Havensville City Council discusses road signs, code enforcement position

The Havensville City Council monthly meeting was called to order at 7:05 p.m. on Jan. 12 by John Niehues, council president.

Those present included Tasha Lara, Chris Niehues and Monna McNally, council members; Dan Kolterman, city clerk; Dennis Pinick, maintenance worker; Dan Costlow, city police officer; and Maye Wegner, John Flowers, Mike Pinick and Jesse Pinick, patrons. Mayor Travis Peters participated in the meeting remotely via Zoom.

John Niehues read letters from Sam and Nancy Flowers regarding the proposed repairs to the eroded ditch on their property and the city code enforcement position.

Lara moved to approve the minutes of the Dec. 8 meeting as presented. McNally seconded the motion, and it passed unanimously.

Chris Niehues moved to approve the bills/payments from Dec. 8 to Jan. 12. Lara seconded the motion, and it passed unanimously.

There were no late utility payments for December, it was reported. Road signs that were ordered have been received, and a notice of the Havensville logo contest went out with the January utility bills.

Officer Costlow presented the police activity report for December.

Dennis Pinick reported that work will begin on putting up the road signs now that they are in. Chris Niehues reported that Johnson Controls has been scheduled to complete sewer maintenance in the city in about a week.

The city's Christmas street lights will be taken down soon. Every representatives have said that they intend to go from a set fee to a per bulb charge for the Christmas lights in the future. Kolterman will contact Every to get more details.

In old business, John Niehues reported that he had called Greg Riat again regarding the annexation issue, but he has not heard back from him. He said he will try calling Pottawatomie County public works.

Sam Flowers indicated in a letter that he has agreed to pay half of the estimated cost of $720 to repair the eroded ditch on his property. He also requested an itemized receipt for his share of the cost. The maintenance department will proceed with the repairs as weather permits.

Peters reported that he had not received any correspondence from the Kansas Department of Transportation regarding the junkyard ordinance.

Council members discussed repairs to the alleyway from North Street to Croy Street east of Kansas Highway 63. Chris Niehues reported that Every will not relocate the transformer pole on the west side of the alley due to issues with obstructions and utilities.

John Flowers declined the code enforcement position. He suggested alternative options to code enforcement, citing the city of Centralia as an example. Kolterman will check with Centralia on their procedures and report back to the council at the February meeting.

In new business, Chris Niehues moved to approve a building permit for Ed Janssen at 519 North St. McNally seconded the motion, and it passed unanimously.

Chris Niehues moved to approve the renewal of the cereal malt beverage licenses for Charlies submitted by Dona Flowers. Lara seconded the motion, and it passed unanimously.

Kolterman is updating email lists of those who wish to receive meeting notifications and unofficial city council meeting minutes for 2021. A notice was sent with the January utility billing statements.

Chris Niehues brought up the subject of fireworks. Council members will review a plan and budget for fireworks at the February meeting.

McNally moved to adjourn the meeting at 8:07 p.m. Lara seconded the motion, and it passed unanimously. The next city council meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Feb. 9.

Circleville Christian

By Jeannie Arnold

The Jan. 17 service at Circleville Christian Church opened with singing by the praise team of Lori Thomas, Max Lierz, Dr. David Allen, Lori Mellenburch and Travis Self.

Lyle Alley gave a couple of announcements and the opening prayer. The praise team then led in singing "Amazing Grace/My Chains Are Gone," "Give Us Clean Hands" and "I Surrender All."

Paul Davault talked about "Humility" as he gave the communion meditation and prayer. He used text from Galatians

3:11 and Romans 3:20. Kay Hallauer provided the lovely piano music by playing "Old Rugged Cross" as the congregation partook of communion.

Luke Schreiber continued with his sermon series "In Search Of Joy" by using text of Philippians 1:27-28 and 2:1-4. Sunday's message was titled "A Courageous And Humble Walk." He referred to Paul's letters to Philippi telling them how they can find unity through humility.

Jesus has done for man what no man could ever do for himself. Paul told them to be a courageous team, standing firm in one spirit, striving together as one.

In humility, value others above yourself, serving one another and look to the interest of others. Jesus is the supreme example of humility. In your life, keep Jesus first, others next and yourself last.

The service closed by singing "I Surrender All."

HOW IT WORKS:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Sheriff's officers check into accidents

The Jackson County Sheriff's Office has reported the following accidents.

At 6:12 p.m. on Jan. 5, Darrel Stithem, 63, Hoyt, was traveling north on U.S. Highway 75 near 214th Road when his vehicle struck a deer in the road.

Stithem's 2014 Ford sustained damage to its front bumper and hood that was listed at more than $1,000.

Virtual convention part of "wonky" way of life

By Glenn Brunkow Kansas Farm Bureau

We just completed the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) 102nd Convention, virtually. It went as well as it could have. There were a few things that were a little wonky. By the way, wonky is my new favorite pandemic word and really is a good descriptor of most of what has happened because of the pandemic.

But I digress, the annual meeting and convention was different, but it did bring a certain amount of normalcy in a time that is anything but normal.

It was good to hear debate on issues surfaced by our members from across the United States. I find these debates fascinating. I know, I am weird that way but often I learn about issues facing different regions I did not know about before.

I also find out different regions can view the same issue very differently, and they may even be on opposite sides of the same issue. It can lead to a lot of debate and discussion, but that is what makes Farm Bureau so great.

I have heard Farm Bureau described as a "big tent" organization, and I think that is a great way to describe our organization. It would be my wish that all of you could attend an AFBF convention so you could get a taste of all the types of ag, viewpoints and opinions we represent. Every commodity and method of production have a place at the table.

All the policy in our book comes from grassroots members in counties in all 50 states and Puerto Rico. Every piece of policy we have at the state or national level started in a county board meeting somewhere, and that is something to be proud of.

That is why I say listening to the debate and discussion from the business meeting made things seem just a little more normal. I must say my seat was more comfortable, the coffee was much better and cheaper, but watching it all by myself was not right and is something I hope we never do again. However, I could imagine myself back in that crowded convention room listening to the meeting, and that's a good thing.

We are an organization that thrives on relationships, and I miss the conversations we did not have at our usual meetings. We have a lot of catching up to do when this is all over and we return to normal.

Virtually is not how we like or prefer to get our work done, but as all of us in agriculture know, the work must be done. I am proud of the way that we adapted and overcame the challenges this pandemic threw our way; I think we made the best out of a bad situation, and I applaud all who made it happen. It was not easy or natural, but we pulled it off.

Until we beat this virus, and I know we will, we will have to embrace the new virtual normal even if it is a bit wonky.

Note: "Insight" is a weekly column published by Kansas Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization whose mission is to strengthen agriculture and the lives of Kansans through advocacy, education and service.

Glenn Brunkow is a Pottawatomie County farmer and rancher.

Crops and Soils

Get broomsedge bluestem under control

By David G. Hallauer
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent, Crops and Soils/Horticulture

This statement from a USDA Plant Fact Sheet on broomsedge bluestem tells us most all we need to know about why broomsedge has fared so well in our cool season grass stands: "On infertile soils, broomsedge is a long-lived competitor." It also means control will be a challenge.

Mowing hasn't been shown to be effective. Late summer/fall burning might reduce broomsedge, but can also cause cool season weed increases. Work from the University of Missouri found that burns at this time may damage fescue stands, limiting their usefulness. There isn't a "magic bullet" herbicide, either. Broomsedge is susceptible to glyphosate, but since glyphosate is non-selective, you'll also damage other grasses/broadleaves as well. Use of a wiper or rollers has been inconsistent due to coverage issues. Broomsedge work done at the University of Missouri in 2008 looked at increasing cool season grass (fescue in this study) competitiveness using fertility as a broomsedge suppressor. The addition of 50 pounds of phosphorus per acre plus lime increased fescue stand composition from less than 15 percent to more than 35 percent, while slightly reducing the broomsedge stand.

Bottom line: we can help our cool season grasses become more competitive with hopes of retaining the stand, but broomsedge doesn't go away quickly. This work suggests an appropriate fertility program will be needed for two or more years to see much difference. As daunting a task as it may seem, start sooner than later if broomsedge is invading your forage stands. Consider a soil test now with implementation of a longer term nutrient management program based on those results. Anything else you can do to help the cool season grasses stay competitive can help as well, including appropriate haying cutting height and harvest timing/grazing management. Be patient. Broomsedge didn't get a foothold overnight – and it likely won't go away overnight, either.

Poison Ivy – Or Something Else?
About this time of year, it gets harder and harder to stay inside, particularly as we get warm winter days. If you're getting the itch to clean up some unwanted woody species around the home, don't give yourself an itch by unknowingly cutting into poison ivy.

During the growing season, poison ivy's three leaves (versus the five leaflets common with Virginia Creeper, for example) are fairly easy to discern and avoid. In the winter, the absence of leaves makes it much more difficult. Look instead at the plant's roots. The aerial roots on poison ivy vines are hair-like. Virginia Creeper root hairs are more clump, almost the size of a pencil lead. Before you start cutting, it's good to know what you are cutting into.

If you thought winter would eliminate the need to know if you were cutting into poison ivy, think again. The oil present in poison ivy that causes problems is urushiol. Present in all plant parts, it is especially potent in the sap, with the ability to cause a rash even one to five years after the plant has died. The sap will go down to a degree in winter, but still rises and falls a bit, meaning levels can still cause issues if you cut in to it. After all, the amount of urushiol that covers the head of a pin can cause a rash in 500 people. Brush cutter beware, indeed.

Nothing's more hopeful than a new calf crop

By Jody G. Holthaus
Meadowlark Extension
District Agent, Livestock and Natural Resources

It's a new year, new beginnings, out with the old and in with the new. Unfortunately, it's been pretty wacky thus far. Signs are pointing to possibly a dry, warmer than average calving season.

tags and marker, bander and bands. Paper towels or rags are always helpful. Review the stages of calving and when to intervene.

The first stage is preparing to calve, and this can last two to six hours. The calf is rotating to an upright position, contractions begin and the water sac is showing. The cow or heifer will be restless, stops eating and drinking and vaginal discharge can be seen.

The second stage is delivery, usually one hour or less. The cow is usually lying down, and the calf enters the birth canal, front feet and nose appear. At this point, the cow or heifer will be straining, one to three times a minute. Then the calf is born.

The third stage is cleaning, and this can take two to eight hours. The "button" attachments in the uterus are relaxing in order to be expelled. Finally, the placenta is passed. If a cow does not "clean," consult your veterinarian.

Colostrum is the first milk produced by the mother after birth. This milk is high in nutrients and antibodies that are critical for the health of the calf. Calves need two quarts within four hours of birth and one gallon within 12 hours. Time is critical, as the newborn calf's digestive tract allows antibodies to pass directly into the blood. Frozen colostrum from previous births or store-bought is another option.
