extra scrutiny due to Biden's age. If elected, Biden, 77, will be the oldest president, raising speculation that he would not seek reelection in 2024.

Following the announcement, Harris took to Twitter to say that she was "honored" to join Biden, saying that he "can unify the American people because he's spent his life fighting for us. And as president, he'll build an America that lives up to our ideals."

Harris, who grew up in Oakland, Calif., and earned her law degree from the University of California-Hastings, began a career in law in the Alameda County District Attorney's Office before becoming District Attorney of the City and County of San Francisco.

She was later elected California's Attorney General, the first African-American and woman to be elected to the post, before being elected to represent the state in the U.S. Senate in 2016.

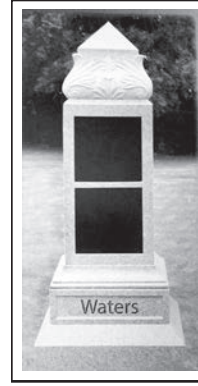

Harris and Biden were rivals in the recent Democratic presidential primaries, and she criticized Biden's past positions on busing to desegregate schools during a June 2019 debate. In later months, however, Harris was involved in fund-raising for Biden's presidential campaign.

Megan Rhule

Brandon Lehnherr

Rhule, Lehnherr named scholarship recipients

Two Holton High school graduates who have been participating in college athletics for more than three years have each been awarded $500 scholarships through the Holton College Scholar Athlete Award program, it has been reported.

Megan Rhule, a 2016 graduate of HHS, who has been playing volleyball at William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., and Brandon Lehnherr, who has been playing football at Baker University at Baldwin City, Kan., have been announced as this year's scholarship recipients. The scholarship is now in its sixth year.

The scholarship program was established in memory of the late Ramona Riederer by her son, HHS alumnus and former National Football League strength and conditioning coach Russ Riederer of Holton. The Holton Recorder, where Ramona worked for 29 years, has also been recognized as a co-sponsor of the scholarship, along with local businesses Bell Plumbing, Denison State Bank and Jayhawk TV and Appliances.

The scholarship is designed for college athletes who have completed at least three years of their college career, or have just completed it, it was reported.

Rhule, the daughter of Dan and Susan Rhule of Holton, has graduated from William Jewell with a degree in psychological sciences. She also minored in communications. She plans to continue her studies at Johnson County Community College to become a dental hygienist, after working for a year as a dental assistant.

Rhule played three seasons as a 5-10 setter for the NCAA Division II Cardinal volleyball team, after transferring from Highland Community College after one semester, where she played one volleyball season for Highland.

At William Jewell, she was a Great Lakes Valley Conference (GLVC) Council of Presidents Academic Excellence Award Winner as a senior. She also received a volleyball senior excellence award, was an Academic All-GLVC player and 2018 Team Co-Most Valuable Player Award winner. While at Highland in 2016, she was an academic all-conference player and a Triton All-Tournament Team player.

Lehnherr, son of Chris and Rhonda Lehnherr of Topeka and formerly of Holton, is majoring in communication studies with a minor in the German language at Baker. He said he is interested in seeking a job in international sales after graduation.

For now, Lehnherr, a 6-4, 275-pound lineman, is preparing for his senior football season at Baker. He is a three-year returning starter for the Wildcats on offensive tackle. Last season, he was named First Team All Conference in the NAIA Division I Heart of America Athletic Conference. At HHS, he was a two-time All-State Football selection.

Lehnherr said yesterday that it was declared that the Wildcats would be playing football this fall. He said he has been running, lifting weights and practicing with a face mask on and that the Baker offensive squad has been isolated from the defensive squad, in an effort to stop the possible spread of COVID-19.

Previous winners of this scholarship are:

- *2015: Christa Hill and Bryce Barnett.
- *2016: Jaxson Wright, Hanah Suarez and Brylee New.
- *2017: Krystie Miller and Dylan Wheeler.
- *2018: Indie Allen and Rachel Newquist.
- *2019: Lucas Lovvorn and Hayley Thompson.

Fenceline: Barley straw for ponds

By Jody G. Holthaus
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent, Livestock and Natural Resources

So this week, I took a vegetarian to lunch! It was about mid-way through the event that I noticed she had ordered a vegetarian meal.

So I asked, and she replied, "Since I'm going into environmental sciences, I figured I better do my part and save the environment." I nearly choked.

So then the conversation went to COVID-19 and how when the shutdown occurred, so many of the smog-filled cities' skies cleared. I told her when all the airplanes and cars stopped, and the air cleared, then I reminded her that we still had the same number of cows. And the numbers of our domestic herds is far less than the bison that roamed the plains back in the day! I hope I gave her something to think about.

The rest of our trip, I wondered what she thought of the fields of corn that were growing, what she thought should be growing there instead. I'm thinking I will send her some websites so she can read up on the facts. If she's going to be a scientist, then she needs to rely on facts!

The fact is, our pond project is going well. The ponds look remarkably well. One of the control ponds showed there might have been a blue/green algae bloom, but it's going to take more time to analyze the test results, so stay tuned.

We are lucky to have a local producer that baled up some barley straw. I'm hoping he will consider planting more barley. I think there might just be a big demand for barley straw in the coming years.

It's a bit late to be applying the barley straw to ponds this year, but the bales could be stored until next spring. The dosing rate is seven bales per acre of surface water. We put the bales about 20 feet apart and submerge them one-half to two-thirds in the water and stake them with two stakes. We put the cut side down, and one stake goes through the strings to keep them contained. We put the bales on the side where most of the water comes in and usually not on the pond dam.

The Melvern Swim pond was a joint venture with KDHE and the Corps of Engineers. They had 20 bales that got flooded out, so they will be reapplying those bales. This has been quite an adventure, and I'm hoping that the test results will give us some definite answers to the blue/green problem.

I'm also hopeful that the young lady that I ate lunch with will seek out the facts about animal agriculture and live her life accordingly.

Crops and Soils

Weather conducive to good growth on this year's cool-season grasses

By David G. Hallauer
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent, Crops and Soils/Horticulture

There was a time this spring when I was pretty worried about our cool-season grass stands. The end of 2019, combined with a couple of frost events in 2020 left, stands uneven. With a forecast calling for above normal temperatures and below-normal precipitation, reduced yields could have been followed by a poor recovery time period.

Fast forward to August. Most of the area has received excellent rainfall, and temperature post-harvest allowed hay fields to recover quickly and pastures to keep up with grazing. I've been monitoring six different hay fields across the district since harvest, and most all of them have grown back to a height of five-plus inches with greater than 75 percent canopy cover.

In fact, some stands have grown so well that there might be some temptation about utilizing them again this fall. In some instances, that can work quite well. In others, be cautious.

With adequate moisture and moderate temperatures (cool season grasses love the 70s), grasses grow rapidly. The photosynthetic process kicks in, and green leaves transfer energy to leaves.

When adequate leaf mass is achieved, energy is also returned to the root system. This helps maintain the plant through the winter and initiate green-up when conditions are right next spring. It's a simple, but often overlooked, process. When overlooked, it has a lot to do with how plants respond and prosper – or perish under certain conditions.

That leads us to this fall. Some stands have recovered so well that we might consider grazing them or even haying for a second time.

In most cases, I would avoid that when possible. The risk of damage from stands that get hayed/grazed too short or that don't have a chance to adequately recover prior to dormancy is always present and too often experienced. That damage may not seem to be too bad but can affect the stand for years.

If grazing previously harvested hay fields this fall, do so with extreme caution (second cuttings of hay should be avoided). As the stand is recovering, maintain at least four to six inches of green growth. Harvesting below a four-inch height means that the plant not only has to respond to the harvest of photosynthetic area, but may have to deplete root reserves to do so. If adequate time and rest isn't given to replenish reserves, recovery will be slow next year as well.

Diseases Of Peonies
Adequate moisture plus humidity plus days with dew on the grass all morning equals the perfect conditions for disease. If you have peonies, you may well be seeing them now.

If the leaves look like they have measles, it's likely red spot, a disease that results in reddish-purple spots on the upper leaf surfaces. Spots often grow together to form large blotches on the leaves or streaks on the stems.

If the leaves look like they've been dusted with flower, powdery mildew is the culprit. We don't see it often, but when we do, it can be deadly to the plant's leaves.

The "cure" – sanitation. Remove all diseased tissue, including stems, at the end of the growing season (we can remove all foliage in mid-August when plants are dormant and cause no long-term harm). Remove mulch that has plant debris, replacing with new mulch. This will help reduce the source of the disease to reduce the chance for an outbreak again next year.

Winning recipes from Jefferson fair

By Cindy Williams
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent, Family and Consumer Sciences

Even though 2020 has been a different kind of year for everyone, one thing that remained is that the quality of food exhibits remained high at the Jefferson County 4-H Food Fair. Judging was done differently, and numbers were down, but we had several outstanding food entries from youth across the county. At this time, I would like to share a couple of the champions at this year's fair.

The first one that I would like to share comes from Brooklyn Correll. Brooklyn is the 17-year-old daughter of Susan and Bill Correll of Valley Falls. She is an 11-year member of the Prosperity 4-H Club. She has been involved in many projects, including clothing, fiber arts, photography and shooting sports, to name a few, and was named State Project Winner in Visual Arts.

Brooklyn's entry of Iowa State Fair Pizza Bread was named: senior class champion, and overall grand champion food and then was given the champion yeast bread award.

Now for that winning recipe. Iowa State Fair Pizza Bread For The Bread Machine

Ingredients:
1 1/2 cups vegetable juice
2 Tablespoons pepper olive oil
1 egg white

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 teaspoons dried basil
1 teaspoon dried oregano
2 teaspoons active dry yeast
2 Tablespoons sugar

1 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 cups bread flour

Directions:
Place all ingredients in bread machine pan in order listed or as directed by your machine. Set machine for dough setting. When timer rings, take dough out of bread machine pan punch down. Shape the dough as desired – rolls, bread or personal design. Place on prepared pan. Let rise until double. Bake in 375-degree oven for 20 minutes. Let cool, brush with butter and remove from pan.

Another champion recipe that was submitted by Grace Censer was an orange chiffon cake. Grace is the daughter of Andy and Holly Censer, also of Valley Falls. She is a nine-year member of the Valley Victors 4-H Club. She is 15 years old and will be a high school junior this fall. Grace was also named the State 4-H Dog Project winner and will be attending National 4-H Congress this fall, along with Brooklyn.

Now for Grace's winning recipe. This cake was named senior reserve champion and overall reserve champion.

Orange Chiffon Cake

Ingredients:
6 large eggs plus one additional egg white
2 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1 Tablespoon baking powder
2 Tablespoons grated orange zest
3/4 cup freshly squeezed orange juice
1 teaspoon vanilla

1 1/2 cups white sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar

Directions:
Separate the eggs while they are still cold. Place the egg yolks in one bowl and the whites (along with the extra egg white) in another. Cover with plastic wrap and bring to room temperature (about 30 minutes).

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. and have ready a 10-inch two-piece ungreased tube pan. In the bowl of your electric mixer, fitted with the paddle attachment (or use a hand mixer), place the flour, sugar (minus 1/4 cup), baking powder, salt and orange zest. Beat until combined, make a well in the center of the flour mixture and add the egg yolks, oil, orange juice and vanilla extract. Beat until smooth (about one minute). Scrape down the sides of the bowl as needed.

In a separate bowl, with the whisk attachment, beat the egg whites until foamy. Add the cream of tartar and continue to beat until soft peaks form. With a large rubber spatula or wire whisk, gently fold the egg whites (in three additions) into the batter just until blended, being very careful not to deflate the batter.

Pour the batter into the ungreased tube pan and bake for about 55 to 60 minutes. Immediately upon removing the cake from the oven, invert (turn upside down) the pan and place on a bottle or flat surface so it is suspended over the counter. Let the cake cool completely before removing from pan.

Thank you to Brooklyn and Grace for sharing your champion recipes with all of us!

Pfizer's McPherson plant to manufacture remdesivir

An antiviral drug being used to treat COVID-19 (coronavirus) patients will be manufactured in Kansas, it has been reported.

Pfizer Inc. said Friday, Aug. 7, that it had signed a multi-year agreement to make Gilead Sciences Inc.'s antiviral drug remdesivir in a bid to ramp up supply of the COVID-19 treatment, the Reuters news service reported.

Pfizer will provide contract manufacturing services through its plant in McPherson, which is one of the pharmaceutical company's 10 manufacturing plants in the U.S. The McPherson plant produces medicines in several different forms, according to Pfizer's Web site.

Gilead's aim is to supply enough remdesivir to treat more than two million COVID-19 patients by the end of the year, it was reported. The company agreed to send nearly all of its remdesivir supply to the United States through September.

Pfizer's announcement came after a bipartisan group of state attorneys general last week urged the U.S. government to allow other companies to make remdesivir to increase the drug's availability and lower its price. It was reported that hospital staffers and politicians across the country have registered complaints about difficulties getting access to remdesivir, one of only two drugs to have demonstrated an ability to help hospitalized COVID-19 patients in formal clinical trials.

HOW IT WORKS:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Circleville Christian

By Jeannie Arnold

Dr. David Allen gave the welcome to open the Aug. 9 service at Circleville Christian Church. Music was provided by the praise team of Max Lierz, Annie Allen, Dr. Allen, Tim Boswell, Garrett Will and Travis Self as they led the congregation in singing "Where Could I Go," "At Your Name" and "Lord I Need You." Bill Dyer used text from Acts 20:7-12 as he gave the communion meditation. The praise team sang "The Old Rugged Cross" as everyone individually partook of the bread and cup. Dr. Allen gave the prayer for concerns and praises.

Ryan Hayden brought the morning sermon. He used text from Acts 12:11-19 as he told about the life of Peter. Peter had been arrested and guarded, but an angel came to him in his sleep and rescued him.

Peter didn't realize this miracle was from above. It was God at work. Peter then went to a place that he could trust because he had more work to do for God.

Peter was alive and still following Jesus because he was a faithful man. Being a Christian is not a promise that life will be an easy journey, but as we grow in our trust with God, He will answer faithfully and we can have the joy of living and following Jesus.

The service closed by singing "Where Could I Go."

Immanuel Lutheran Church

By Esther L. Ideker

The 10th Sunday of Pentecost worship service at Immanuel Lutheran Church on Aug. 9 opened with the hymn "Soul, Adorn Yourself With Gladness."

Following the confession, absolution, introit, Kyrie, Gloria I Excelsis, salutation and collect, Pastor Michael Van Velzer read the Old Testament lesson from Job 28:4-18. Psalm 18:1-6 was read responsively.

The Epistle lesson was from Romans 10:5-17 and the holy gospel for the day Matthew was from 14:22-33. The congregation professed the Nicene Creed. The sermon hymn was "I Heard The Voice Of Jesus Say."

In his sermon, Pastor Van Velzer said that the primary goal of Matthew's entire gospel - if you get nothing else out of it you need to get this - You need to know who this Jesus is. You need to know what you have when you have Jesus. You need to know what you have when Jesus has you. "...and ends of Jesus' ministry, with this confession of faith from the centurion at the cross, "truly this was the Son of God." (Matthew 27:54.)

The feeding of the 5,000 has just concluded and Jesus made the disciples get into a boat. Many of the 12 disciples were experienced sailors, so despite the nasty conditions, they made good headway to the other side. The storm was fierce to the point that the waves were coming over the sides of the boat threatening to sink it, and Jesus was asleep in the stern.

The experienced sailors cry out to their carpenter/Lord, "Save us Lord, we are perishing..." and He did. He immediately spoke His comforting word to His terrified crew, then He immediately reached out His hand and took hand of His terrified rock man, Peter.

Please note that Jesus doesn't reject Peter because of his little faith. And neither does He reject you because of your "little faith." Here is the ultimate goal of Matthew's gospel and the ultimate goal of the journey we're taking with Matthew during this season of Pentecost.

To worship this Jesus, confessing both with lips and the heart, "Truly you are the Son of God." Teaching by teaching, parable by parable, miracle by miracle, the mystery is being rolled back further and further. And the seed that was sown in our baptism is taking root and growing. Our "little faith" is tested - and it grows stronger.

The congregation sang the offertory. In the prayers of the church, petitions were for wisdom that we may trust in God's word amid the stormy seas of this mortal life and be safely delivered from all danger onto the eternal shores of heaven.

The congregation joined in The Lord's Prayer. The Service of the Sacrament included the Sanctus, Pax Domini and Agnus Dei.

The distribution hymn was "I Come, O Savior, To Thy Table" Elder Rich Heitzmann assisted Pastor Van Velzer in the distribution.

Following the Nunc Dimittis, thanksgiving and benediction, the service closed with the Navy hymn, "Eternal Father, Strong To Save," with the last verse: "O Trinity of love and power, Our people shield in danger's hour; From rock and tempest, fire and foe, Protect them where-so-e'er they go; Thus ever more rise to Thee, Glad praise from air and land and sea."

Serving Sunday were Rich Heitzman, elder and acolyte; Joyce Peterson, organist; and Nancy Schumann, altar committee.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Nancy Schumann. Others celebrating August birthdays are Tex Manuel II, Larry Schumann, Kylie Dohl and Kim Mellies. Celebrating anniversaries are Topher and Kristi Dohl and Tex II and Teri Manuel.

The Immanuel Ladies will meet by conference call at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 14. Lavon Keehn will lead the Bible study and projects are the Wittenberg Project, nominating committee and planning LWML Sunday.

Bowser wins District 22 primary

Holton native Dr. Craig Bowser won the Republican primary election last week for the District 22 seat in the Kansas Senate, and will face Democrat incumbent Tom Hawk of Manhattan during the Nov. 3 general election.

In the primary election, Bowser defeated Bryan Pruitt 5,157 votes to 3,358 votes. Hawk did not have a Democratic challenger in the primary.

Hawk is seeking his third term to the seat, which represents Riley and Clay counties and a portion of Geary County.

In addition to their home in Manhattan, Bowser and his wife, Erin, and their son, Gavin, own a farm southeast of Holton.

Bowser is the chief executive officer for a Manhattan-based non-profit organization that helps military veterans enter the agribusiness workforce.

Bowser joined the U.S. Army Reserves where he served for 24 years. After completing multiple combat tours in Iraq, he used his G.I. Bill to earn his doctorate in strategic security.

classrooms where social distancing is possible for all students.

Elementary students would also be required to wear masks while in the library, in music class or while participating in such activities as art or band, but not during recess. For middle and high school students, masks are required in the weight room and during passing periods but not during sports practices, according to the recommended policy.

All students will be required to wear masks while riding district buses. Walsh said, noting she had talked with bus drivers who "feel strongly about having masks on the bus." Also, students participating in "speech services" can substitute a face shield for a mask, the policy stated.

Allen said that while he empathized with parents and others who have concerns over requiring children — particularly younger ones in lower grade levels — to wear masks, it was necessary for the district to have "some guidelines" in place regarding masks.

"I have to do something that I think is going to give those parents who are on the mask-wearing side some reassurance that their children are going to be cared for because they want to come back to school," Allen said. "And I have to do some things for the parents who say they don't want their kids to wear a mask."

In that case, Keeler said, it would be better for the district to make it optional for students to wear masks since, as he put it, the guidelines were "more about making everybody feel good than doing any good."

"If they want to wear one, wear one, and if they don't want to wear one, they don't have to wear one," Keeler said. "By making the kids wear a mask, you're only appeasing the crowd that wants to wear masks."

Allen disagreed, saying that there were "very vocal supporters" on either side of the mask issue.

"We're not going to make everybody happy," he said. "I'm completely at ease with the fact that I'll make everybody mad."

In other business on Monday, the board:

■ Approved the district's budget for the 2020-21 school year following a public hearing in which no public comments were received. The district is seeking a property tax levy of 49.561 mills this year, down from 49.907 mills for the 2019-20 school year, with this year's levy expected to generate $1,320,696 in tax revenues based on an assessed valuation of $27,404,255 in the district.

■ Approved the meeting's agenda and consent agenda, the latter including minutes from the board's July 13 and July 27 meetings, monthly bills and activity account reports, a bond payment of $212,800 and an energy lease payment of $140,605.

■ Was introduced to new district teachers, including Remington Beckner, first grade; Shelby Carpenter, first grade; Shelby Pruet, fifth grade; Madison Stewart, middle and high school physical education; and Karen Zost, Title I reading.

■ Heard a report from Walsh about district expenditures related to the COVID-19 pandemic as well as grant funds that may be used to offset some of those expenditures.

■ Were reminded by Walsh that action on a capital outlay mill levy resolution for the Jackson Heights district would likely occur at the Sept. 14 meeting. Walsh asked board members for input on any possible changes to the resolution.

■ Heard a report from Walsh on preliminary enrollment numbers in the district for the 2020-21 year, including students enrolled in the district's virtual school program.

■ Heard comments from Middle and High School Principal Darren Shupe and Elementary Principal and Athletic Director Annie Diederich on a recent Northeast Kansas League meeting.

■ Heard comments from Shupe and Diederich about preparations for the upcoming fall semester.

■ Met in executive session with Walsh for 45 minutes to discuss teacher salary contract negotiations and non-elected personnel matters.

Upon returning to open session, the board accepted the resignation of Annette Browning as district custodian and approved "virtual stipends" for Zost, third-grade teacher Kristi Altenburg and fourth-grade teacher Olga McAlpine.

■ Adjourned the meeting at 9:20 p.m. All seven board members were present.

■ Commission Resolution...

"I want to do the right thing, but there's a lot of conflicting guidance," Walsh said.

Reith said her office receives no advance notice of any executive order made by the governor.

"Some of the guidance is open to legal interpretation as well," Reith said.

Davis questioned the districts' liability if someone has a COVID-19-related health issue in the district if the district had opted out of some or part of the executive order.

County Counselor Alex Belveal directed Davis to contact his district's attorney to discuss that issue.

"I feel bad. There's no right answer. If you mandate it, somebody is going to be unhappy. And if you don't mandate it, somebody is going to be unhappy," Reith said.

During the meeting, Reith reported nine new positive COVID-19 cases in Jackson County since Friday with seven people expected to be tested that afternoon.

Walsh asked Reith for guidance on whether children five years old and younger (preschoolers) should be required to wear a mask.

Reith said the mandate said anybody enrolled in the school, including preschoolers, should wear a mask. But visitors under the age of five don't have to, according to the executive order.

Reith said she did plan to implement a modified quarantine directive for school exposure for school districts to follow, if they want.

"KDHE has granted us the authority to allow students to still come to school if a classmate has COVID-19, but there are still a lot of stipulations," Reith said. "I want to give our school districts that option. It's only for exposure of the virus inside the school."

Davis said he was not in favor of the county's resolution and said that he preferred guidance from the county or state.

"During this whole process, everything has flowed down right to us. And this is just another example of that. The responsibility or blame for the mask mandate has shifted from the governor's shoulders to ours," Davis said.

Davis said that he, Walsh and Holton Superintendent Bob Davies have worked together this summer to create a county-wide approach to reopening schools in the county.

"One thing this governor's order does, it keeps us all on the same playing field. If we all stick together, then it's easier to handle frustrations from our constituents," Davis said. "We are now going to be marketable between school districts in Jackson County if we all have different mask policies. We could see revenue that normally goes to our county school go other places."

Reith said she's only received comments from people in favor of masks being worn by students, teachers and staff in the school districts.

"We're not trying to shirk our responsibilities. We think it's in the best interest if decisions are made at the local level by the school boards," said Commissioner Janet Zwonitzer. "This has been a very difficult and trying time. The responsibilities have been overwhelming. We understand that. I think it's a great idea for children to wear masks when they can't stay six feet apart. We feel your school boards were elected to run the schools. And it's our feeling that it should be their ultimate decision."

Their first week back at Sonic, however, provided them with a major challenge. A lightning strike took out the restaurant's two air conditioners, ice cream machine and shake machine, prompting them to close the restaurant for a few days while they made the necessary repairs and added new food-warming equipment.

"The quality of the food is so much better because of the new equipment," Pete said. "It was a substantial investment on our part."

No changes have been made to Sonic's exterior, although the Nighswongers said that's likely to change in the next two or three years. Sonic corporate officials in July announced a new restaurant design, called "Delight," that will feature a more colorful exterior.

In the meantime, they are looking at revamping the sand volleyball court, which is currently being used for parking. Pete said they do not plan to open the court back up just yet, since COVID-19 (coronavirus) is still a concern, but they will at some point in the future.

"I'm thinking about doing volleyball, maybe a corn hole game, something for anybody to do back there," he said.

University-community partnership eases COVID-19 testing shortage

The Kansas Department of Health and Environment has recognized Kansas State University faculty and administration and Community HealthCare System for their commitment to work with the Northeast Kansas Healthcare Coalition to successfully fill the supply chain gap of nasopharyngeal swabs for COVID-19 testing in the region.

The group was recognized in a virtual ceremony of commendation with Dr. Lee Norman, secretary of the Kansas Department of Health and Environment, on July 31.

K-State's Beth Montelone, senior associate vice president for research; Jungkwun Kim, assistant professor of electrical and computer engineering; and Dong Lin, assistant professor of industrial and manufacturing systems engineering, demonstrated their commitment to the institution's land-grant mission and the citizens of Kansas by partnering with Community HealthCare System to produce the 3D-printed swabs.

The partnership began when Todd Willert, chief executive officer of Community HealthCare System, learned that dental offices had been given authorization to make 3D-printed testing swabs. Willert, knowing that major universities typically had the necessary printers, worked with director Michael Bomberger and communications manager Sarah Hancock to make the necessary connections with K-State.

"There were a lot of days when recommended sexual harassment policy as presented. Davis said that new federal regulations go into effect on Aug. 14 regarding sexual harassment reporting and investigating procedures. The policy is required by the district since it receives federal funds.

Noah Slay, director of curriculum and instruction, said the new policy "formalizes the process" of reporting and making a formal sexual harassment complaint within the district.

* Appointed Slay as the district's Title IX coordinator for the 2020-21 school year. As the coordinator, he will be the first point of contact in the district if someone reports a sexual harassment incident.

* Approved the Kansas Department of Education remote learning assurances.

* Offered employment contracts to Willie McClane as a middle school assistant football coach and Patti Schmidt as a bus paraprofessional.

* Adjourned the meeting at 8:25 p.m. All board members were present. No executive sessions were needed.

we weren't sure if we were going to be able to perform tests because we were missing that simple little swab - and that's very frustrating as a health care organization," Willert said. "With the ability to produce these 3D swabs, we finally felt that we were doing something proactive and that just made everyone feel so good around here and gave everyone a lot of hope."

Community HealthCare System has hospitals in Onaga and St. Marys, as well as clinics in several other communities. The system also includes two nursing homes and an assisted living facility, making it truly vital that testing supplies are available.

To recognize K-State efforts to solve supply-chain problems, the Northeast Kansas Healthcare Coalition donated a Form 3B 3D printer to Kim's lab.

Kim said the project inspired him to work on his National Science Foundation-funded research project related to an implantable biomedical microdevice. To date, K-State has printed and donated almost 2,500 swabs, with another 2,500 additional swabs in process from a single printer. Once swabs are received by Community HealthCare System, they are evaluated, sterilized and packaged. Approximately 600 swabs have been utilized so far at clinics and hospitals in northeast Kansas. Community HealthCare System also shared its swab supply with Nemaha Valley Community Hospital in Seneca and Holton Community Hospital.

*Held a public hearing on the proposed new budget for the district. No public comments were received. After the public hearing, the school board voted unanimously 6-0 to approve the budget. Board member Mike Ford was not present at the meeting.

*Heard from Justin Fluke, president of the Holton Theatre Group, that the group had visited the old Central School facility several times since the last school board meeting, had visited with roof and HVAC professionals about it, and now wanted to let the board know that it was still interested in having the district donate the facility to them "as is" without any repairs made first by the district. No action was taken by the board on this topic.

*Met with Cindy Hower, the district's insurance broker, about a new "school volunteer accident policy" with a $500 annual premium. The board voted unanimously to approve the policy. Hower also that in the last three years, the district's insurance providers had paid out a total of $456,580 in 65 claims, of which 57 were workers' compensation claims, six were auto-related and 2 were general claims. She also presented her annual fee and consultation contract renewal totaling $9,000, the same amount charged over the past 12 years or so. The board approved the contract renewal on a unanimous vote.

*Discussed school busing issues with Ginger Binkley, transportation director. Davies and Binkley suggested limiting two students to a bus seat this year, instead of three, except for families with three kids on the bus, due to concerns about COVID-19. Board members said they favored the idea.

Binkley and Davies said there won't be any issues with bus routes out in the rural areas, with the two-to-a-seat policy but rather it's the bus routes that the district provide in town that will be affected.

It was decided that for the in-town bus routes, first priority will be given to students that need to be transported across the highway on the west side of town. The next priority will be given for the younger students in town. By law, schools must provide bus transportation for kids living 2.5 miles or more from the school.

The two students per bus seat this year may mean that the district will not be able to bus all kids in town to school who want to ride, it was noted.

*Approved by unanimous vote an expenditure of $19,942.45 from Midwest Bus Sales of Kansas City, Mo., for additional bus cameras and related equipment.

*Approved by unanimous vote to spend up to $12,650 for 600 sq. ft. of new flooring at the old gym at HHS for an area generally located under the pull-out bleachers. The district has received one bid of that amount from Creative Floors of Wichita and will be seeking another bid.

*Approved by unanimous vote an expenditure of up to $12,850 for new concrete and stairs on the east side of Holton Middle School for the entrance door there.

*Learned that Holton High will have four lunch times, instead of the regular two, due to measures taken to reduce the possible spread of COVID-19.

*Gave the okay for the local pee wee football team to utilize the football stadium in September to host one weekend of three games for six league teams. It was noted that it probably will take about three man-hours to sanitize the facility afterwards. It was noted it will take about two man-hours to clean one gym after a volleyball match. There will be a lot more cleaning and sanitizing school facilities this year, due to COVID-19, it was noted.

*Learned about enrollment from Karen Beightel and Davies. Some details are listed in a story on Page 12 of the Back To Education special section that is included with this edition.

*Learned that Fresh Start

Learning Center, so far has 28 students enrolled who are 20-and older and expects five or more to enroll who are 19-or under.

*Learned from Amy Haussler, director of the Holton Special Education Cooperative, that staff are busy rewriting about 600 Individual Education Plans (IEPs) to include how they will be making progress if they have to go to "remote learning" due to a declaration by the county or health department due to COVID-19 cases.

*Approved a revised school calendar that adds three more school days in May, ending May 25 instead of May 20, due to a later than normal school start. A memorandum of understanding is being worked out to adjust teacher contracts.

*Learned that the district will receive about $250,000 in SPARKS funds as distributed by Jackson County officials, or about $222.70 per pupil. The board unanimously approved a motion to use the funds to help pay for the purchase and installation of special bipolar ionization air purifier systems from Trane for the HVAC systems in the schools to further improve air quality in the schools at a cost of $175,000.

*Learned that the value of the food, including fruit and milk, distributed by the school district in May, June and July to community members totaled $296,000. "What a great program for the community," Davies said. "It was a nice way to help local people."

*Approved on unanimous votes the HHS and HMS handbooks and the district's remote learning handbook.

*Approved a motion to allow remote learners in the district to participate in extracurricular activities such as sports.

*Following an executive session, returned to open session and accepted the resignation of teacher Phyllis Slipke without any penalty if a replacement for her this school term can be hired soon.
